CALIFORNIA TO PLAY AGGIES AT TACOMA

Weather Bad But Teams Good —The Dope Is That It Is Any One's Game

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 26.—With weather conditions anything but favorable, the football teams from the University of Southern California and Oregon Agricultural College are ready for the big game at the stadium here this afternoon. Despite a steady drizzle during the morning, predictions generally placed the probable attendance at not less than 20,000. The entire receipts from the game are to be donated to the fund for the alleviation of the Belgian war sufferers.

Dope on the game obtained through a study of the makeup of the teams and their past performances would seem to indicate victory for the Oregon team. But the fact that the Californians are past masters in the open style of play is causing Dr. Stewart, coach for the Oregon team, no little uneasiness. While Oregon has a fast, heavy team, they are not the demons with the passing style of game as are the southerners.

In their workout in the stadium, yesterday afternoon, the Californians displayed some of their ability in the handling of the ball on the fly. The spheroid was tossed around like a basket ball and the long lateral and forward passes were handled with skill and ease.

"We have never been up against anything of that kind," said Coach Stewart, as he watched the rival team at work, "and whether we can develop an effective defense remains to be seen. We will want more than two touchdowns to be sure of victory."

"We will win from Oregon because we are playing modern football," said Coach Glaze today. "The speed and use of the forward pass will prove a revelation to the northern aggregation."

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—Early indications today were that Tom Mathey's historic Vernon arena would be jammed from the ring to the top tier of gallery seats this afternoon when Sam Langford and Harry Wills meet to battle over the 20-round route.

Hundreds of out-of-town reservations had been taken up and practically every reserved seat has been sold. The gallery was to be thrown open at noon, and long before that hour long lines had formed before the doors. Darktown citizens were much in evidence in the gallery lines and it was assured early that all the color of the day was not to be confined to the ring.

Langford had been made a slight favorite in the betting, due probably to his past performance and to the fact that Los Angeles fans have never seen Wills in action. Langford's evidently poor condition when he met Tom McMahon here three weeks ago had influenced many bettors, however, and there was considerable Wills money in sight.

Wills was abroad early today. From his Vernon training quarters he took a short walk with his manager into the country. Later he breakfasted heartily. During the morning he visited the scene of the battle, danced about the ring and announced that he never felt better.

Langford, as was his wont, slumbered until the sun was high, after which he partook of a hearty breakfast at Jack Doyle's camp. Then, accompanied by Manager Joe Woodman and a few faithful black retainers, he stepped into an automobile and rolled toward Los Angeles. Passing the Vernon fight shed, he spied Wills and his party emerging. Both fighters waved a friendly hand and grinned.

Langford expected to enter the ring at about 1:30 p.m., and Wills at 2:10. Both claimed to be in excellent condition.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

With the cooperation of Channey Bishop of the Warden Mills store, Theodore Roth of the Both Grocery company, Joe Albert, of the Capital National bank, W. I. Staley, of the Capital Business College, Paul Hauser of Hauser Bros, and Watt Shipp of the Watt Shipp company, a Commercial Basketball league has been organized in this city and will begin a 60 game schedule in about three weeks. Three games will be played every Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. after 8:15 and Saturday evenings will be given over to practice for the teams.

The schedule has not yet been arranged nor the teams made up. Each of the six firms will appoint a manager who will run the team. The members of the teams must be members of the Y. M. C. A., but the manager need not be a member. A small admission fee will be charged to make up a fund for individual medals for the winners and for a banquet at the end of the season.

Considerable interest has been worked up in basketball in past seasons and it is thought that the Commercial League will be the means of working out players for some first class teams to represent this city in games with other well known amateur teams of the valley.

SCHEDULE FOR THE GYMNASIUM

The Y. M. C. A. has just completed its gymnasium schedule and all of the different classes organized for the coming winter. The following is the complete schedule:

WILLAMETTE STUDENTS OF LAW IN DEBATE

The law students of the Willamette University law school have started in debate and oratory, and Dean L. H. Van Winkle is backing the contest this season, in conjunction with Walter Keyes, a member of the faculty. Henry Savage, a former debater of the college of liberal arts, has signified his intention of entering in the law contests. Ivan McDaniel, who won his bar "W" in debate two years ago, will be entered in the oratorical contest. It is expected that the Willamette law school debate will again meet the Oregon law school in debate.

LANGFORD-WILLS FIGHT AT "VERNON"

Great Crowd Gathers to See Fight—Color Scheme Is Black and Tan

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—Early indications today were that Tom Mathey's historic Vernon arena would be jammed from the ring to the top tier of gallery seats this afternoon when Sam Langford and Harry Wills meet to battle over the 20-round route.

