Announcement is made of a dancing party which will be given by the Macabee guards of the Knights of the Macabees...

The society columns of the Sunday Oregonian gave the following announcement of the approaching nuptials of a prominent Salem man and his fiancée.

The wedding of Miss Pauline Nesmith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nesmith, to Franklin Southwick, of Salem, will be an event of October 8.

Miss Nesmith's engagement was announced September 22 at an afternoon party given at her home.

The wedding will be a quiet affair, only the family and immediate friends being invited.

Miss Nesmith is a niece of Senator W. L. Ankeny, of Walla Walla, and a granddaughter of J. W. Nesmith, ex-senator of Oregon.

The young couple plan to make their future home in Rickreall, Or.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Williamson of Portland, former Salem residents, and Miss Effie Myers, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Myers.

Mrs. Otto Metschan, a charming Portland matron, is the guest of Mrs. Frank Meredith and Mrs. L. P. Griffith.

Miss Gertrude Capper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Capper, of 1291 North Fourth street, spent the week-end in Salem as the guest of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Savage are in Seattle where they are guests of their daughter, Mrs. Ernest Nelson. Before her marriage Mrs. Nelson was Miss Zella Savage of Salem.

Visiting his uncle, Dr. C. M. Findley, Paul Blanchard of Grants Pass is in Salem. Mr. Blanchard is a former student of Willamette university and will take law examinations here this week.

Amidst garlands of pretty autumn flowers the marriage of Miss Ora Cox and Isaac Earl Linville was solemnized Saturday, October third, at high noon at the home of the bride's parents.

The Myrtle Ross embroidery club was entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. William Masters in Highland. There were six members present.

Miss Mable Witticombe, of Corvallis, is a guest at the Jones home at Lake Labish.

A delightful closing for the state fair Saturday night was the dear heart songs by a favorite singer, Hallie Parrish Hinges.

Sunday at 12 o'clock, noon Miss Ruth Evans became the bride of Mr. Marion Arnold, of Seio, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Evans, five miles east of Salem.

SENDING PAMPHLETS OUT TO THE VOTERS

Secretary of State Olcott today notified Secretary Plimpton, of the state printing board, that he will be authorized to print 200,000 copies of the campaign pamphlet for the general and special elections to be held upon the same date.

For the general election, two years ago, there were 146,000 male voters registered, the same suffrage constitutional amendment not having been adopted at that time, and the estimate for the male and female registration for the coming election is almost doubled.

The mailing department of the secretary's office is busily engaged in sending the pamphlets out as fast as they are printed and will have disposed of the entire publication before the date of the election, November 3.

Aside from the cost of printing and mailing, the postage upon the 200,000 booklets will be one cent each, or approximately $3000. The districts to which the pamphlets will be mailed are designated as follows:

District No. 1—Embracing Benton, Clackamas, Clatsop, Clatskanie, Coos, Curry, Douglas, Jackson, Josephine, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Marion, Polk, Tillamook, Washington and Yamhill counties.

District No. 2—Embracing Baker, Crook, Gilliam, Grant, Harney, Hood River, Klamath, Lake, Malheur, Sherman, Wallowa, Wasco and Wheeler counties.

District No. 3—Embracing Morrow, Umatilla and Union counties.

District No. 4—Embracing Multnomah county.

OREGON SCHOOLS GET COIN FROM RESERVES

Governor West is today advised by the United States treasury department that Oregon's share of the recently five per cent appropriation of the receipts for grazing privileges, sale of timber and other moneys collected from the forest reserves within the state during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, is $60,000.50.

This fund is to be distributed among the several counties of the state, upon the proportional area basis, to be expended for the benefit of the public schools and public roads within said counties. Oregon's proportion of the forest reserve receipts was collected from the several reserves located wholly or in part within the state, as follows:

Table with 2 columns: County Name and Amount. Includes Cascade, Crater, Deschutes, Fremont, Klamath, Malheur, Marion, Mitchell, Multnomah, Oregon, Paulina, Santiam, Siskiyou, Wasco, Wheeler, Yamhill, and Whitman.

AUMSVILLE MAN SEVERELY INJURED

C. Beebe of Aumsville was severely injured yesterday when an automobile he was driving skidded in the muddy road a mile the other side of Turner and turned turtle. He was hurried to a Salem hospital.

This accident was probably responsible for the rumor in circulation yesterday that three people were killed in an auto accident on Ankeny Hill.

