COLONEL RIDES ROUGH SHOD OVER ATTORNEYS

and help to defeat such legislation, he told me. "This conversation took place in Washington or at Oyster Bay prior to the nomination of Hughes." The defense has stacks of letters which Roosevelt had received from Barnes, many of which were read into the record. Colonel Roosevelt completed his direct testimony at 3:40 this afternoon. Colonel Roosevelt was examined by his attorneys at 3:40, his direct examination apparently having ended. He was recalled within a few minutes, however, for further questioning. The colonel sprang a distinct sensation toward the close of his testimony by a new charge as to the alleged partnership existing between Barnes and "Chief" Murphy, head of the democratic Tammany Hall organization. Roosevelt declared that William Leah, Jr., went to Barnes to discuss with him a possible successor for Chaney M. Dewey in the senate. Leah, the colonel said, asked Barnes to support an anti-machine democrat. Barnes replied that he could not do this, as he had promised Murphy a free hand in the election of a senator. Touching upon the graft charges incident to the last gubernatorial campaign in New York, Roosevelt said former Governor William Sulzer came to see him and asked that he get John A. Hennessy's help in a fight upon Murphy. He said Hennessy disclosed the graft made famous by the Sulzer scandal and asked Roosevelt to direct a non-partisan ticket to smash both the republican and democratic machines.

Testimony Is Excluded. The court excluded a large volume of testimony which the defense desired to introduce, including portions of a report made as to conditions in Albany, Barnes' headquarters. The colonel said he believed the findings of this report could be relied upon, but Justice Andrews held that reference in this document to vice conditions in the local government of Albany were not admissible. He declared only such portions as related to alleged graft in state and county printing could be admitted.

The request, however, precipitated a prolonged discussion regarding the inadequacy of the auditorium for public gatherings of that sort on account of the poor acoustics of the hall and the lack of proper stage settings, scenery and properties in general. It was admitted that it was difficult to hear very distinctly from the rear of the auditorium, but it was not believed that the acoustics can be improved upon. The board, however, was opposed to paying out money for the rent of the opera house when the auditorium was available and provided expressly for the purpose of eliminating the rental charge for school entertainments, recitals, etc., and it was also the sense of the board that better scenery and stage properties should be furnished, provided somebody should be placed in charge of it and be responsible for its care and preservation. It was also ascertained that the auditorium is already provided with a considerable amount of scenery and stage equipment, in a good state of preservation, which can be used to good advantage upon the occasion of the graduation exercises and play to be staged.

GRAD. EXERCISES MUST BE HELD IN H. S. AUDITORIUM

School Board Refuses To Consider Request To Rent Grand Opera House

The board of directors of the Salem district last evening reiterated their determination to stand by the rule, adopted about a year ago, to the effect that all entertainments of whatsoever nature to be given under the auspices of the Salem high school must be held in the high school auditorium, when it turned down, or rather declined to consider or take action upon, the request of the senior high school class for permission to hold the graduation exercises at the opera house instead of at the auditorium.

The request, however, precipitated a prolonged discussion regarding the inadequacy of the auditorium for public gatherings of that sort on account of the poor acoustics of the hall and the lack of proper stage settings, scenery and properties in general. It was admitted that it was difficult to hear very distinctly from the rear of the auditorium, but it was not believed that the acoustics can be improved upon. The board, however, was opposed to paying out money for the rent of the opera house when the auditorium was available and provided expressly for the purpose of eliminating the rental charge for school entertainments, recitals, etc., and it was also the sense of the board that better scenery and stage properties should be furnished, provided somebody should be placed in charge of it and be responsible for its care and preservation. It was also ascertained that the auditorium is already provided with a considerable amount of scenery and stage equipment, in a good state of preservation, which can be used to good advantage upon the occasion of the graduation exercises and play to be staged.

Barrel of Water Falls, Crushing Miner

Redding, Cal., April 21.—A barrel of water rolling into the shaft of the Gladstone mine near French Gulch today, fell seven hundred feet to the bottom and crushed William Hooper, 44, a shift boss, to death. Hooper had just stepped from the cage when the barrel came hurtling through space and struck him. He was instantly killed. Hooper leaves a bride of a year and an infant child. A sister, Miss Ella Hooper, lives in San Francisco.

