FRUITLAND

(Capital Journal Special Service.) Fruitland, Ore., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Ida Jones, of Toledo, Wash., and sister, Miss Clara Guerin, of Woodburn, visited friends here last week.

Word received from the Bellamy family, now living at Phoenix, Ariz., is to the effect that they could hardly eat their Christmas dinner in that far-away southern land by reason of homesickness and longing for the old home and neighbors left behind in Oregon. Not surprising.

Friday evening, January 1, the following persons were elected Sunday school officers of the Fruitland Evangelical church: Superintendent, W. O. Witham; assistant superintendent, Naomi Runner; secretary, Grace Coleman; treasurer, Mrs. Emma Standifer; organist, Priscilla Otterbein; librarian, Dorothy Runner; assistant librarian, Elmer Otterbein. Also at the same time and place the following persons were elected to fill official places in the Young People's alliance: President, Levi Otterbein; vice-president, W. O. Witham; recording secretary, Grace Coleman; corresponding secretary, Kenneth Runner; missionary secretary, Priscilla Otterbein; treasurer, Luella Zeigler; chorister, M. M. Runner; organist, John Bowyer. The two last named were re-elected, having filled the places the last year. The others I believe are all new officials.

Kenneth Runner is home on a holiday vacation from Ostrander, Wash. He is filling the position of bookkeeper for the Ostrander Logging and Lumber company.

Green Literary society. This is the first joint debate of the season for the Franklin society.

SOCIETY

The Ladies' Aid society of Salem Heights met with Mrs. Frank Thompson last Wednesday. Dainty needlework and conversation was indulged in for an hour, followed by election of officers, which are: Mrs. Mira Sawyer, president; Mrs. Pray, vice-president; Mrs. McCollum, secretary; Mrs. Morris, treasurer, and Mrs. Edith Thompson, chairman of the Sunshine committee. The new president also appointed her committees for the ensuing year. The afternoon drew to a close by the hostess serving delicious refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Pray.

An article appearing in a recent edition of "Musical America," one of the leading musical publications, will be of great interest to all those interested in the Currie Louise Dunning system of piano playing.

"What the child-mind, properly guided, may accomplish in musical technique," states the article, "was demonstrated in a remarkable way by Mrs. Currie Louise Dunning, originator of the Dunning System of Improved Music Study for Beginners, at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on the morning of December 18, Mrs. Dunning gave a musical talk, which alternately surprised, pleased and educated her large audience.

"Her method has the endorsement of such artist-teachers as Leschetizky, Scherwinski, de Pachmann, Busoni and Gabrielowitch. The surprising feature of the demonstration of Mrs. Dunning's principles was the fact that a class of youngsters, about eight years old, hailing from Yonkers, were called upon at random and were totally unprepared for this particular exhibition of their accomplishments.

"The method, beautifully systematized and based on psychological principles, develops the child physically, mentally and spiritually. Eliminating tedious hours of practice, technique, rhythm and expression are taught in a natural joyful way, interesting to the child-mind. The drawing of birds and flowers, to pulsating melodies, likewise the illustrating of objects such as umbrellas, with the soft rain pattering down—these ideas appealing to child's—ever little creatures of imagination—holds their interest and brings from them an instantaneous response.

"With the firm belief that no human being is tone-deaf, Mrs. Dunning teaches every musical principle by means of objects and melodies.

"Mrs. Dunning declares that to begin with children have a great natural reverence for their teachers, and by appealing to them through the joy and beauty of things in general—and using carefully the much abused law of suggestion—interest, attention and application are assured."

"These same methods discussed in the above article have been demonstrated in private and public recitals here by pupils of Miss Elma Weller, when exhibitions equally clever and remarkable have been given. Miss Weller will present her smaller pupils shortly in regional and has planned several musicals for later in the season.

W. C. T. U. Mr. H. J. Hickerson, a student of Kimball College of Theology will conduct the gospel services at the W. C. T. U. Hall Sunday, Jan. 10, 1915, at 4 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend the service.

Free Methodist. Quarterly meeting at 1228 North Winter street. Services tonight and Sunday, Lovefeast at 10:15, preaching at 11 a. m., and at 7:30 p. m. Rev. W. N. Coffee of Portland in charge. Everybody invited.

Salem Mission. Corner Center and Commercial streets, D. M. McInturf, D. D. pastor. Three meetings tomorrow at 11 in the church of God, Sixth and Hood, North Salem, and at 3 and 7:30 in the mission. If you want to be happy meet us at the Salem Mission.
