MRS. NEIMEYER IN "BROWN OF HARVARD"

Will Play Title Role in Brilliant College Comedy to Be Presented by Local Artisans.

Evelyn Kenyon, the "engenderer" in Rida Johnson Young's brilliant college comedy, "Brown of Harvard," which the Capital Assembly of Artisans is to produce here by local talent on February 16 and 17, is by all odds the most fascinating college girl which our American drama affords. Miss Young, in her exquisite conception of this character, set a standard for college play heroines which no writer has since been able to equal, in spite of the fact that following the phenomenal success of "Brown of Harvard" in New York a few years ago practically every playwright in the country tried his hand at writing a college play.

George Colledge, of Lively, and Miss Edith Frances Ellison. Yesterday Mrs. Page was a guest of Mrs. Swaboda, at Chama, going down to attend a rural telephone meeting.

The Loyal Order of Moose held a dance last night, about 75 couples attending.

Mrs. M. E. Shipley of Winlock, Wash., has returned to her home after a several weeks' stay with her son, T. J. Shipley, at the Shipley's country place, "Chataucka." During her stay she has also been entertained by the Angustas Prescotts and Mrs. White, of South Commercial street.

A most enjoyable time was spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rittner on Eighteenth and Bellevue streets, when a group of friends called "en masse" to surprise their daughter, Bessie, on her birthday anniversary. Tables were arranged for those playing cards, the remainder of the guests passing the hours with music and other diversions.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Phil Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Edie Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Priddy, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Neyhart, Mr. and Mrs. William Yalton, Misses Fern Schupp, Ella Bennett, Eva Priddy, Peter Fisher, Dorothy Fisher, Viola Fisher, Mester, Hubert Henderson, Robert Bennett, Herbert Lane, John Lane, Ben Lane, Loyal Henderson and Ivan Yalton.

Miss Jewel Williams, of Albany, is in Salem the guest of her sister, Miss Opal Williams.

Their friends here were given a complete surprise when announcement of the marriage of Miss Stella Hartley and H. B. Carter, was made known. Monday they went to Vancouver, where they were quietly married. Mr. Carter is head of the Carter studio, and his bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hartley, of Jefferson. Both have a wide circle of friends who are pleased to learn of the nuptials.

During their brief stay in Portland they were entertained by Mr. Carter's sister, Mrs. Roy Lee. They are at home to friends at 697 North Cottage street.

PROHIBITION IN POLITICS. Washington, Feb. 5.—It was reported today that the prohibition party and National Anti-Saloon league forces would enter into an investigation of the elections last fall in California, Indiana and a number of other states where senators were elected recently.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective. Sufferers from tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food are in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alternative. Read the following:

Weldon, Ill. "I have been suffering from tuberculosis for several years. I was taken with the phlegm pneumonia, which developed into tuberculosis (hardly cured). In February, 1913, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my phlegm increased. When the London was sunk off Coos Bay by the Australian cruiser Sydney last fall, Von Muecke and a landing party were ashore endeavoring to destroy the British wireless station. They occupied the Australian warship and afterward shelled a French cruiser and reached Hodeida.

An enthusiastic meeting is that of two girl chums who haven't seen each other for nearly an hour.

KINGS OF FINANCE ON STAND TODAY

Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller Appear Before Commission

New York, Feb. 5.—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., took the stand here this afternoon before the federal industrial relations commission and defended the foundation bearing his name. His opponent, Andrew Carnegie, was physically dejected. It was a menace to society and insisted that the foundation was intended to systematize his donations.

Rockefeller declared that while the directors of big corporations were responsible for labor conditions, all they could do was to get the best administrative officials possible, who finally had charge of conditions.

The oil king followed Andrew Carnegie on the stand. Just before he was excused, Carnegie said he wanted the following epitaph inscribed on his tombstone: "It was damn white of Andy."

Carnegie said this sentiment was uttered by a former burgess of Homestead, Pa., when Carnegie sent word to him when he was working as a laborer in a mine at Sonora, Mexico, that he (Carnegie) wanted to add him financially. The burgess "ran from Homestead," he said, following the riots there in 1892.

Asked to give his business, Carnegie answered: "I am a retired business man, whose chief object in life is to do good to mankind."

Carnegie said one big thing he learned early in life was that experienced men are the best, and that much of his success was due to himself and partners retaining their old men in their employ and in "always granting the demands of labor, however unreasonable."

Carnegie detailed the operations of his six foundations and said he also was paying out $241,000 a year in private pensions. He invited the commission to attend the meetings of his foundations and said he would welcome "any sort of an investigation."

"Since I retired from business," said Carnegie, "I have devoted myself to charitable and philanthropic work. My gifts total $24,857,292."

Rockefeller read his answers in a clear and firm voice. He said he had such confidence in democracy that he believed it could safely be left with the people to remedy evils rather than to limit the scope of his foundation by providing for hypothetical dangers.

The sole motive of his various foundations, said Rockefeller, "is a desire to devote a portion of my fortune to the service of my fellow men."

