COLORED GIANTS FALL BEFORE SALEM SQUAD

Contest Marked By Heavy Hitting of Both Teams-- Best Game of Season

Too many errors caused the downfall of the Colored Giants yesterday when the Senators pulled out on the long end of a 19 to 4 score. The large score does not indicate that it was not a good game because both teams played good ball in spots and everybody hit the ball. From the spectators' standpoint it was the best game played in Salem this year.

The Giants started the first inning off with a run and Salem duplicated in the third when Miller scored on Craig's next single. In the first half of the fifth the Giants added two more when Lundy who batted in Harper's place poked one into the creek with two on bases. The Senators woke up about this time and West opened the inning with a two bagger. Wilson walked and Miller stopped one with his ribs. West scored when the catcher dropped the return of Bell's grounder and Miller and Wilson registered on Humphries single. Salem registered three more in the seventh on a hit by Craig, Wilson and Bell and a wild throw by Claxton, the dusky twirler, who tried to catch Bell off second. The colored lads lost confidence when Benson, their catcher, hurt his hand on one of Claxton's shoots and this inning took the wind out of their sails. The next inning Salem rang up three more when Jones hit for one base and Bell added another single which permitted the smokers to make three errors. Jones, Miller and Craig crossed the plate. Lewis, the colored first baseman, doubled in the last frame and scored on a sacrifice fly.

Benson, the darky backstop, spit a pair of fingers on his throwing hand in the fourth inning and was relieved by Hubbard. The new catcher was unable to handle Claxton's benders and several runs were due to the receiving department alone.

BREWERY CHANGED TO BY-PRODUCTS INDUSTRY

Will Manufacture Loganberry Juice As a Specialty and By-Products of All Fruits--Will Co-operate With Farmers Through Fruit Union--Means Millions to Fruit Industry--Also Cold Storage Business

With the filing of articles of incorporation for the Northwest Fruit Products company with the corporation commissioner in the morning, the old Salem Brewery association, for many years and up to the time the prohibition laws swept the state from end to end, one of the leading and most prosperous industries of the Capital City, ceased to exist and another taken its place, which, if the plans of its incorporators and promoters are realized, will become equally as prosperous and profitable. It will give employment to scores of people and will prove one of the greatest boons to the fruit industry of the Willamette valley in particular and the state of Oregon in general than any other one thing that has been established in connection with the fruit industry since the introduction of the fruit evaporator.

Worth Millions to Fruit Industry.
While the principal aim of the new corporation, which takes over the property of the brewery association in entirety, is to engage in the loganberry juice industry upon an extensive scale, it will engage in a general fruit preserving business. It will be worth millions of dollars eventually to the loganberry industry alone, which is practically a new industry and the limits of which are unknown—being still in the rudimentary stages of experimentation—and from a by-products point of view there appears to be no limit to its field of activity and productivity. The new industry will be capitalized at $75,000 and the incorporators of record are Kola Neis, Frank T. Schmidt and Frank G. Deckebach. The new concern enters upon its mission for the extension and development of the fruit industry immediately.

The formal transfer of the property of the old Salem Brewery association to the Northwest Fruit Products company took place last Saturday but negotiations have been pending for several weeks and thousands of dollars have been expended in converting the mechanical equipment of the brewery into such as the new enterprise will need in its undertaking. Experiments have also been made in the manufacture of a palatable and commercial brand of loganberry juice, in a quality and form which will prove popular and create a demand, and these have advanced to a point where the promoters feel satisfied the product will be a success and they will enter into the manufacture of the juice during the coming season upon an extensive scale.

Has Comparatively Unlimited Capacity.
The old buildings and plant of the old brewery over more than a block of space and all of the space available will be conserved for the future growth and development of the new industry. The capacity of the plant for loganberry juice manufacture is limited only by the demand and, if the demand is equal to the expectations of the manufacturers it will probably remain the most important product. However, the company intends to branch out into the manufacture of jellies, jams, marshmallows, and all imaginable kinds of by-products of fruits of all varieties upon an extensive scale. The company intends to work up some strawberries into jellies, jams, etc. but not very many this year and is preparing to engage in the manufacture of by-products of raspberries, blackberries, peaches, apples, etc., upon a large scale.

Will Purchase Through Fruit Union.
The company is organized and will be conducted along conservative business lines, all of its products will be put up in the latest scientific and most sanitary manner and all of its business, from the purchasing standpoint, will be done through the medium of the Salem Fruit Union and strictly union prices will be paid for all products. The promoters of the new enterprise endorse the organization of the fruit growers through the Salem Fruit Union and will lend every encouragement to organized and co-operative growing and marketing of fruits of all kinds.

Producing, Preparing for Market and Marketing Farm, Dairy, Orchard or Other Fruit Products and Their By-Products.
"The manufacture and disposal of beverages, ice and refrigeration; the operation of warehouse and storages, the buying, selling, leasing, renting or otherwise acquiring, holding, and disposing of real estate and personal property, including stocks, bonds, or any other obligations of other corporations, etc., and to invest, devise, manufacture, purchase, acquire, and use secret processes or articles protected by patents and trade-marks, and to apply for, register and procure patents and trade-marks granting exclusive rights to make, sell and use articles and processes."

Progressive and Public Spirited Owners.
The company will engage in a general cold storage business and will be prepared to handle and care for great quantities of fruits of all kinds, butter, eggs and other farm products such as grains, and especially seed grains, and their building will be thoroughly fire-proof and sanitary in every particular and provided with the best of conveniences. All of the incorporators and those associated with them are well-known and substantial business men of Salem and, as in the past, will spare no effort or expense in the legitimate and conservative upbuilding of Salem and her resources and industries and those of the surrounding country.

Watching the Scoreboard

With twin bills Sunday and a come back today with the same line of amusement, there are great chances of someone in the Coast league walking up tomorrow easily bumped.
For instance, the Cubs, being treasured twice by the Tigers Sunday, have great prospects of having the same honor thrust on them today. The Tigers have won five out of the seven first games played away from home with Doc White as director of ceremonies.
Four home runs were driven out dur-
