

A Most Attractive Display of Fashion's Latest Garments Are to Be Seen in Our New, Enlarged Ready-to-Wear Section

Hundreds of women were delighted with our showing of new, fashionable garments in our recent opening—and we were exceedingly pleased with the knowledge that our efforts in procuring the latest style Suits, Coats, Dresses and Waists personally in the eastern markets were appreciated and that our newly remodeled and improved show rooms and arrangement received such favorable comment. We invite an inspection and comparison of quality, of workmanship, of value of our new stylish garments for Women, Misses and Children. They're different—exclusive—in a class by themselves—and very moderately priced.

SURPRISE NO. 710
Next Thursday, October 1, special State Fair offering
Women's Silk Petticoats at $1.25 Each

These petticoats will surely astonish those who know unusual value—made of silky Glisette and Brocaded Armure in the most popular colorings—well fashioned and put together—full length and width—finished with wide accordion plaited flounce. A most unusual garment for the price—bound to prove a quick seller, so we advise an early attendance next Thursday, as the color which you would want might be sold out early.

State Fair special, Thursday, $1.25 each.
See the big window display. Sale starts at 8:30. No phone orders.

A marriage license was issued by the county clerk today to Isaac Earl Linville, a butcher, of Linville, and Miss Ora Cox of Annsville.

The Jews of Salem are invited to attend the services of Yom Kippur, at the synagogue, 125 North Commercial street, from 6 to 8 Tuesday night and from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Crosgrove of Aldrich, Miss, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Crosgrove's brother, A. A. Stearns, a few miles west of Salem in Polk county. They are making a leisurely trip to various points of interest in the West.

Central Congregational Church—Rev. Mr. Foster, of Portland, will preach in the morning at 11 o'clock, Sunday school as usual at 10 o'clock, Mr. J. V. McAdoo, superintendent. Song service at 7:45 in the evening. C. A. Reetz, of Willamette university, will preach.

Sunday the Oregonians, the highest draft boat on the river for its size, will ascend the Willamette river to the Horst Brothers' hop yard near Independence to take on 500 bales of hops. Last Sunday the Oregonians went above Independence and brought down a cargo of hops.

Judge Percy R. Kelly heard the testimony in the case of James Sykes against Charles Anderson and E. F. Peters in Department No. 1 of the circuit court this morning. A music store on Court street, it appears, was transferred from Mr. Anderson to Mr. Peters and the controversy arose over the liability for a certain promissory note.

It is not probable that the Eugene Radiators will make a junket to Salem as a marching body this year as they did last year. As yet no formal invitation has been received, and it is believed that after the fair in Eugene this week, the members of the Radiators will find themselves too busy to give up a day to an excursion next week.—Eugene Guard.

Judge Galloway will hold court in Department No. 2 of the circuit court Monday and continue the rest of the week. No cases will be tried Monday. The court hearing motions and demurrers. There are four default cases to come up, however, which will end the divorce business for this term of court.

Eighteen of the Seitz pack ranges, designed to be used in the mountainous waste vehicles cannot go, and manufactured in this city by the Eugene Iron works, a model of a stamp mill made at the same plant and five of the Harlan pump fountains, invented by D. L. Harlan, of this city, and made at the iron works, were shipped to Salem last night to be exhibited at the state fair.—Eugene Register.

The market price for hops hangs around 15 cents according to Salem hop men. The firm of William Brown & Co. bought 200 tons recently at 14 cents per bushel and another local firm purchased 125 bales at the same price, but it is said that no more can be secured at those figures. The purchases made by William Brown & Co. included the Raylick's crop of 99 bales, C. C. Winger's crop of 49 bales and 55 bales from Dien Bros.

S. H. Fisher, whose address is 408 West 15th street, New York city, sent a night letter to the Portland chamber of commerce recently asking for a list of hop growers and dealers, as he was entering the hop brokerage business. He wanted the names of those growers and dealers who desire eastern connections and says he can handle a large output. The Portland chamber of commerce turned the letter over to the Salem commercial club.

The state railroad commissioners have been visiting the new construction work in the vicinity of Eugene for the last two days and have inspected over 30 proposed grade crossings on the Willamette Pacific, the Wendling and Natron branches of the Southern Pacific and the Portland, Eugene & Eastern. On Thursday they took a trip over the Corvallis & Eastern, inspecting the construction work on the improvements ordered by the commission a year ago on the road west of Corvallis.

