GUNBOAT SMITH TO MEET SAM LANGFORD

Smith Has Terrific Punch But Little Speed—Langford Just the Other Way

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, Oct. 20.—Gunboat Smith has an idea that he has made a big mistake in devoting most of his time to developing a knockout punch instead of working for some cleverness. And he is trying now to make up for lost time. The gunner's recent performance against Battling Levinsky and "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson were anything but dazzlingly brilliant and his showing on each occasion was due to his desire to box cleverly.
It must be a pathetic sight to witness the gunner attempt to pull some of the cleverness exhibited by James J. Corbett, the late Joe Gans and Abie Attell. The gunner was never built for speed and the only thing he has or ever will have to bring home the bacon is the wallop. He was trying to fight cleverly when he was mowing down the white hopes in order. Smith has a terrific round-house swing, and when it lands flush on the point of the jaw, his opponent is going down. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the gunner is making a mistake, but he refuses to listen to the advice of his friends.

Must Rely on Punch.
The gunner has a little engagement ahead of him soon with one Samuel Langford, hailing from Boston. If Smith is wise, he'll not attempt to pull any of his so-called cleverness on the far baby. If he does, he is apt to get the first little surprise of his life. Langford is not the fighter he was four or five years ago. There is no doubt that he has hit the down grade. Smith has a decision over Langford to his credit but he cannot afford to take any chances with the Boston negro. Sam has some kick himself and if he plants one on a vulnerable spot, Mr. Smith probably will have to go to work.

At the present time Langford is round and fat. He's getting along in years and he lacks the grain of training. He still has, however, a lot of speed and a lot of strength. A New York sport writer recently said that a Gunboat Smith round-arm swing, delivered so that the glove would come into Samuel just above the belt line, might have a whole lot to do with the decision. And it is our opinion that the sport writer said a mouthful.

PRICE OF EGGS GOES STILL HIGHER

Portland, Ore., Oct. 20.—Considerable strength is today shown in the local market for fresh ranch eggs with sales reported in a limited way from 36 to 37¢ a dozen.

Receipts of fresh stock are comparatively limited and few of even the leading handlers have any stock of strictly No. 1 eggs to offer today.
Shortage in fresh egg supplies is not confined to this section, but is shown all along the coast, both Puget Sound and California reporting a like condition. According to a Seattle paper perhaps not more than 10 per cent of the eggs sold there are really fresh.

The impression is given by that publication that many Puget sound interests are mixing their eggs and are selling eastern stock as the home produced article. While this same condition has been alleged to some extent in this market, the practice is by no means general, as the home trade is kept better informed of the situation than in other markets.

VILLA IS PATRIOTIC.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Peace is an assured fact in Mexico unless something unforeseen occurs, according to representations made to the United States government by General Francisco Villa.
"I now stand ready," Villa wired the state department, "to support any provisional government set up by the national convention to be held at Aguas Calientes."
The only stipulation made by Villa was that he would not accept Carranza as provisional president but he added he was satisfied Carranza would not be chosen. Villa made it plain that Carranza himself does not desire to be provisional president, wishing to be free to enter the presidential race in the succeeding election.

Hard work is worth little unless hard sense directs it.

FOREIGN BUSINESS JAMS AMERICAN MILLS

Europe's Struggling Armies Look to the United States for Food and Clothing

New York, Oct. 20.—Foreign business coming to the United States in the shape of huge orders for army supplies will pay the emergency tax, which it is now necessary to levy to assure the U. S. Treasury an ample working balance, many times over. This strict neutrality of this country enforced by President Wilson enables the American manufacturers and laborers to reap the benefits of this opportunity.
As summarized by the New York Journal of Commerce, this is the situation:
Investigation in several leading trade lines shows that within the past month there has been a most encouraging flow of new and extensive orders for such important articles from our American mills as blankets, cotton goods, leather and steel. The war, according to recent indication, has brought to many of our largest corporate manufacturing organizations not a few orders for their products, which will keep them busy in operations for some time at least and in one or two instances established new records for amounts of materials required to fill single orders.

The increasing activity of agents or buying contractors representing foreign countries, both neutral and belligerent, according to some trade leaders, has induced a feeling of the greatest confidence for the immediate and near future of our industrial operations, which, in turn, cannot help but exert a beneficial influence toward bringing about general improvement of business in the United States.

Advises received from Middle West cities show that large orders have been placed by some of the European belligerent nations for leather in large quantities and shoes. The confirmation of rumors concerning the competitive race which is on at the plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company among manufacturers of automobile trucks to win the record orders for such trucks about to be placed through that company for the French and Russian governments has been but one of the many indications of a real boom in export buying which practically every branch of our American automobile and auxiliary trades now believe has begun. The heavy foreign purchasing, it is stated, furthermore, will not end with the close of hostilities in Europe, according to those now participating, but may easily be expected to continue in even far greater proportion after the war than is now trade which our domestic manufacturers of automobiles will realize after war concludes, the output of our plants will be quadrupled over the present capacity.