WANTS TO BUILD CHIMNEY AROUND 25-INCH "HOLE"

School Board Decides To Pass Chinese Puzzle Up To An Attorney

One thing is settled and certain: The Salem school board wants to build a "hole" for a chimney at least 25 inches in the clear, inside measurement. But how to specify for the construction of a chimney around that "hole" and not get into a worse "hole" than they now find themselves in is the serious problem with which the board is confronted. Before getting into any more serious legal entanglement than they are already involved they have decided to "pass the buck" to an attorney.

Another chapter of the high school chimney comedy-drama was rehearsed by the Salem school board in adjourned session last evening and came very near being made a matter of record. As it was, after about an hour's discussion pro and con, it ended as it usually does, with no progress made, and the building and grounds committee is still authorized to make a proposition to Contractor Hughes as a basis of settlement. If Mr. Hughes accepts the committee's proposition it will be drawn up in writing to the board for ratification. Mr. Hughes will also make a proposition, and, if they cannot agree, then what?

Walter C. Winslow, counsel for Contractor Hughes, at the solicitation of one of the members appeared before the board, and an effort was made to arrive at an understanding and basis of settlement. Mr. Winslow, on behalf of Mr. Hughes, offered to construct the second chimney and allow for the enlarged inside dimensions demanded by the board for the same price as the one built and the cause of all of the trouble if the board will accept the reconstructed chimney at contract price. This was not satisfactory to the board, so an effort was made to frame a proposition in the form of a report of the committee in order to bring the matter formally before the board for consideration and action, but they became so involved in technicalities and phrasology until they were literally lost in a labyrinth of intricate details, and finally gave the matter up as a bad job and concluded to have it drawn up right by an attorney so that they would know "where they were at" and not become involved in another long-winded controversy.

The proposition which the building committee proposes to put up to Mr. Hughes is that the board accept the chimney built at a reduction of $125 on the contract price (which is practically a 20 per cent penalty), the board to pay 25 cents per cubic foot for the concrete bases added to the foundation of the chimneys over the specifications and the stipulated price for the extra three feet added to the height of the chimney above that called for by the plans and specifications. Then it came to the specifications for the second chimney, and there is where the board "stuck." They were certain that the wanted the inside dimensions 25 inches in the clear but they did not know what outside dimensions that would require or how to specify how the chimney should be built around the 25-inch "hole" without referring to the original contract and specifications, which they desired above all things to avoid, and they finally decided to wipe out all records of the transaction and to "let George do it."

The question of the header courses, which were left out of the reconstructed chimney, also came up for further discussion, and the deeper the board got into it the more serious the complications seemed. It was pointed out that the failure of the contractor to "keystone" or bind the arch of the inner lining of brick around the intake flue might cause the entire inside of the flue to collapse through deterioration, and the more the matter was discussed the more alarmed some of the members became over what might happen, that it is not altogether improbable that the whole chimney might be condemned and rejected and the contractor ordered to tear it down and build it over again. It is believed, however, that this alleged defect can be remedied by the contractor without great difficulty or loss.

Testimony was taken today in the case of John F. Dawes against Nels O. Tokstad, an action to recover a portion of land seven feet wide at one end and 16 feet wide at the other, which it is alleged is wrongfully withheld by the defendant. The complaint declares that the plaintiff has been dispossessed and that the defendant continues to withhold the land by force and threats. He asks $150 general damages and $300 for expenses necessary in determining the exact division line between the two properties.

The defense alleged that the land was held formerly by Milla A. Killin and Lettie May Durant, who agreed to sell a certain piece of land to the contending parties. In this agreement it was decided that the plaintiff should take the easterly and the defendant the westerly section as the owners should divide it and establish the line. It is declared by the plaintiff that the fence was moved 10 feet on south side of the plot. The defense says that the fence erected in 1910 is still standing on the line and is the true boundary.

