

HEALTH DEPARTMENT FOR SALEM SCHOOLS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Superintendent Elliott Urges and May Recommend Adoption In Annual Report

That the organization and maintenance of a health department in connection with the Salem public school system is one of the greatest and most crying needs of this city is the earnest opinion of City Superintendent O. M. Elliott and he will, in all probability, incorporate a recommendation for the establishment of such department for the ensuing school year in his annual report to the city school board at the next regular meeting.

Such a department is maintained by all up-to-date school districts of the first class throughout the east and all over the Pacific coast, according to Superintendent Elliott, and the system maintained in Portland has been fruitful of highly beneficial results in keeping down the spread of contagion, which usually gains headway in the public schools, and for early detection and arrest of more or less virulent diseases which are likely to break out among children under any and all circumstances and particularly in school. In Portland they maintain a health department consisting of a paid physician and several trained nurses. For Salem one trained nurse would be sufficient, Mr. Elliott believes, and the services of a good physician.

"In one particular instance," Mr. Elliott says, "Mrs. Pickett, the trust officer, discovered a bad case of body vermin among the children of a certain family in the city and she did her best to induce the mother of the children to adopt methods of destroying the bugs and finally succeeded in doing so, but a local physician had to donate the prescription and the county the money to purchase the remedy. Afterwards the county gave this family $50 for living expenses and the mother used it in moving out of the county because she objected to being compelled to keep her children clean and sanitary. In another case unsatisfactory symptoms of congenital disease was discovered in the children of another family and these cases were all successfully treated gratis by a local physician. There have been innumerable instances of defective eye-

Daniel J. Fry Guarantees to Return the Money If Mi-o-na Does Not Relieve You.

"It's a pleasure to sell a medicine when my customers come in afterward and tell me how much good it has done them," said Daniel J. Fry, the popular druggist to a Journal man, "and that is why I like to sell and recommend Mi-o-na, the dyspepsia remedy. The distribution of samples that I made created so much talk and so large a proportion of those who received a sample have bought a box of Mi-o-na that my clerks have been busy selling the medicine ever since. I have so much faith in this article that I am going to guarantee it in the future, and will return the money to any purchaser of Mi-o-na whom it does not help. That may seem rash but my customers have said so many good words in its favor that I do not expect to have many packages returned.

"Anyone who has dyspepsia, whose food does not digest well, and who has to take thought as to what he can eat, and when, can leave 50 cents deposit at my store and take home a box of Mi-o-na and if the remedy does not regulate his digestion and help his dyspepsia he can withdraw his money. I don't know but what we would be willing to pay him interest."

This shows great faith in the merit of Mi-o-na. It is really a most unusual medicine and the rapid increase of sales since Daniel J. Fry introduced it in Salem shows that it does all that it is claimed to do—relieves dyspepsia, regulates digestion and enables those who use it to eat just what they want with no fear of trouble after.