According to details secured, Mr. Beebe in company with another man was enroute to Salem to attend the fair. Having passed an automobile, Mr. Beebe turned back into the road too quickly, when the rear wheels of his automobile, which is a light car, began to skid.

The car was demolished. Both front wheels were smashed to bits, the radiator was considerably damaged and one side of the body was caved in. The top was completely wrecked. The heavy showers yesterday and the day before made the roads in the vicinity of Turner nearly impassible to automobiles.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arsenic; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single grain and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it.

You can get liquid arsenic at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

EXCERPTS FROM SALEM SERMONS

(Rev. Perry Frederick Schrook, at First Congregational Church.)

Text: Pray for the peace of Jerusalem. Psalm 134:2.

Pray for the peace of Jerusalem! It is the spirit of the Old Testament Psalmist that breathes in the proclamation of our beloved president calling upon the nation to humble itself in prayer before Almighty God today.

We seem to hear the voice of the prophet and seer calling a nation unto God as did the great prophets of Israel. This proclamation is an unusual document.

Other presidents have issued calls to prayer, but they were different from this. They called men to offer prayers of thanksgiving for blessings received or calamities averted.

Or, in times of great national crisis, men were asked to beseech Almighty God to guide our nation through its trying moment.

These were all prayers concerning our own life and well being. But now we are asked to pray for peace in nations beyond the sea.

This proclamation calls attention to two great facts. The first is that of a universal brotherhood in nations as well as individuals.

No nation suffers but all nations suffer with it. We are sharing today something of the grief and woe and pain of England and Germany, of Austria and Serbia, of Russia and France.

The second fact is this: "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." In this time of our utter inability to do anything to change the terrible situation in the European continent we appeal to the great Father of us all to do that which we in our weakness and ignorance are not able to do.

This is what men have always done. Often like Paul they have exclaimed: "When I am weak then am I strong." As a result of this day of prayer God in his goodness and wisdom may bring about that end which we all so earnestly desire.

But this ought to be more than a day of petition. It ought to be that, but much more. True prayer is seeing and hearing as well as asking; and this fact President Wilson fully understands. He closes his proclamation by asking that we pray that God may lead us through paths of obedience to places of vision.

I pray that this may be America's day of vision; that this day may do for us what the burning bush did for Moses of old.

With these words Perry Frederick Schrook, minister of First Congregational church, began his sermon on the subject, "Answering the Prayer for Peace." He told then the story of Moses and the burning bush and showed that when Moses turned aside to see "God called to him" and gave to him his mission to lead forth the children of Israel.

This proclamation of President Wilson, said our burning bush, "said Mr. Schrook, "We have turned aside to see and if we listen we also will hear God calling unto us. And what will he say? Will it not be this: 'I have seen the affliction of my people that are in Europe and I have heard their cry by reason of their taskmaster, War. Come, now, and I will send thee that thou mayest lead forth my people unto the land of Peace.' America can and ought to be the Moses of the world's peace."

Mr. Schrook then went on to show that this idea of national leadership in world peace was not modern. He quoted the vision of Isaiah in which he saw the day when nations would "beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. When nation would not lift up sword against nation, neither would they learn war any more."

This end was to be brought about not by sending peace missionaries but by the life of Israel. The spirit and the will of God would be absolutely established in Israel and the life that would result would be so wonderful that all the nations would say: "Come, we will go up to the mountain of Jehovah and we will teach us of His ways and we will walk in His paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem."

"World peace has never come because there has never been the nation that fulfilled the conditions of Isaiah's vision. America can and ought to fulfill those conditions. We will lead in the world's peace when we establish peace instead of armies and greed and selfishness in our own land. When we do this, the nations of the world will come to learn of us. They come now to learn of our schools and factories and commerce and farms. Why not of our life of peace and justice?"

Disarmament the Way and Warrant of Peace. Rev. Carl H. Elliott spoke on the above theme last evening in the First Presbyterian church and among other things he said were these:

"The disarmament of the nations would compel nations to settle their differences in some other way than that of bloodshed. Shut out from the armaments of arms they would discover or invent some method that would be bloodless but effective."

An international police force adequate and powerful would be necessary for the proper keeping of the peace, just as municipal policemen are needed today for the maintenance of order between private citizens, but an one would go back to the old method of each man acting as his own policeman.

An international tribunal backed by such a force to insure the obedience of the nations to its mandates would do much to secure rights and insure justice between nations where under the regime of armaments might makes right and justice swings to the side of the biggest battalions.

