No Orchard Blight Says Professor Bars

H. P. Bars, of the Oregon Agricultural college, after having made a thorough examination of specimens from the orchard of Mr. White at Rickreall, in which C. E. Stewart, county fair inspector of Lane county claims to have found fireblight, says he finds no evidence of bacteria, and that certainly no fireblight exists. County Fruit Inspector J. S. Parker went to Salem on Monday and there met Mr. Bars, who took the suspicious specimens to Corvallis for microscopic examinations. The apple specimens given consideration, showed fireblight, but from where taken is not known to the Observer. It is not being able to locate Mr. Parker, who is busy with his work in the county. It has a copy of Mr. Bars' letter to the fruit inspector, which is given as follows: Corvallis, July 13.—I have made microscopic examinations of the quince and apple branches which you gave me and find no evidence of bacteria. In both cases a fungus was present, but certainly the Rickreall specimen of yours is not fireblight. The pear specimens appear to be affected by a fungus, very likely dry rot, but not by bacteria. I would watch such trees, however, and have examinations made of any cases which seem to show new blighting, either this season or later, for it is hard to identify positively a disease in parts that have been dead long. The apple tree spur blight which we went to see with Mr. Parks, and the apple canker on the limb he saved off, were typical fireblight and swarming with bacteria.—Dallas Observer.

Appreciates Work Of Salem's Police Force

We wish to express through the Capital Journal our appreciation of the splendid work of the Salem police department in so promptly capturing the men who burglarized our store during the night of July 16th, leaving no clue as to their identity. Practically all of the articles stolen, amounting to $140, have been returned to us and the burglars are in jail. This speaks well for the efficiency of our present police force, due to the business-like organization of the department by Chief Welch. We wish also to thank the citizens of West Salem who aided Officers Nicholson and White in the capture. E. T. BARNES.

Speculative Industrial Shares Break Sharply

(Copyright 1915 by the New York Evening Post.) New York, July 18.—Two influences were easily visible as responsible for a sharp break in speculative industrial shares on the stock exchange today. One was a calm public statement from the vice-president of the Cracible Steel company that the company's common stock, the price of which has risen 22 points in the last week and 33 since May, had no reason to expect dividends for many years and was not worth the price. Such a remark with reference to shares whose performances in connection with the "war order" speculative mania have been notorious is apt to be rejected angrily by the stock jobber as "outside the public"—if it is not ascribed by them to some evil speculative purpose of its author. But particular grounds were given for the assertion and the time will naturally come when sober explanations backed by figures showing why a season of "maneuver orders" will not double the net profits of a plant in perpetuity, must have its effect even on the Wall street mind in its present mood. The second influence, which may possibly have had less effect than the Cracible statement, was the news regarding the German attack upon the liner Orduna. This incredibly stupid action in which the commander of a submarine virtually gave the lie to the past fortnight's painstaking diplomatic reassurances from Berlin, inevitably cast a shadow of doubt upon Wall street's revolving confidence regarding German-American controversy.

ALBERT CHEVALIER, GREAT ENGLISH ACTOR

Those who remember Albert Chevalier, the wonderful English character actor, when he was in this country starring and in vogueville, will be interested in seeing him again, and on the screen, in the Metro Pictures corporation's new production of Henry Arthur Jones' stirring and pathetic play, "The Middleman," during his American tours in the regular dramatic theatres. 7AS HOLT MUENTER? FRIENDS THINK SO

Erich Muentzer (top) and Frank Holt.

That Frank Holt, the man who tried to kill J. P. Morgan and failing in that killed himself, is the Erich Muentzer who in 1906 killed his first wife while he was a teacher in Harvard University is the belief of several persons who knew both Muentzer and Holt. The handwriting of the two was similar, and except for the whiskers Muentzer wore there was not a great deal of difference in their appearance.

Frank's Condition Is Quite Serious

is a waitress, today said Green had been insane since childhood when he was injured by a blow on the head. The Georgia prison commission, which will investigate the attack upon Frank, is inclined to believe Green to be insane, it was learned this afternoon. Green is serving a life term for murder and was declared sane at the time of his trial, but members of the commission are understood to have indicated they believe he must be unbalanced.

Earlier Reports.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 19.—The condition of Leo M. Frank, whose throat was cut Saturday night by William Green, a late convict, at the prison farm here, was regarded as serious today. Frank appeared to be doing well yesterday, but early today had become worse. His temperature rose from 99 to 102. The wound in his neck was also swelling, indicating that it had become infected. Frank was in great pain.

Mrs. Frank is with her husband at the prison hospital today and he is being attended by Dr. Joseph Rosenberg, his own family physician. Frank's jugular vein, which was severed when Green plunged a butcher knife into his neck while he slept, was joined, and though everything possible was done to relieve the prisoner, it was feared today infection had set in.

