AN EXPERT OPINION ON RUSSIAN TACTICS

German Strategy Seems to Have Misled Slavs--Left Center Wide Open

(By J. W. T. Mason, former London Correspondent for United Press.) New York, Nov. 21.--The Germans' new offensive under General Von Hindenburg in Russian Poland bears out the recent surmise in this column that the Teutonic force's retreat from Warsaw some time ago all the way back to their own frontier was for the purpose of giving them the advantage of their strategic railroad system on their own side of the border. The opinion was expressed that Von Hindenburg would use these railroads for a more rapid concentration than was possible to the Russians, with their more primitive transportation facilities.

This undoubtedly is just what happened. Nevertheless the Germans' swift advance at the present time seems due also to a lack of the Russian resistance which, by a minimum calculation, was to have been expected. The route chosen by the Kaiser's commander for his second invasion is the same by which he previously advanced on Warsaw and retreated later to the frontier. Presumably he had reason to believe that the Slavs were not counting on a renewed German offensive from the same quarter as the one whence a previous advance had failed.

In this he appears to have been right, the Russians having concentrated to the east of Cracow and not along the east Prussian frontier.

But even with these new concentrations it is surprising that they left so few troops guarding their center as to permit the Germans to recover almost half of the territory they recently lost, in so short a time. In fact the ease of the whole Slav line has been weakened. The czar's campaign against the Turks is not progressing satisfactorily and there is reason to believe that the Petrograd general staff has been diverting men from the Russian western frontier for service in Asia Minor.

That the Germans' rapid retirement from Warsaw when they previously invaded Russian Poland was really strategic and due to the necessity they were under to reconcentrate might easily have been overlooked by the Slavs. The desire to emphasize Russian military efficiency and intellectual strength is a dominant characteristic of Petrograd just now, so probably the central part of the czar's battle line from the Baltic to the Carpathians seemed the safest from which to make withdrawals. Finding the Russian center weakened, General Von Hindenburg evidently took instant advantage of it and drove his wedge far into Russian territory again.

With Constantinople continuing to lure the Slavs in a different direction he seems likely to be able to retain what he holds and perhaps to push on still farther. Von Hindenburg's earlier move against Warsaw was undertaken at a time when Russia had no distractions. Since then the Turkish temptation has presented itself.

THINK THE STRANGER WAS ENEMY'S SPY

All day yesterday a short, dark complexioned man hovered around the Commercial club rooms where the hop growers delegates were in session, representing that he was a special representative of the Oregonian sent up to get a special story on the growers' organization meetings, and tried in every way possible to get upon the inside of the business movements of the meeting. He was not asked to show his credentials, but he was not identified by any one present and it was definitely ascertained that he did not represent the Oregonian and was probably a spy sent out by some interests who are trying to get the inside "dope" upon the proposition in order to organize a movement to frustrate the plans of the growers to form the corporation. He secured a copy of the contract form and disappeared and has not shown up since. The hop growers have no secrets to keep from the bona fide grower or prospective member of the corporation, and all of its proceedings have been open and above board, except that no thing is given out to the public until final decision was reached upon it. They are satisfied, however, that this self-styled but bogus newspaper man is a fraud and is working in the interests of some person or persons getting ready to wage war upon the growers' corporation and keep it from becoming effective if possible.

LIVESAY-WILSON.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wilson, of Dallas, Sunday afternoon, November 15, when their daughter, Miss Alpha Wilson, was united in marriage to Mr. Roy R. Livesay, of Woodburn. The rooms were beautifully decorated in white and yellow chrysanthemums. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Balentine, of the Evangelical church, in the presence of friends and relatives. The bride wore a gown of cream Chinese crepe trimmed with mesaline and shadow lace. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. After congratulations, a fine dinner was served. The bridal couple left on the evening train for Newport, where they will spend their honeymoon until the first of the year.--Woodburn Independent.