Disarmament would lead to the teaching of a truer and nobler ideal of patriotism and of heroism. Too long the heroes of war have been kept before the minds of our boys and girls as the lives that were worthy and to be emulated. Let our boys pass away and the reign of reason come and instead of the world's most successful murderers being held up as heroes to be imitated, such men and women as Luther, Savonarola, Galileo, Emerson, Florence Nightingale and Jane Addams would be the heroes of our school boys and girls."

Love doesn't thrive on absent treatment.

WOULD-BE ROBBER DYING IN HOSPITAL

Frank J. Thorman, Deserter From the Army, Tried to Hold Up Streetcar Men and Is Shot, Perhaps Fatally.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 5.—Frank J. Thorman, who admitted to the police that he had deserted from the army at Angel Island, San Francisco, two months ago, was still alive in Good Samaritan hospital today, though he had been shot through the stomach by Metropolitan L. H. Thompson in a pistol duel at the end of the Fulton car line near Taylor's ferry last night.

Boarding the car, Thorman sat for a time, waiting until Thompson and Conductor W. E. Mosher were standing together at the front end. Then he ordered "hands up" and the car men obeyed. Though Thompson slipped through the front door to the platform and leaped from the car, Thorman fired at him through the window and Thompson fired back, neither bullet taking effect.

Thorman then leaped from the car and tried to slide down an embankment at the side of the track, but Thompson fired again and the ex-soldier came down with a groan.

Thorman told the district attorney he had been living with his sister and paying her tuition in a business college. He said his parents live on a farm near Oroville, California.

Metropolitan Thompson was warmly complimented by the police on his pluck in resisting the holdup.

GERMANS BELIEVE APPARENTLY AFRAID

Strongly Reinforced. Paris, Oct. 5.—Powerfully reinforced once more, the allies today were extending their lines north at Arras in a further enveloping movement against the German right wing.

Fighting desperately, the Germans were retiring eastward as much as a time. The pressure on their front was increasing steadily and the prediction was made by experts that their retrograde movement would not stop short of Belgium.

All German attempts to break through the allies' line between Roye and Lassigny had failed.

At the center the situation remained unchanged. Both the British, who hold the positions about Rheims, and the Germans opposing them, were strongly entrenched, and neither had succeeded in dislodging the other from their defenses.

A little to the east of these positions, in the Woerth district, however, the German forces under the crown prince were retiring somewhat.

French troops, advancing from Toul and Nancy, had also compelled the Germans to raise the siege of certain of the Meuse forts.

Intercepted wireless messages were interpreted here as indicating that the Germans were near the end of their resources.

No Lull in Fighting. Paris, Oct. 5.—Fighting between the allies and the Germans north of the River Oise continues as fiercely as ever, it was stated in the official announcement issued here at 3 p. m. today.

Both sides were said to be receiving constant reinforcements and it was admitted that the battle's outcome remained unchanged.

ASKS SUPPORT FOR MEDFORD NORMAL

B. P. Mulkey, of Medford, was in Salem attending the state fair last week, primarily to call the attention of the people to the measure before the legislature in the coming election to establish anew the State Normal school for southern Oregon.

Mr. Mulkey contends that Oregon is the only state in the union that ever reduced its number of normal schools. That but five states of the union had as small an equipment as ours had when the legislature died in 1906 and overthrew this institution. He said further Oregon must find over 1000 new teachers each year for her public schools and the present normal school output cannot meet more than 200.

Eighty per cent of the applicants for teachers' certificates in Oregon last year had received no training above the eighth grade. The southern Oregon normal school was conducted successfully for fourteen years before it was extinguished by hostile legislation. This school has a plant worth $25,000 ready to open tomorrow, sufficient to meet all requirements for several years.

The cost of the school under the present plan would be but the price of a sign to the taxpayer, amounting at $4,000.

Not one of southern Oregon's counties has an educational institution to which the state contributes a dollar for support. There is no institution within 75 miles of Ashland and Medford nor within 400 miles of Lakeview in Oregon. Students are entering the normal schools of California and becoming citizens there. Oregon loses their services and as heavily pays taxes for every public state enterprise, and willingly we think that sound public policy as well as justice and equity will bring a heavy vote in November to the support of the Ashland school.

Mr. Mulkey says southern Oregon is depending largely upon the aroused interest in better schools everywhere manifest and in the fact that the women now privileged to vote will support it. He says wherever we have gone the people seem ready to support the school.

