"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER." THIS FUNNIEST OF PLAYS COMES TO THE GRAND ON MONDAY, MARCH 29TH.

"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER."

Before sending out the various "Potash and Perlmutter" companies that will interpret the famous play throughout the entire country this season, Manager A. H. Woods arranged that every principal in every company should play a long engagement at the Grand theatre, New York City. This unique plan would be impossible of execution were it not for the fact that "Potash and Perlmutter" ran for nearly two years at that theatre. Not a single one of these actors was finally signed for here until he had demonstrated his or her ability to please a discriminating audience, and when the companies finally left for the road Manager Woods had satisfied himself that every organization was "100 per cent good."

Twine Manufacturers Protest Against Action

Washington, March 24.—Independent manufacturers of twine today filed protests against the alleged action of the federal government in devoting most of its efforts in the Yucatan, Mexico, situation to relieving the conditions confronting the International Harvester "trust." The International, say the independents, has 100,000 bales of sisal, the basis of twine, in the port of Progreso. The protest declares the independents also desire special government aid.

Unless the situation at Progreso is cleared up and the sisal conditions are relieved, the United States is confronted with the probability of closing up a majority of its hinder twine mills within two weeks.

Carranza's war chest will be increased by $3,000,000 within a few days a pool of American manufacturers having raised that much to purchase the Yucatan sisal recently confiscated by the "first chief's" agents.

Dispatches to the state department today stated that martial law prevails in Mexico City but that the capital is quiet.

There has been considerable skirmishing in the vicinity of Tampico.

SIX-LINE MERGER OF OREGON ROADS

Announcement of Formal Change Made By Officials At Stop in Eugene On Long Inspection Trip

Eugene, Or., March 24.—The formal taking over of the Southern Pacific Company of the Portland, Eugene and Eastern, the Willamette Pacific, the Salem, Falls City and Western, the Pacific Railroad and Navigation Company, the Coos Bay, Roseburg and Eastern Railroad and Navigation Company, and the Corvallis and Eastern will occur April 7, according to railroad officials who passed through Eugene last night.

At this time the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Pacific company will be held at the office of the railroad in Beecmont, Jefferson county, Kentucky. This is a town of 300 persons, but it is the nominal head of the great railroad system, so far as the corporation is concerned.

The stock in all these railroads is held by the Southern Pacific, the secondary companies being formed for construction purposes. At present the Willamette Pacific from Eugene to Mapleton is being operated by the construction department of the Willamette Pacific, and the Portland, Eugene and Eastern is operated under a separate organization.

Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of directors, William Sproule, president of the company, and William Hood, chief engineer, stopped for a few moments in Eugene on their way South last night. They followed the Shasta Limited, passing through Eugene shortly after 9 o'clock.

Christian Sunday School Has Large Membership

A Sunday school with a membership of 500 would have the proud distinction of being the largest Sunday school in the state of Oregon. This is the ambition of the Bible school of the First Christian church, and in order to secure this membership an 800 club has been formed. The attendance last Sunday was about 450, and in order to bring the membership up to 800 for next Sunday, members of the various classes are out securing pledges of attendance. Prizes will be given to those securing the greatest number of pledges. The occasion of this special effort is the closing Sunday of the revival services that have been held in the church by the Rev. A. L. Crim.

As an aid in the services of the Sunday school, the work of the orchestra is of special value. The members of the orchestra are as follows: Miss Mary Schultz, first violin; Frank Frickey, second violin; Bert Kennedy, flute; Miss Hedda Swart, clarinet; Frank Zinn, trombone; Miss Ruth Brown, piano; Rev. F. T. Porter, cornet.

JITNEY WAR IN TACOMA.

Tacoma, Wash., March 24.—War has broken out in the ranks of the jitney bus drivers here. When an unorganized auto bus began operating on Center street today, the organized drivers assigned three "free buses" on that thoroughfare.

The organized machines follow the independent buses and attempt to secure passengers at street corners, carrying them free of charge.

"We are determined," said one of the organized drivers, "to bring all jitney drivers into our organization. We will either bring them in or put them out of business. The association is paying for our gasoline and allowing us wages for our time in the fight with the unorganized drivers."

EX-SALOONKEEPER'S DEATH.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 24.—Whether J. F. Gaul, a well-to-do ex-saloonkeeper, committed suicide or was murdered and his body hanged in an abandoned piano factory here, is still a mystery today. Gaul, a Frenchman, was identified by friends many hours after his body was discovered. His financial affairs were prosperous and no reason is known why he should have taken his life.