A preliminary investigation, conducted by the prison officials, indicated that the attack was Green's own idea and that no outsiders were involved. Green denied he was influenced by any one, saying he thought "it should be done." Green, who is serving a life term for murder, expressed regret for having stabbed Frank when brought from solitary confinement to be questioned.

It was suggested today that Green may be insane. He was examined, however, when used for murder and convicted, and was declared to be of sound mind. The attack on Frank, which was made shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night, was made from behind. The assailant used a butcher knife. Frank's jugular vein was cut, but neither the spinal cord nor the windpipe were injured.

The attack was made in the dormitory. All lights were out at the time. Green is alleged to have had the knife secreted in his prison clothing. So sudden was the attack that so guard had time to interfere. Frank fell to the floor, his cries calling the attention of guards, who switched on the lights. Blood was spouting from Frank's wounds and another prisoner was trying to make his way back to bed. A knife made from a file, and which the convicts had used in killing dogs during the day, was found on the dormitory floor.

Inspires Another Crime.

Reading, Pa., July 19.—Evidently inspired by reading of the attack on Leo M. Frank, Mike Dillinger killed Frank's lawyer, a fellow prisoner in the jail here today by cutting his throat. Dillinger then committed suicide with the same knife.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

Liane Mishler has filed a suit for divorce from her husband Ann R. Mishler in the circuit court of this county. In the complaint she states that the only property rights to be settled consists of indebtedness and some few household effects. She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and states that her husband struck her when in an intoxicated condition and cursed and swore at her. The couple were married in eastern Oregon in 1903 and have five children, Richard Mishler, aged 11; William Mishler, aged 9; Annie Mishler, aged 7; Harley Mishler, aged 6 years, and Mildred Mishler, aged 15 months. She states that all of the children with the exception of the youngest one is with the defendant at present and asks for a decree ordering the defendant to take the children over to her keeping and to prevent him from molesting them. W. C. Winslow is attorney for the plaintiff.

A suit to collect money alleged due on a promissory note was filed today in the circuit court of this county by C. M. Wray against L. A. Kason. It is alleged that on a promissory note for $60 that the entire principal is now due and owing. In addition the plaintiff seeks judgment for $25 as attorney's fees. E. A. Peyton is attorney for the plaintiff.

A suit has been filed in the circuit court by W. E. Buckner against Eugene Bogert to collect $19.95 alleged due on a food bill of $19.95. S. M. Endicott is attorney for the plaintiff.

Alleging that one of the principal on a promissory note for $200 has been paid, the Marshall-Wells Hardware company has brought suit in the circuit court of this county against Eugene Bogert, Chas. Bogert and C. H. Bogert. In addition to $200 with interest the plaintiff seeks judgment for $20 as attorney's fees. W. C. Winslow is attorney for the plaintiff.

Saturday evening the jury in the case of Eugene Bogert against W. E. Drager, doing business as the Drager Fruit company, brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the sum of $299.72. This was an action brought by Mr. Drager in which he alleges that he contracted $2,224 pounds of pears to Mr. Drager at 5 1/2 cents per pound for various times during the harvest and that he had paid out $299.25 more than he had received for pears and he asked this sum in his answer and cross-complaint. Attorney George G. Bingham represented the defendant and Attorneys Smith and Shields appeared for the plaintiff.

The union Tile and Mercantile company was awarded a verdict in the sum of $41.18 against the defendant, W.

Senator Bingham Would Increase School Fund

Senator Isaac Bingham, of Lane county, believes that the roads and irrigation projects can take care of themselves for the present but that the state school fund could be increased to a good advantage by the proceeds from the sale of the lands now involved in the controversy between the government and the Oregon and California Railroad company. Governor Withycombe addressed a letter to each of the members of the 1915 legislature asking the legislator's opinion of a special session and also his recommendation as to the best method of disposing of the lands should the title revert to the state.

In reply to the letter Senator Bingham said: "I would bring every bit of influence possible to bear on congress through our members from this state to have this land disposed of and the proceeds turned over to the general school fund of the state."

Senator Bingham went on to say that most of the land was unfit for agricultural purposes and was valuable for its timber alone and should be sold to the highest bidder for the timber.

"Do not let it be put into the pocket," continued the senator, "and have it made a part of a forest reserve. In Lane county today 60 per cent of the land is not on the tax roll and never will be on account of the forest reserves."

Representative Dean H. Allen, of Marion county, stated that he approved of the governor's plan to dispose of the land and to turn the proceeds over $2.50 per acre into the school, road and irrigation funds. Mr. Allen was also opposed to a special session of the legislature.

"I would like to see the land sold and settled as speedily as possible," said Mr. Allen, "but the proceeds should go to the state and not revert to the government."
