GRAPE JUICE PIONEER ADOPTS LOGANBERRY

That there is a great future in store for the loganberry juice industry, but that it will require the expenditure of several hundred million dollars in a systematic and extensive campaign of education, is the opinion of the grape juice pioneer, who is now making a study of the loganberry industry. The pioneer is the man who has been making grape juice for many years and who is now making loganberry juice.

Mr. Brock is the pioneer of the grape juice industry, having been established in the business in New Jersey since 1880, nearly 36 years, and came to Oregon in 1911, at the invitation of the local grape growers. He is now making loganberry juice and is expected to make it yet even better.

Mr. Brock, as has been the Oregon Fruit Juice company and the Northwest Fruit Products company, both of which are now making loganberry juice. The two companies are expected to make loganberry juice yet even better.

"Hit the Trail"

With SMOKE BELLEW

By JACK LONDON

OUR new serial is one of the best stories Jack London ever wrote.

It is about the iron muscled giants of the gold fields—about real men who face danger and sudden death without flinching.

It is by an author who has braved the snows and ice of the Yukon and has lived the life like Smoke Bellew, his hero.

It is as rich as a "mother lode" of Alaska—rich in adventure, romance, privation, heroism and love that is greater than death itself.

Begins Tomorrow! You'll like it! Watch for it!