MARSHALL TALKS ON RECLAMATION WORK

Vice President Favors Legitimate Projects But Opposes Wildcat Schemes

San Francisco, March 24.—The congress of the United States does not object to large and liberal appropriations for the reclamation of arid lands and for the improvement of waterways in order to convey the products of this country from point to point; but the congress of the United States does object to the spending of the people's money in some project where a man, after the drainage has been accomplished, can walk like the children of Israel dry shod through the ditch.

Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall thus expressed his views in favor of reclamation projects and waterways that will be of no real value in concluding an address before the convention of the California Inland Waterways association in session here. The vice-president was one of a number of prominent men who will address the delegates during their sessions here. His speech consisted of what he called a "few desultory remarks" in which he promised his auditors to "talk quite a while on a subject of which I know nothing."

"There will be no trouble about waterways," he said, "if you will get your facts and have your experts speak honestly. You will receive from the general government not only its full share but more than its share of the necessary means to accomplish your project. But I am going to say just this: An expert ought not to hit the pipe; he should not have pipe dreams about what can be accomplished by waterways. It is not only necessary for waterways to have a channel, but it is necessary to have water."

The vice-president discussed many phases of American life. He urged careful conservation of the natural resources.

"We are a right speedy people," he declared. "Even for the farming classes of the central west the railroad is too slow. I don't know whether it is a good thing or not, but I believe the time is near at hand when we are going to slow down or we are going mad. We cannot keep up the pace forever. The era is going to dawn upon America when the thing you do not need on your breakfast table tomorrow morning will not be sent by express or fast freight but by the slower process of the waterways."

The vice-president said he wanted it understood that he was "not running a tilt with the railroads of America nor proclaiming myself as in favor of government ownership of railroads." That is a question for the future to solve, he said.

"People speak of our waste of timber and wearing out of our soil," he said at one point, "and we have been impressed with the idea that the great waste is material waste. But of recent years we have awakened to the fact that the real waste in America is waste of life of the men and women of America."

Secretary of the Interior Lane was to have spoken this afternoon, but it was announced that he would probably leave the city for the Imperial Valley making this address impossible. Senator Phelan followed Marshall.

Local Strike Leaders Admit Kean Is Right

Seattle, Wash., March 24.—The statement made yesterday in San Francisco by President John Kean, of the Pacific coast division of riggers and stevedores' union, who said the Seattle longshoremen's strike had not been sanctioned by the district officers, was not denied by officials of the Seattle local today.

Walter Barry, of the local union, was informed of the charges, his laconic answer was that "Kean is about right."

The strike here occurred when the employers refused to submit to a demand of a plan to hire men in rotation. The employers declare this simply constituted a plan to give jobs to men now out of work on account of the Vancouver strike. The longshoremen assert their plan was one tending toward a better distribution of work until business picks up.

MAY SETTLE STRIKE.

Seattle, Wash., March 24.—In the hope of mediating the differences between the Seattle Longshoremen's union and the waterfront employers, a conference was begun at 10 o'clock this morning in the Seattle hotel between Roland B. Mahony, United States commissioner of conciliation; T. V. O'Connor, international president of the longshoremen's union; J. A. Mattson, of Portland; W. E. Seaming, of Prince Rupert, and F. J. Bunting, of Seattle, officers of the longshoremen's coast unions.

BANKING METHODS WERE PATRIARCHAL

Evidence Being Taken In the Trial of Sheridan, Former Roseburg Banker

Portland, Ore., March 24.—Patriarchal banking methods was disclosed in United States district court here today before Judge Rudkin in the trial of Thomas R. Sheridan, of Roseburg, accused of abstracting money from the deposits of the First National bank of this city, of which he was president.

Old friends and neighbors of Sheridan told of telling him to lend them money for them, leaving the rest to him and never bothering as to whom the money was loaned.

In some instances the evidence admitted by Sheridan's attorney, C. W. Fulton, tended to show that Sheridan came money to himself.

When the First National, with the spirit of its charter pending, consolidated with the Douglas National Bank of Roseburg, in June, 1911, some of the depositors applying to the latter bank found that their deposits had not been transferred.

