There is believed to be some basis for the report. A Cincinnati rocker is understood to be engineering the deal. It is thought possible, however, that Carter is seeking only the minority interest in the club which Hermann holds.

NOT WORTH $200 IN . 1913; NOW $20,000!

Owner Navin of the Tygers writhes in agony every time he reads a line about Guy Morton of the Indians these days. Guy would have been a Tyger a couple of years ago had a Detroit scout made a favorable report. Morton could have been purchased at that time for $200; today Navin would give $20,000 for the Clevelander.

The scout's report was that Morton's delivery would be ineffective in the major leagues, and also, the nances were against him lasting long in any league "because of the unusual exertion he put on the ball." · Instead of Morton the scout recommended the purchase of McGreevy, a pitcher once heard of, but scarcely remembered. With a pitcher of Morton's class the Tygers would be clean favorites in the pennant chase, the Mack machine of a few years back.

When Cannie's boys were real champions it never seemed to make much on that account has a big advantage in the pennant field.
