LOGANBERRY GROWERS PLAN A GIGANTIC POOL

Final Effort To Be Made To Get Outstanding Crops Into Organization For the Purpose of Frustrating Designs of Short-Seller and Salvation of the Industry—Will Establish Organization and Selling Offices In Salem

To consolidate the pools of the Salem Fruit Union and H. S. Gile & Co. into one and throw it open to receive all of the acreage now outstanding so as to form one gigantic pool of the entire product of the state and to include all of this year's crop, outside of that already contracted to canneries, into one gigantic pool, is the proposition which will be put up to the loganberry growers of the Willamette valley and the state in attendance at the big convention of the loganberry growers' association, in session at the Salem Fruit Union this afternoon.

The object is to get every available crop in the state into the organization, whether the growers belong to the Loganberry Growers' association, the Salem Fruit Union, the Willamette Valley Prune Growers' association, or the Gile & Co. pool, so as to enter absolute control of the entire evaporated crop of loganberries into the growers' association and to establish and maintain a uniform price which will net the producer fair profit upon his investment and labor.

In order to make this plan successful it is proposed to open up headquarters in Salem for the Loganberry Growers' association with a competent salaried man in charge, to manage all of the affairs of the big pool, and to organize local associations in every section in which the berries are produced all to be a part of and affiliated with and to enjoy the benefits of the state organization.

This plan was tentatively decided upon at a special meeting of the board of directors of the association, which was held in the blue room at the commercial club this morning, after a conference with the officials of the Fruit Union and Gile & Co. and was presented by President Keene to the growers assembled at the Fruit Union headquarters this afternoon. Although not definitely decided upon it is understood that this plan is agreeable to the Fruit Union and Gile & Co. pool officials and, if adopted by the growers this afternoon, spells success to marketing of the crop this year. If all of the growers do not come in and some hold out to dump their product upon the market indiscriminately and without regard to price or quality it means utter demoralization to the market and grave danger of serious disruption and disorganization for the future.

In checking over the situation this morning it was found that there is not to exceed three or four carloads of loganberries to be grown in the state this year outside of the two pools and not contracted to canneries. This is not a very considerable amount in comparison to the total yield for the state or district but when it is taken into consideration that the dumping of even one of these carloads upon the market at a price below that fixed by the association and other pools, 20 cents for the evaporated product, it can be readily understood what a chaotic and uncertain condition of market it will produce.

For the purpose of avoiding this very thing, which happened last year to the serious loss and regret of the growers who were making an effort to secure a fair profit upon their product, is the purpose of the movement proposed at today's meeting. It has been rumored that offers of evaporated Oregon loganberries have been made in the East already at 17 cents, evidently by speculators who do not hesitate to undermine and ruin the industry for the sake of a fraction of a cent's commission, and it is the hope and desire of the growers within the association and pools to thwart the efforts of these unscrupulous short-sellers in shutting them out of ruinous competition.

The board of directors of the Loganberry Growers' association is composed of Dr. C. W. Keene, of Silverton, president; L. H. Roberts, vice-president; J. J. McDonald and Seymour Jones, all of Salem. Ralph Mores, secretary of the Salem Commercial club, is secretary of the association. Growers from all parts of the valley and other sections where loganberries are grown began flocking into the city this morning and there is a big attendance at the meeting this afternoon.

Prison Commission Considers Frank Case

Atlanta, Ga., May 31.—The petition for the commutation of the sentence of death imposed upon Leo M. Frank was taken up by the prison commission here today.

The condemned man's wife, his parents and a score of friends were present when Frank's attorneys pleaded that his sentence for the alleged murder of little Mary Phagan be reduced to life imprisonment. Frank himself was not present.

Included in the evidence submitted in Frank's behalf was a letter from Judge Roan, who presided at his trial. The judge declared he was never convinced of Frank's guilt and perhaps deferred the duty to the jury in permitting the verdict to stand. He said he would ask the governor to pardon Frank at the proper time, but if the convicted man could not be saved in this manner, his attorneys were at liberty to use the letter as they saw fit.

Steamer Gulfight Was Torpedoed by Mistake

Washington, May 31.—The American steamer Gulfight was torpedoed by mistake by a German submarine, Ambassador Gerard cabled the state department today.

"The American ambassador to Berlin reports that the chief of the admiralty staff, Admiral Benke, informed him that the commander of the submarine which sank the Gulfight did so through mistake because two boats resembling trawlers, one carrying wireless were apparently conveying the Gulfight. The commander, therefore, thought it to be a British vessel and did not notice the American flag at the stern until just after giving the order to fire."

Mysterious Fire Breaks Out On Liner Ansonia

London, May 31.—Fire broke out on the Cunard liner Ansonia, anchored at her dock here today. As this is the second mysterious blaze discovered aboard the Ansonia during the last four months, an official investigation has been ordered in the belief that German sympathizers may be responsible.

Eighteen engines and a fire boat fought the fire which broke out today it was brought under control.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATION HOLDING MEETING HERE

Annual Conference In Salem Will Draw Delegates From Northwest

Delegates are arriving today for the annual meeting of Pacific Northwest library association.

This association has as its members librarians of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia. It holds annual conferences, but these have always been in larger cities than Salem—in Portland, Seattle and Spokane. The meetings will be in the auditorium of the public library and will begin Monday at 2 p. m. Governor Withcombs delivered the address of welcome, to which George W. Fuller, of Spokane, president of the association, responded. The subject of library building will be presented by Mrs. Geo. Göttinger, of Dallas, and discussed by members of the association. J. M. Hitt, state librarian of Washington, will speak of the county library as a solution of many of the difficulties of small public libraries. The subject of "Book-buying in Small Libraries" will be presented by Miss Ethel Smith, of Walla Walla. This meeting is of special interest to trustees and it is expected there will be a number in attendance.

At the conclusion of the afternoon program the local libraries will entertain the visitors with a picnic if the weather permits. There will be a meeting in the evening after which, through the courtesy of the city au-

The Company He Keeps

A storekeeper is judged by the company he keeps—on his shelves.

If his goods are live, and popular, he is known as an alert merchant.

He thrives accordingly.

Newspaper readers who make up the larger percentage of a store's patrons are interested in the goods they see advertised in their favorite publication.

They look on these brands as friends; properly introduced.

They want to meet them and they will go to the store that keeps them.

The live merchant co-operates with the manufacturers who advertise in the newspapers. They show the goods in their windows and on their counters and they profit by the manufacturers' advertising.
