Eager high school students were calling up the Journal office this morning asking for returns from the basketball game between the Salem high and Washington high at Portland last night, and they were greatly pleased to learn that Salem won by the score of 28 to 21. It was expected when the local boys traveled down to the Rose city that they would win, and much satisfaction has been given by the favorable outcome of the contest, which was one of the first of the season.

J. L. Stockton, merchant of Salem, has purchased the shoe stock of the Oregon Shoe company, and it is expected he will open up in a short time with a sale, giving the people exceptional values in footwear. He said this morning he was uncertain just what he was going to do and was not sure he would place the stock on sale here. However, he said if he did open up he would have such a sale that nobody in the city need go barefooted, and that if anyone knew of people too poor to buy shoes at the price proposed to sell to send them to him and he would give a pair. Mr. Stockton was optimistic regarding the future of business in Salem and said things were picking up and getting better right along.

The children who ventured out to the story hour this week had a happy surprise, for a Christmas tree had appeared in the children's room for the first time. A cozy little group gathered around the fireplace and Miss Case told Christmas stories. There will be no story hour next week as it is the day after Christmas, but the Christmas tree will be in the children's room all during the holidays. On the Saturday after New Years the children will have a doll party in place of the regular story hour.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rawson this morning arrived home from Santa Rosa, Cal., where they were called by the sudden and fatal illness of Mrs. Rawson's father, William P. Campbell, who passed away Tuesday, December 15, 1914, aged 82 years. He was among the pioneers of California, being one of those arriving in '49. He married in California and in early days came to Oregon, locating at Vancouver, and some years later moving to Eugene, where he and Mrs. Campbell resided several years. He was in the best of health up to a few days before his death, being unusually strong and vigorous for one of his age, but he quickly succumbed to a severe attack of pneumonia. Six children survive him. They are: James, Edward, Iva, Mary and Rosa, all residing at Santa Rosa, and Allen, Mrs. Rawson, of this city.

Careful inquiry on the part of Superintendent R. E. Lee Steiner, of the insane asylum, has revealed the identity of a patient who was committed from Multnomah county about two months ago under the name of G. H. Keyser, as George H. Keyser, a former practicing and prosperous dentist of Auburn, Cal., aged 66 years for whom his sister, Mrs. Andrew Anderson, of the California city, has been making anxious and diligent search ever since his mysterious disappearance several months ago. When he was admitted to the asylum from Portland he had a number of crowns for teeth in his possession and it was thought at the time that he was a dentist by profession, but he would give no information either as to his identity, home address or family connections, but he addressed to Dr. Steiner yesterday afternoon that he was the missing brother of Mrs. Anderson, and Dr. Steiner says that Keyser's case, while not exactly serious, is not very promising.

Prominent among the speakers from abroad who will address the residents of the western division of the Oregon State Teachers' association, which convenes in Eugene Monday and holds over Wednesday or next week, are Dr. Charles E. Rugh, president of the new practice high school of Oakland, Cal., under the charge of the University of California, and Dr. Elmer B. Bryan, president of Colgate university, Hamilton, New York. Both of these gentlemen have attained great eminence as speakers upon educational subjects, and have enjoyed successful careers and such distinction as students and authorities in educational matters, and their services during the association meeting have been secured at great expense to the association. Both gentlemen are on the program for each of the