Mr. Mulkey is a practicing attorney at Medford and claims to have no interest in this school issue other than a public interest. "Of course," said he, "there are hundreds of men and women throughout Oregon who love that school and I am one of those; but beyond all this there is the need of better schools for our children, and to get those we must have the very best teachers, and to that end we must provide for their education and training."

ALLIES STEADILY

ing the German line and continuing to Brussels by way of the supposedly strong German positions at Valenciennes and Mons. Another line, just beyond Arras, at Douai, runs northward toward Ghent. This second line, while running farther away from the German communication route, takes the natural direction for the relief of Antwerp.

There is no reason to believe that Antwerp's fate for succor is immediate, so it seems likely that Arras or some town in its close vicinity will terminate the allies' purely northern movement.

Arras, because of its railroad importance, is the allies' natural pivot for swinging to the eastward and concentrating on the German line of communication through Belgium. This pivotal movement cannot be delayed long and probably will mark the next phase of the campaign.

GERMANS BELIEVE APPARENTLY AFRAID

Paris, Oct. 5.—Some frothiness was discreetly expressed here today over the fact that Great Britain's and France's sea strength, greatly as it has Germany's naval power outmatched, seems inadequate to prevent such incidents as the bombardment of Pauzeet, metropolis of the Society islands, French possessions in the Pacific.

Though the bombardment, in which the Kaiser's cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau took part, occurred September 2, the colonial ministry was not notified of it until Friday night.

Papeete, it was stated, was half destroyed. Our idea of a smart young man is one who succeeds in taming his wild oats.

The Means to the End

"Advertising is nothing in itself. It is only a means to an end—IMPROVED BUSINESS."

"Business is nothing in itself, only a means to an end—IMPROVED LIVING."

These two sentences from a recent address of Joseph H. Appel tell the whole story.

Advertising is the great necessity of improved living—and newspaper advertising is the mightiest, most mobile battalion in the whole advertising army.

The man who intelligently utilizes newspaper advertising is on the road to improved business and improved living.

LET US BE PROUD OF OREGON

Oregon is the only state in the Union that has at any time reduced the number of its normal schools. Everywhere the movement is for more normals, a score of states have from three to fifteen. California has eight; Washington has three; even Idaho has two.

Consider—only five states have a smaller equipment for normal schools than Oregon would, were all three of its schools running; and, eighty per cent of the applicants for teachers' certificates in Oregon last year had received no training above the eighth grade.

Cannot Oregon, like other states, provide that her common schools shall have competent, efficient teachers?

The Legislature has referred to the people a measure providing a small, but ample maintenance fund for the Southern Oregon State Normal School—a school that was conducted with marked success for fourteen years.

VOTE 312 X YES

EARTHQUAKE KILLS MANY. London, Oct. 5.—Many persons were killed and immense property damage was done by an earthquake which shook Konia province, Asiatic Turkey, Saturday night, according to a news agency dispatch received from Smyrna today. The towns of Iabatia and Burdidi were practically destroyed, it was stated, and besides the dead and injured, great numbers of people were said to be shelterless, destitute and hungry. No exact figures were available.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

And the Dog Pursued It. "WELL, kiddies, do you want a story tonight?" asked daddy. "Yes, daddy," chorused Jack and Evelyn.

"Well, snuggle up and I'll tell you about some novel things that crows have been known to do."

"You have heard how tricky crows are alone? Well, two crows are just two times more tricky than one crow. Here is a trick two crows played:

"These two crows sat on a fence, and just below them a big dog was gnawing peacefully away at a bone.

"The crows wanted that bone. But how to get it away from the dog, that was so big and fierce? They cawed and cawed mysteriously together for awhile, and then they flew down on the ground.

"Then the fun began. Both of those crows stole quietly up and attacked the dog from the rear, viciously nipping his tail.

"Of course the dog dropped his bone and turned around to defend himself. One crow flew away, and the dog pursued it, but the crow flew too fast and too high. He sat on a limb of a tree and cawed impudently at the dog.

"The doggie barked for awhile and then thought about his bone. "Alas and alack, when he got back to the place where he had left his bone the bone was nowhere to be found.

"You see, the other crow had carried it away. Pretty soon the crow that carried away the bone was joined by the crow that flew away, and they had a great feast.

"Kiddies, if that sort of thing were done in war it would be called strategy, but when crows do it we call it a trick."