Rockefeller said he reserved $3,000 annually from a fund and personally distributed this amount.

GLUCK IS SINGER OF ART AND SOUL

Metropolitan Star Realizes All Anticipations at San Francisco Theater

San Francisco made a new acquaintance yesterday, says the Chronicle of February 1. A personality and a musician were found in the revealed art and heart of a singer.

The world is full of singers. Good voices are hardly more scarce than good violins. Nature is not so clumsy in building throats. But few are found who can play on their voices with a David's skill; so singers with musical souls are less often found.

Alma Gluck is one of them. To those who believe in the ultimate relation of self and expression, there was no surprise when after grace was found to characterize her first group of songs, for Alma Gluck's stage presence is the acme of grace.

Technically there was also found in this first group, as in Mozart's "Le moto di Gioia," a quality which preeminently distinguishes Miss Gluck and is a completely identifying characteristic of her art. I refer to her "legato" purity, wherewith, like a perfect priestess in music, she "binds and loosens."

Her perfection in this quality reaches the point of complete evasion of description—it must be heard to be believed—and nothing, other than itself, can express the innocence of her singing from the sin of flurring. Each tone of the most agile passage is completed, rounded and dropped in its place, colored with a glint from the divine spark that animates this new voice.

If I were asked for a choice of all her songs, I think I should select for a rehearsal of Schubert's "Du bist die Ruh," in which the singer disclosed all her perfections and gave biggest promise of yet untouched heights—or depths—in song—for you must know that Miss Gluck's program was not of the kind that "runs the gamut." Miss Gluck leaves from her program the heroically brave—she sings no "Coolidge Taylor's" "Life and Death," nor Schubert's "The Abtightsy."

GREAT CROWDS OUT TO HEAR FIGHT ON PROHIBITION BILL

also shows that the product of the Oregon breweries amounts to only about 3,000,000 gallons annually and the manufacturers, backed by the commercial organizations, hop growers and other industrial bodies take the position that if there is to be any allowance made for the shipment of beer into the state under the prohibition measure the Oregon industries should get the benefit of the discrimination.

The resolution has already been prepared and will be presented in the house immediately after the failure of the effort to amend the bill so as to eliminate the clause permitting the shipment of booze into the state, as little hope is entertained of the success of the movement, and it will provide, in substance, that the prohibition amendment be amended so as to permit the manufacture of beer and other alcoholic beverages by Oregon breweries for export and for private consumption within the state. If the resolution is adopted by the legislature it is proposed to submit it to a vote of the people at the special election in November.

PROTEST MAY BE MADE TO GERMANS

als of the government here after the meeting of the cabinet today, at which the German order was discussed in detail. The notice received by this government so far, however, is regarded merely as a warning that such a danger will exist, such as have heretofore been issued by England and Germany concerning mineral areas in the North sea.

It is officially stated that no protest or other note regarding the matter has yet been sent to Germany by the state department.

INVESTIGATION FAVORED. Washington, Feb. 5.—The Senate resolution providing for an investigation of recent brewery campaigns in Pennsylvania and Illinois, was reported favorably by the senate elections committee today. An amendment to the resolution provides that the investigation may include any other state where charges of corruption are made.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at Once When Back-ache or Bladder Bothers—Meat Forms Uric Acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain out part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders, come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregularly of passage, or attended by a sensation of swelling, get about four ounces of Jad Salts, from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Except for their vanity, it would be impossible to please some people.

Recipe Department

For Your Pickles—Pickles may be kept from becoming moldy by having a bag of mustard in the top of the pickle jar.

In Place of Beeswax—Use common laundry soap in place of beeswax on ironing day, and your iron will be neither rough nor sticky.

To Clean White Woodwork—Dip a cloth in whiting and with it you can easily remove finger marks and other dirty spots from your white woodwork.

Cocunut Steepies—One pound of coconut, 3 eggs beaten together, 1 pound pulverized sugar, 1 tablespoonful of flour. Bake on buttered paper in slow oven until brown.

Eggs a la Lausanne—Add a small onion, minced very fine; a couple of stalks of chopped celery, and salt and pepper to taste to a pint of stewed tomatoes, in which the hard lumps have been broken or chopped. Heat it to the boil and let it cook for 10 minutes. Have six eggs well beaten; stir them into the tomato puree, cook for 15 minutes and serve.

A Fowl Suggestion—According to a good authority, a very old fowl may be made tender as a young chicken if cooked as follows: Rub the fowl over with lemon juice, which whitens the flesh and improves the flavor; then wrap it in buttered paper and steam for two hours until done. If preferred, the fowl may be roasted, after partially steaming it.

Shot Her Husband. Sacramento, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Mrs. John Andrew Smith shot and killed her husband here this afternoon. She then attempted to commit suicide, but is expected to recover.

The Smiths came here from Los Angeles. Mrs. Smith told the police she shot her husband because she had learned that he was planning to return to another woman in Los Angeles.