Complaint was filed this morning by Elva Armstrong against Sylvester Armstrong for a divorce. She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment to such a degree that life is unbearable. She charges him with associating with lewd and notorious women at various times and with escapades on automobile rides to Independence and Corvallis. There is one child, Dale, aged 6 years, for whom she asks $20 per month alimony and $5000 permanent alimony for herself.

In an action to recover a certain piece of land alleged to be wrongfully held by the Oregon Electric company, the jury yesterday afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, Anna Armstrong. The jury also assessed the defendant company $500 as damages.

By a stipulation in court this morning in the case of E. W. May against D. D. Steele and Belle Steele, an action to recover money for professional services rendered, it was agreed that the defendant, Belle Steele, should pay the plaintiff the sum of $95. In regard to D. D. Steele, the case was dismissed.

Divorce proceedings were begun yesterday in the circuit court for Marion county by Lillian M. Anderson against Charles H. Anderson. The complaint states the two were married in Colorado in 1909 and that no children are concerned. Cruel and inhuman treatment is the charge.

HIGH SCHOOL CLUB MAY "PRESENT MR. SHAW" AT CHURCH

If "Mr. Shaw" Had Been a Drama There Would Be "Nothin' Doin'"

Is "Mr. Clement B. Shaw" some kind of a play? Believing that he or "it" was, the school board last evening decided not to grant the request of the high school dramatic club to present "it" in some local church instead of the high school auditorium. Their minds having been disabused of this conclusion and enlightened to the fact that "Mr. Clement B. Shaw" was a noted voice culturist of Portland and that he had been engaged by the high school dramatic club to deliver a public lecture here next Friday evening illustrating and demonstrating with xylophone and piano and wanted to hold the meeting where more room and better acoustics could be obtained, the board gracefully withdrew their objection and granted the request.

When the request was first read by Superintendent Elliott to the board from the dramatic club the board naturally came to the conclusion, in the absence of an explanation, that "Mr. Clement B. Shaw" was the title of some opera or drama that the dramatic club was rehearsing and that the members of the club desired to "get under" the moral and guiding influence of the school and get off to themselves for a frolic unchaperoned. The directors felt that the parents of the club members might justly call them to account for a lapse of responsibility and, upon motion of Director White, seconded by Mr. Barnes, the request was denied. The truth of who and what "Mr. Clement B. Shaw" was and the nature of his proposed "presentation" was finally explained when the board hastily reconsidered its action and gave unanimous consent to the request. The action of refusal was ordered expunged from the records.

Seriously, however, Mr. Clement B. Shaw is a noted instructor in dramatic and operatic voice culture and is retained for that purpose by one of the leading Portland theatres. He has been the leading Portland dramatic club justly feels fortunate in securing his valuable services, to deliver a lecture on voice culture in public for the benefit of the members of the dramatic club next Friday evening and elaborate arrangements are being made for his entertainment while in the city and for accommodations for the large audience which he is certain to attract. For many reasons, principal among which is the limited room and poor acoustics, it was decided that the high school auditorium was not adequate to the occasion and the club has secured permission to present Mr. Shaw at the First Christian church, and this was the purpose of the request. The school board expressed themselves as only too pleased to grant the request and as being inclined to show the dramatic club every courtesy and encouragement within their power. The lecture will be free, it is understood.

It's a woman's imagination that keeps her young—if she imagines people can't see through a coat of paint. Heved was in Salem. When he appeared, they took to their heels like mice before a cat. Two of the lads, the scrapper and a witness, appeared in police court this morning and were given a lecture about loitering in Chinatown. It was brought out that the fight had been in progress ever since the morning, the rounds being in various parts of the city and always interrupted by some older person.

CAN'T SERVE ON JURY. Capitol, Sacramento, Cal., April 21.—After being locked up in executive session for more than an hour with the expectation of hearing obscure testimony from criminal trials, the senate this afternoon by a vote of 17 to 20 defeated the Butler bill giving women the right to serve on juries. The bill had carried last week. The "spick" testimony about to be used as an argument against women serving on juries was not read.