The textile industries have also come in for a good share of the extra foreign business already necessitated by war operations abroad. Several large New York State underwear mills that have been closed because of the slowness of trade in this country, are now running full and over time, in some cases, on orders received from foreign governments for use of the armies at war in Europe. In addition to the orders already reported on wool underwear, it was learned on Saturday that good-sized contracts of this kind have been placed for men's cotton fleeced-lined underwear. The amount is not divulged, but it is known to be large, and enough to keep mills busy for some time.

Sweater coat manufacturers have also put in bids for orders of 500,000 garments each from the English and French governments. Orders are expected on this business during this week. Coats costing from $16.50 to $18 a dozen are wanted. Khaki color is preferred, but gray will be taken, it is said. Orders of such size, of course, can not be handled by one or two mills in the delivery time that is wanted, so the business is expected to be distributed.

S.W. PROHIBITION, STAND UP!

OREGON FARMER

In the Supreme Court of Public Opinion

FREE STATE OF OREGON vs. S. (STATE) W. (WIDE) PROHIBITION

Foreword
The trial of S. W. Prohibition is a prosecution against the theory of the proposed state-wide amendment and is not an attack against the supporters of the measure whose motives are, no doubt, above reproach.

The first four charges against the defendant having been conclusively proven we will now take up the last counts brought against him.

We propose to introduce evidence to show that S. W. Prohibition is attempting to rob the free communities of Oregon of their Local Self Government and to Kill the Hop Industry of Oregon.

Mr. Local Option was called as the first witness. He testified as follows:
When I was voted into existence it was with the understanding that I should be personally responsible for the moral welfare of my community. It was the desire of my sponsors that the use of liquor should be regulated by my provisions. To the best of my ability I have attempted to enforce the will of the people and I have met with some success. I have applied my whole energy to my own district and have not attempted to interfere with the conduct of my neighbor community. Now comes S. W. Prohibition and by promising far greater results than I have possibly been able to accomplish he is attempting to oust me from the positions I now hold, and to substitute a general enforcement law with State Police Powers and not, as with me, through Local Self Government. My Power rests in the will of my community to support me and I frankly admit that I am powerless in a community where I am unwelcome. The people of any community have the right to control the actions of their own neighborhood but I cannot see wherein they have the right to dictate the actions of their neighbors. That is a matter for the neighbor himself to decide. I have been on trial in a number of States and have been found as nearly practical as the circumstances would permit. S. W. Prohibition has been found impracticable in an overwhelming majority of instances where he has been tried and where the voters have ultimately returned to my temperate principles by abolishing Statewide Prohibition and returning to Home Rule under local option.

Mr. Hop Grower was then called to prove the charge that S. W. Prohibition was attempting to kill the Hop Industry of Oregon.

"I represent 1400 Hop Growers in the State of Oregon who have their wealth invested in 25,000 acres of valley lands. I have grown up with the State of Oregon and by the quality of my products, and after been competition with other States I have secured mastery of world's markets.

"I bring into the State of Oregon nearly $6,000,000 annually and distribute it among the citizens of the State. Now comes the defendant seeking to cripple my markets; seeking to turn my neighbors against me by bearing false witness.

"Rejected by Fifteen Eastern States S. W. Prohibition invades this State of Oregon and asks you to adopt his discredited theory and in its adoption to break me down to destruction. At present I enjoy trade with the great markets of the United States and Europe. He has told my friends that if they support him they will do me no harm.

"Others of his ilk are now agitating in California, Washington, Colorado, Idaho, Arizona, Texas and Ohio and in other States, but they are NOT howling 'reform' in the Fifteen States where they have been 'found out.'

"In the States where they are now 'crusading' business is at a standstill; there are no markets for my products; unrest is rife. My product by reason of his agitation is made a loss. In fact the same cheapening effect is noted in the Hop Market as in every thing, everywhere this man appears. He is attempting to kill my business, without any compensation to me, with a theory that has been a PROVEN FAILURE wherever tried."

N. B.—This trial will proceed from day to day.

EXTRACTS

A juror yesterday asked Judge Wisdom if it was not to be inferred that a community regulated by Local Option was not safer than a state controlled generally. The Judge said, "It is my opinion founded on International law that a people can locally regulate their affairs more energetically than they can have their affairs administered for them on a general plan.

A juror asked Mr. Hopgrower, "What are you going to do if State Wide Prohibition wins?" He answered, "Don't ask me what I am going to do. What are YOU going to do?????"
"What will the hop growers receive in compensation from the prohibition advocates if the State is voted Dry? was a question in court yesterday. Judge Wisdom said they would receive no financial relief but would be plentifully supplied with ADVICE.