According to the weather bureau station at the foot of Trade street, the stage of the river today is one-half foot above low water mark. The river has been receding slowly during the past week from the three-foot stage it reached last week as a result of the rains. Last night the precipitation amounted to .08 of an inch, and the total rainfall for September so far, with indication of more either this evening or Sunday, is 4.47 inches, while in September, 1913, the rainfall was only 2.57 inches.

H. K. Donnelly, a field assistant in the state engineer's office, left yesterday for Enterprise, where he will make an adjudication survey of the Wallawa valley with the assistance of C. E. Stricklin, also in the employ of the state engineer. It appears that the water rights of the Wallawa lake have never been definitely fixed and there has been considerable controversy over the matter. It is proposed to adjudicate these rights and to record them so that they may be distributed equitably by a water master who will be put in charge.

H. J. Miles, the Turner Everyman, recovered one of his teams and a rig yesterday after an exciting chase ending at Jefferson. Two strangers entered the barn and said they were members of a theatrical troupe and wished to secure a horse for the country near Turner. They were given a team but Mr. Miles became suspicious of their actions and sent one of his men after them on horseback. They were followed to Jefferson where they were forced to give up the rig. No warrant for their arrest could be secured in Jefferson and they left for the south.

Mark Crandall and 17 other residents of the city of Linton filed a complaint against the railroad commission of Oregon with the county clerk of this county today asking a temporary injunction restraining the order of the commission raising the rates between Portland and Linton from going into effect. The rate between Portland and Linton has been five cents for one fare but the order of the railroad commission issued on August 21 raised the rate to 10 cents. The order was to go into effect in 20 days after the service of the order. The town of Linton has attacked the order of the commission and the case is now pending in the courts.

Members of the board began their personal canvass this morning. There were eight complaints filed, which was about half the number filed last year.

Miss Vera Tibbetts and Miss Effie Cobb, both of Portland, came to Salem yesterday to attend the Oregon state fair, but on arrival here were disappointed to learn that the fair did not open until next week. They had secured several days vacation and came here to spend it seeing the exhibits and witnessing the races. But those not being ripe, they took in the sights of the Capital City and in the evening returned to Portland.

They will be advertised in other papers, as the campaign to make them known will be nation-wide.
Miss A. McCulloch, the optometrist, will move her office to the Hubbard building, October 5. Glasses correctly fitted.
Andy Anderson reported to the police yesterday afternoon that his house at 1495 N. Commercial street had been entered about 4 o'clock by burglars. Although the house was gone through nothing was taken. A man who is supposed to have done the job was seen in the back yard shortly before. He is described as about 25 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighing 160 pounds.

The Wisconsin society will meet its members and all former Wisconsin people Wednesday from 11 to 1 p. m. in the W. O. W. hall at the state fair grounds. The Wisconsin society was organized in Salem five years ago and members of the Salem organization will gladly meet former Wisconsin people who attend the state fair. The meeting will be held for registration and a general get-together social time.
C. L. Sperring & Son have moved their grocery to larger and better quarters at 247 North Commercial street, where they will continue the same high class service that has made their store so popular.
Fresh from the printer, with the ink scarcely dry on them, the eight-page booklet gotten out by the Salem commercial club listing the cheap lands in the Willamette valley for the use of prospective immigrants was received this afternoon by Secretary Moores. These lists will be distributed throughout the East. On the back the booklet has a page of statistics concerning Salem, the Capital City, which tell of the area, the climate, the population, property valuation, public buildings, state institutions, etc.
I do not use drops nor drugs of any kind in examining eyes. My examinations are made by modern, safer and more accurate means, and by scientific methods that give the exact defect of vision and enable me to fit your eyes with glasses that will give you comfort and perfect satisfaction. Dr. M. P. Mendelsohn, 210-211 U. S. Bank Bldg., Salem, Oregon.
The county board of equalization, consisting of County Assessor West, County Clerk Gehlar, and County Judge Bushy, is making a personal investigation of the complaints of over-taxation filed with the board last week. The board will visit each piece of property personally and will investigate all charges of unequal taxation. The mem-
