Trial Of Sebastian Involves Dr. Brougher

Los Angeles, April 20.—The trial of Former Chief of Police Sebastian was resumed today.

Immediately after taking the bench this morning Judge Wood, at the request of the district attorney, postponed arguments on a demurrer to an indictment charging Victoria Desparte with perjury. Testifying before the grand jury, Miss Desparte accused Sebastian of contributing to her dependency. Later, in a sworn statement, she said that her accusations were false. The court then continued until Monday the arraignment of Sebastian and Earl Rogers, his attorney, on a charge of attempting to intimidate the grand jury by writing a letter to its members.

The opposing attorneys then argued a demurrer to the indictment charging Sebastian with contributing to the dependency of Victoria Desparte and Cecile Livingston. Judge Wood took the matter under advisement. During the morning session four more jurors were secured, leaving but three additional seats to be filled permanently. The defense promptly passed for cause the men that remained in the jury box at that time, and after a brief conference the prosecution acted similarly. The defense then exercised its fifth and sixth peremptory challenges and the state ousted the third man from the box by exercising its fourth.

When the noon recess was taken shortly after twelve o'clock it was apparent that there was little chance of securing the jury before late this afternoon. The Rev. James Whiteside Brougher, pastor of Temple Baptist church, one of the largest churches in Los Angeles, was subpoenaed today to appear before the grand jury. The minister, who formerly was pastor of a large church at Portland, Ore., preached a sermon last Sunday in which he scored the prosecution of Sebastian. It was expected that he would be asked to explain his utterances.

Case Against Chandler of Times Is Resumed

Los Angeles, Cal., April 20.—The case of Harry Chandler, one of the publishers of the Los Angeles Times and six other defendants, charged with conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States by recruiting men for military service in a foreign country, will be resumed Monday before Federal Judge Trippett.

When the case was called for trial late yesterday various technicalities combined to delay the entering of the pleas of the defendants. Attorneys for Chandler called for a complete list of witnesses who testified before the federal grand jury that indicted their client. The request was opposed bitterly by the government. Judge Trippett will decide the point when the trial is resumed.

Ralph A. Watson on May 1, has announced the appointment of J. G. Richardson, of Portland, to succeed Sidney B. Vincent, traveling auditor of the department under Commissioner Watson, who resigned about a month ago to accept a lucrative position with a big Portland realty company. Mr. Richardson, the new traveling auditor, is a former Salem boy. He came to Oregon from Minnesota in 1893 and attended the public schools here, afterward moving to Portland where he finished his public school education. He is a graduate of the Oregon law school and was admitted to practice in 1909. He has been associated with George Tazewell, a Portland attorney in the practice of law. Before taking up law he was engaged in the mining business with his father, J. J. Richardson.

Mayor and Mrs. Albee, of Portland, accompanied by an architect, came up to Salem this morning and made an inspection of some of the state institutions around Salem for the purpose of getting ideas for the construction of a building which the city of Portland contemplates putting up in the near future. They were driven to the different institutions by Secretary R. B. Goodin, of the state board of control, in his automobile.

Among the many fishing parties who bled themselves to the mountain streams last Sunday in quest of the sportive and festive trout, from this city, was that composed of Dr. Frank Griffith and Secretary of State O'Leary and Dr. E. D. Lewis, Roscoe Ames, and William Eisenhart, of Silverton. They went by automobile to the head waters of the Abiqua, and although the fish did not "bite" as well as they should have under normal conditions, they report a catch of 216 fine trout some of which measured 10 inches and better. In common with other fishermen who have been out during the past week they report the streams swollen with cold water from the melting snow in the mountains and this accounts for the indifference of the fish to rise to the bait or lure.

C. C. Chapman, of Portland, former state immigration agent under whose personal direction the two editions of the Oregon Almanac were published under authority of the state immigration commission, was in Salem on business today. Since resigning his position of manager of the Portland commercial club, prior to the consolidation with the chamber of commerce, Mr. Chapman is launching under the field of journalism with the publication of a new political magazine under the title of "Oregon Voter," the first issue of which he expects to get out within a

LEGION OF FRIENDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO JOS. HARRIS

Remains Are Laid To Rest Under Most Solemn and Tender Auspices

One of the largest and most impressive funerals to have been held in this city in many months was that attendant upon the burial of the late Joseph Harris which took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The funeral services proper were conducted in the Elks hall, in the Elks building on North Liberty street, under the auspices of the Salem lodge of Elks, and the burial ceremony at the graveside was performed under the auspices of the Mnsions. The funeral sermon was preached at the Elks hall by Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of the Jewish synagogue of Portland. The Elks hall was crowded to its fullest capacity upon the occasion of the services and the lodge rostrum and the casket were literally covered and banked with the great number of handsome and expensive floral offerings, which gave mute but deliciously sweet testimony of the high regard in which the deceased was held in the community and among his fellow hog dealers and lodgemen. Among these most conspicuous was a huge floral blanket, 9x12 feet in dimensions, and composed of roses, carnations, spirea and sweet peas, the loving tribute of the hop leaders of the state, two masonic emblems, that of the shrimers and the masonic order, and other beautiful offerings of a symbolic nature too numerous to describe separately.

The ceremonies at the Elks hall were opened by a song by Mrs. W. Carlton Smith, followed by the Elks impressive ritualistic service, which also embraced a vocal selection by Mrs. Smith, and were concluded by the Jewish service pronounced by Rabbi Wise. Following this the funeral cortege, composed of scores of automobiles and carriages, wended its way to the Odd Fellows cemetery and the remains were laid to their final rest in the mausoleum under the auspices of the Masonic order, the service being most solemnly conducted by Senior Warden Hal V. Bolam, acting master of the lodge upon this occasion. Scores of friends followed the remains to the graveside and paid their last tribute to the departed and friends and acquaintances came many miles in all directions to pay their respects to the deceased and offer consolation to the bereaved wife and children.

The hop dealers of the state were in attendance at the funeral in a body, fully a score having come up from Portland. Among those of the deceased's closest friends from the metropolis were: Charles M. Werner, A. J. Rae, Alva Zeller, George Irwin, Ross Wood, Julius Wolf, J. W. Seavie, Mr. Perkins, Mr. Smith, T. L. McNeff, J. J. Metzler, Harry L. Hart, Julius Pineus and McKinley Mitchell. H. A. Talbot, Louis Lachmann, Harry L. Hart, Clarence Stutzman, Julius Pineus and Oscar McClellan, acted as pall bearers, and all of the other hop dealers were honorary pall bearers.

The following tribute is dedicated to the loving memory of Joseph Harris by a member of the Salem lodge of Elks: "A sorrow flutters o'er our Lodge and our Club today, For a member and a brother has departed his way. Our Maker, in his wisdom, has chosen to call A loved member from the portals of our Hall. No longer shall we hear his cheerful greeting. Or find his welcome presence at our meeting. His portrait we will place with those who have gone before; His name upon our memorial roll, of those who answer no more. But in our memory, for time to come we will cherish Thoughts of his loving character, nor permit to perish The remembrance, that our lives, if we but try Can be as his; charitable, loving and of character high."

To go fishing with the regulation rod, hook and bait and return with a ten and a half pound wild cat, fell to the lot of Walter Fisher, who handles the elevator at the United States National bank building. While he was looking for a good place to fish in the Keiser Bottoms Sunday, his two dogs tread a wild cat pretty close to the spot where Walter wanted to fish. Being somewhat of a Murthewson when it comes to throwing straight, he brought the wild cat down at the first throw and the dogs did the rest. He brought the cat home with him to prove this story, knowing that the average fisherman is liable to exaggerate.