HENEY SAYS BANKERS AND GAMBLERS RUN IT

Charges Oakland Has Boss, and Bankers and Tenderloin Do His Bidding

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 21.--Stirred to action by public charges of graft and corruption voiced here last night by Francis J. Heney before a crowd of 4,000 representative citizens, the executive committee of the Oakland Citizens committee of one hundred met today to map out a definite plan of action. Counsel will be engaged, it was announced, and the work of cleaning up Alameda county started at once. Heney's charges made a decided impression on the immense gathering. He had the most responsive kind of an audience and was cheered for fully three minutes after making his appearance on the platform. Heney made no sensational disclosures. He merely pointed out what he said he considered as first class evidence that Alameda county was honeycombed with fraud and deception. "But I wish to say," declared Heney, "that Oakland has a political boss. His name is Mike Kelly and he is on a par with the notorious Abe Ruef of San Francisco. In San Francisco Abe Ruef's right hand was stretched out to Patrick Calhoun, Frank Drum and big business men, and his left was stretched out to the gamblers, the crooks and vice promoters. Police Protect Bunco Men. "In Oakland, Mike Kelly has the backing of the holders of rotten securities and the banks on one hand, and he has on the other hand the backing of the tenderloin, the gamblers, the bunco men and other illegal traffickers at whom the police wink.

"What is the result? When you have an election over here in Oakland you have the same combination at work that used to control San Francisco under the regime of Schultz and Ruef. Mike Kelly names the candidates for office, and his friends among the bankers and in the tenderloin see that the men he wants in office are elected. "Bunco men are a type of criminal that cannot operate in any large city without the knowledge of the police. Let Police Chief Peterson, if he can, explain some of the crimes committed by the bunco men in this city. Heney then went on to point out what he said were some of the outstanding earmarks of graft in the county. Most people who congratulate you on your success do not mean it.

CANADA FORTIFIES SEYMOUR NARROWS

Portland, Or., Nov. 21.--The fortification of Seymour Narrows, the northern passage to Vancouver, Nanaimo and Victoria, against possible invasion by German cruisers reported off the coast, is progressing rapidly according to C. S. Lindsay, agent for the Portland Steamship company at Juneau today. Lindsay passed through the narrow Wednesday and stated that at least fifty big guns are being mounted on the bluffs on either side of the thin strip of water, and that he had counted no less than twelve squads of from twenty-five to fifty men who were apparently stationed at artillery emplacements. The narrows are also heavily mined, Lindsay said. COAST DISAPPOINTED. Philadelphia, Nov. 21.--The American Federation of Labor was holding the final session of its annual convention today. The re-election of a conservative slate, headed by Samuel Gompers, was conceded. Washington, Oregon and California delegates were disappointed at the refusal of the federation to sanction a fight in those states to establish a legal eight hour day.

THINK MANY VESSELS WRECKED ON LAKES

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Nov. 21.--Grave anxiety was felt here today for the steamship C. P. Curtin and the lumber barge S. K. Marvin, which left Baraga, Mich., Wednesday, in a heavy gale, bound for Tonawanda, N. Y. Eight bodies, some of them known to be those of members of the lumber barge Annie M. Peterson's crew washed ashore near Grand Marais Friday, leaving no doubt concerning that vessel's loss. The Peterson, however, carried a crew of only seven and the eighth body was taken as leaving no question that one other craft had been lost, presumably the Curtin or Marvin. Lake Superior has been storm-swept for three days. WOMAN GOES TO PEN. San Francisco, Nov. 21.--The district court of appeals upheld today the conviction, before Superior Judge Lawler, of Mrs. Mary Vaughn, well known social worker and club woman, on a charge of soliciting a bribe from Judge Widney of Los Angeles at the time his son, Robert, was in trouble here with Vivian Lyons. Judge Lawler sentenced Mrs. Vaughn to a year in San Quentin but was disposed to grant probation. Mrs. Vaughn scorned this offer and remained in jail.

This having failed, she will have to serve her sentence unless pardoned by Governor Johnson.