Mr. Lora M. Verrill, of Edenbower, near Roseburg, testified that $3000 in her account in the bank was taken by President Sheridan on April 15, 1911, without authority, the notation in the bank ledger being "Loaned by T. M. Sheridan." The witness is 66 years old. The defense contends due authorization for the use of the money was made.

Mr. Carlton also signed a certificate releasing the bank and giving authority to Mr. Sheridan. He said the bank president told him:

"It's all right; sign it. It's only to satisfy that fellow Goodhart."

It was sought by the defense to impeach the testimony of this witness.

Charles A. Stewart, chief clerk in the office of the controller of the currency, Washington, D. C., testified regarding the issuance of a charter to the bank and details.

Seattle Officers Locate "Drug Plant" Near City

Seattle, Wash., Mar. 24.—Seattle detectives have located a drug "plant," an hour's ride from the city by trolley, which, they declare, was established just before March 1, when the federal drug law went into effect, and which supplies drugs to "fiends" at an enormous profit.

Detectives Majewski and Binachi Tuesday arrested H. D. Matthews and Kenneth Brown, and found in their possession small quantities of morphine, yessake, a derivative of opium.

Later the detectives visited the rooms of the prisoners in a Pike street lodging house and found more drugs and hypodermic needles.

The police believe Matthews and Brown are agents of the "plant" and have made frequent trips there to replenish their stock of drugs.

One "fiend" has told the police he paid $5 for a single "snuff of coke."

The penalty for violation of the new federal law is five years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both.

Cashier of Oakland Cafe Robbed of $1600

Oakland, Cal., March 23.—Roy Reed, cashier of the Forum Cafe in Broadway here, was struck down by a burglar in his office on the mezzanine floor today and robbed of $1600.

After he had felled the cashier the burglar walked to the cigar stand of the cafe, purchased a cigar, lighted it, walked to the street, entered an automobile in waiting and was driven away.

It was not until after he had departed the cashier was removed to a local hospital. It was found that the injury was a severe one, though the skull is not fractured.

At the time of the robbery there were fifty persons in the place and hundreds of people wera passing. The police have no clue.

"PEG O' MY HEART" LIKE RAY OF SUNSHINE

Just like a ray of sunshine the J. Hartley Manners' comedy of youth "Peg O' My Heart" returns to its original home on the Pacific coast with virtually the same cast with the exception of Peggy O'Neil in place of Laurette Taylor, that made this play famous. Oliver Morosco the producer, has succeeded in eclipsing all long engagements during the world's record run of two years, of this piece in New York, at the Cort theatre; as well as during his season record engagement at

Splendid Production At Oregon Today

Today, at the Oregon theatre, one of the most gorgeous and spectacular productions will be presented in "The Seats of the Mighty," a seven-act play from the book of that name by Sir Gilbert Parker. Lionel Barrymore, who portrays the leading role, is one of the most popular stars in the theatrical world, and he is supported by a cast of well known Broadway favorites. The production cost over $25,000 to produce and the costuming and scenic effects are elaborate. This production the Garrick theatre, in Chicago. The same cast and production will be brought here for one night on Saturday, March 27.

PEGGY O'NEIL, AS PEG, IN "PEG O' MY HEART," AT THE GRAND SATURDAY MARCH 27TH.

The story is pretty generally known, of the trials of this modern Cinderella who has been transplanted into the ultra-aristocratic family the Chichesters, relatives who are taking the charge of her education for the sum of a thousand pounds a year, which is provided by the will of a wealthy uncle of Peg's. Her miserable treatment and strict attention to her upbringing, and the snubs of her cousins who can't see any good in the quaint little Irish girl who has the advantage of their social viewpoint, but rather a natural angle on life that is both true and wise.

The three acts of the comedy develop the humor, pathos and tenderness of the situation, finally culminating in Peg's running away to a dance, and her frustration of her haughty cousin's elopement with a married man. The harshness and misunderstanding that follows this episode determines the little alien to quit the house in which she has been so unhappy. There is a Prince Charming in Mr. Manners' romance, however, and Peg loves him. In the last act he learns of her love and she glories in his devotion and the curtain goes down on dear old Tom Moore's text "Oh, there's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream" realized before your eyes.

The first receipt for a prisoner delivered at the penitentiary under the administration of Harry Minto as warden, was given out yesterday to Sheriff William Esch of this county. A. B. Cook was the prisoner and thus closed his career in this city with a small slip of paper showing that one prisoner had been turned over in good order to serve out an indeterminate sentence.