THE SAN FRANCISCO SCRAP

San Francisco, Nov. 26.—Both Sailor Ed Petroskey and Billy Murray were down to weight early today for their 20-round bout here this afternoon at the Pavilion rink here. The weight requirements called for 160 pounds at 10:30 a. m. this morning. Both fighters were confident of victory.

"I am satisfied," said Murray, "that I will stop Petroskey if he will stand up and fight. If I get away with him, and I am certain that I will, I will issue a challenge to Jim Chabley, who is being talked about as the greatest middleweight in the world. I boxed him a day once, and I think I can defeat him if I get him in a ring again."

Petroskey grinned when told of Murray's statement.

"I have been against more good fighters," said Ed Petroskey, "than Murray ever saw. Murray will be lucky if he is on his feet at the end of ten rounds. He's a jab and I will show him up this afternoon."

WILLAMETTE FRESHMEN ARE BEATEN BY SOPHS

In a game characterized by fistic poses and indiscriminate gonging and fouling, the freshmen of Willamette University came out the losers by the score of 6 to 6 Tuesday afternoon against the sophomores. No first squad men were allowed to participate in the class affair. "Toots", Booth, field general on the first squad, coached the sophomores for the game. He was supported by Earl Fiegel, regular varsity end. The freshmen worked under the guidance of several upper class men, including Merwyn Paget, varsity guard.

The lineup:

Freshmen	Sophomores
Proble, C.	Gregg
Spies, O.	Cotton
Dave, G.	Reetz
Rook, T.	Ohling
Enkin, T.	Leising
Hayter, R.	Shieler
Fletcher, E. R.	Bagley
Procter, F. B.	Adams
Lyons, H. B.	Barnes
Byrd, H. B.	Chapman
Mittler, Q. B.	Gillette

Fiegel Wins at Tennis

The tennis tournament at Willamette University was brought to a close Tuesday when Earl Fiegel, a junior in the college of liberal arts, was presented with the winner's tournament purchased by the student body. Beginning Monday, November 30, a girls' tennis tournament will be staged. Coach O. G. Thompson will act as official umpire.

FOOTBALL IS CLEAN COLLEGE SPORT—NIT

New York, Nov. 26.—Two sport writers were talking over recently the merits of football and baseball as entertainment projects. One was a fanatic in favor of baseball. Age and the compiling of many box scores had not withered or staled his infinite love for the diamond game.

The other was equally warm in telling of his liking for football. Sitting in a press box with a November breeze held no terrors for him.

They were on their way to a town not far from New York to "cover" a big football game for their papers.

Said the football lover:

"What I like about football is that it is a good clean game. When you go to a game between two college teams you do not feel that commercialism enters into the contest."

The baseball man said nothing, but smiled on those quiet little smiles which speak of much wisdom.

They sat down in a crowded corner of the day coach. Around them a host of humanity seemed to fill every square foot of sitting and standing room.

Presently a newboy came through the train.

The football writer bought three evening papers; five cents each for papers ordinarily selling at a cent.

Then came the candy butcher with bars of milk chocolate.

"Here you are. Get them while they're fresh. Twenty cents each." Regular price, ten cents.

At the college town they had dinner at a boarding house.

Each man paid seventy-five cents for stuff that he would not pay ten cents for on Nassau street.

These were just a few samples:

Coffee with a distinct and emphatic taste of chiory sold for ten cents a cup. Sandwiches were ten and fifteen cents each, the price varying with the customer's status financially indicated by a full-lined overcoat or the ordinary kind. The scribes looked good for ten cents. It must be confessed, and the sandwiches were found to be almost totally devoid of meat.

In every corner of the town prices had been boosted sky-high.

"Get it while the going is good," seemed to be the slogan of these simple college townpeople.

And they got it!

If this is not commercialism, make the best of it!

Bombardier Wells, the English, heavyweight champion, and Frank Moran, who was beaten some time ago by Jack Johnson in a twenty-round bout in Paris, will box for sweet charity at the Alhambra Music Hall, London, on December 3.

Half of the profits will be given to the Belgian Relief Fund and the other half will be divided 75 per cent and 25 per cent between the winner and loser of the bout.

In order to swell the proceeds as much as possible the boxers have announced their intention of giving public exhibitions at their training quarters, to which an admission fee will be charged.

As an important event in a worthy cause the bout and the preliminary training should be highly praised and it is hoped, a great success. As a boxing match, however, it should be somewhat of a fizzle.

But it would be unkind, perhaps, to knock.

ARKANSAS FOREST

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 26.—Telegrams from Cummins, Ark., today said the state penal farm there was surrounded by forest fires.
