BASEBALL CONTROVERSY ENDED.
 Salt Lake, Utah, April 22.—The controversy between J. E. Langford, owner of Majestic Park, and the directors of the Salt Lake Pacific Coast baseball club, was settled today when Langford was told that if he didn't behave the Bees would not lease his ball lot any longer. President Frank Murphy of the club informed Langford that he would start building a park of his own tomorrow unless Langford yielded. Langford declared the club had not paid its rent and then objected to the language used by the groundkeeper and asked for his arrest. The police refused unless Langford swore out a warrant. Langford then served notice on the club to vacate. Murphy is a millionaire lumberman, and when he said he would build a park of his own, Langford was convinced he meant it. Consequently Langford agreed today to let well enough alone.
