POPULARITY OF MUSIC IS SPREADING AT AN ASTONISHING RATE

Home Now Considered Incomplete Without Piano and Supply of Music

Music as an accomplishment is gaining tremendous popularity. As a profession it requires incessant study, persistent technical devotion and an unlimited fountain of enthusiasm.

Whereas a couple of decades ago the piano was a luxury afforded only by the few, the equipment of the home today is regarded incomplete without this responsive instrument, and printed music scores are becoming nearly as common as newspapers and periodicals. The latest hits and the classics are now obtainable at prices that place them easily within reach, as compared with a few years ago, and familiarity with musical literature is spreading at a truly astonishing rate.

That much music published is trivial must be admitted, but the student soon learns to discriminate and in this connection the music teacher figures conspicuously. Selections of literature worth while, is the teacher's duty to his pupil as much as is imparting knowledge of tone production and instructions in technique. And as the multitude of students increases so the public develops in discrimination, accordingly.

Love for the best there is in musical composition is cultivated largely through hearing the best there is in music and the community that has it to offer possesses the atmosphere that breeds musical proteges. In this respect Portland is fortunately situated.

Good Music at Hand.

The regularly organized symphony orchestra presents opportunity to hear the great symphonic creations of the master minds of all the world, large vocal choruses give us the best there is in this line of musical art, and local and touring soloists are presented so frequently in recitals and concerts that those who wish have abundant opportunity to absorb the results of the endeavor of those who have devoted their life to this noble study. And Portland has vocal and instrumental teachers and not a few composers.

Arouses Best in Man.

Music is accepted as the greatest medium of arousing the best there is in man and in its development is regarded as a constant mark of progress in culture. It is more expressive and impressive than the eloquence of words and what is more, is universally understood. The musical voice never speaks harshly, it interprets the loftiest ideals, the dearest sentiments and the noblest thoughts.

The composer does not record in music what he regards inconsequential thoughts. The work is regarded as the product of inspiration, the fundamental basis of which is good. Searching for inspiration the composer does not harbor debased or impure thoughts for if he did the result would be neither melody nor harmony. And the same applies to the student and performer.

Salem Musical Center.

The European war has diverted the American music student's attention from the old recognized music centers of continental Europe to those of his own country, and during the coming season and in the future, it is safe to predict, the American music teacher and coach will maintain a prominent position in this field. Many who have gained fame in the European centers and in London, have established themselves in New York and elsewhere in the states since the outbreak of the war.

Salem has a liberal share of highly competent teachers whose instructions are sought by students from all parts of the Pacific northwest, so that the city is rapidly becoming a center of musical education in this vast district.

To Teach French at Pacific University

Forest Grove, Aug. 21.—Miss Anna E. Bagstad has been called to the chair of French at Pacific university from the Northern Normal and Industrial school of Aberdeen, S. D., where she has been head of the department of modern languages. Miss Bagstad is not only a college graduate and successful teacher of 10 years' experience in colleges in the east, but has had the further advantages of extensive study in France and Germany, besides a year in Boston.

In her college days she had the distinction of winning the middle west intercollegiate oratorical contest and many other college honors. She has had exceptional experience in elocution and in administrative work with young women.

Miss Bagstad is but one of several new teachers that Pacific university has for the coming year, secured to develop the departments of modern languages, sociology and economics, and domestic science and art.

The state land board held a short informal session yesterday afternoon and issued a permit to John M. Gearin, attorney for a land company, to advertise for the purchase of 241 acres of tide lands on Tillamook bay. The request came up to the board some time ago but the board refused the request on the grounds that they did not have sufficient information on the subject. The desired information was later furnished to the board.

Mrs. W. F. Public returned today after a two weeks' visit at Taft, Ore.

Director of Music Frank W. Chace.

Frank W. Chace, recently elected director of music for Willamette university, comes to this city with the highest endorsements as a thoroughly educated musician. The trustees had several applications from musicians of high standing in the east for this position, and in their selection of Dr. Chace feel confident they have an instructor and organizer eminently qualified for the work.

Dr. Chace was born in Providence, R. I., where he early began his studies in music. For many years he studied voice in Boston and London, and organ under Eugene Thayer, of Boston. He has taken the degree of Doctor of Music at the University of New York, and is a Fellow of the Royal College of Music, London. His recommendations are from such famous organists as Dudley Buck, Clarence Eddy and Dr. Tyndall, of London.

Dr. Chace has been successful as a teacher of piano, pipeorgan and musical theory. For a number of years he was director of the school of music at Albion college, Michigan, and for six years was director of music in the First Presbyterian church, Seattle. While in this position, he trained the great oratorio society, which rendered the music for the International Epworth League convention, meeting in Seattle. As an organist he ranks high, as he has been called upon to give recitals at the San Diego and Panama-Pacific expositions. He comes direct from Sewickley, Pa., where he has been in charge of the music in St. Stephen's Episcopal church.

Mrs. Chace, Talented Musician.

Mrs. Aurelia C. Chace, the wife of Dr. Frank W. Chace, who will have charge of the music the coming year in Willamette university, is a graduate of the Chicago Musical college. She was a student of Madame Harris and Oscar Saenger, and other famous musicians. For several years she was an instructor of music in Albion college, Michigan, and has recently been teaching in Pittsburg, Pa. She has been especially successful in building up the voice and cultivating proper voice control. Her work in harmony, voice culture and public school music has been of a high order.

For the coming year she will be associated with her husband in the teaching of music in the university. Besides being a competent instructor, Mrs. Chace is a skillful and artistic performer, and the school of music is fortunate in securing her.

WOODBURN HIGH SCHOOL

To comply with the request of the mass meeting, the school board met at Clerk Starnard's office last Friday night and called a special election to vote on a $40,000 bond issue for a High school in this district. The date fixed for the election was September 7. On the same day the voters will be given an opportunity to select the site for the proposed building. There will be two election boards for these two purposes.

It is proposed to issue $40,000 serial bonds, so that $2,000 can be redeemed each year and the last $2,000 taken up at the expiration of 20 years.

If the bonds carry work will begin immediately upon the construction of the High school upon the site selected by the plurality of the voters. There will also be no time lost in beginning the erection of the building provided the people want it.—Woodburn Independent.

Million Is Sought For Michigan Union

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 21.—A "meeting pot" of college democracy costing $1,000,000 is to be built and endowed by the alumni of the University of Michigan. The new building will be the home of the Michigan union, the centerpiece of student life at Ann Arbor.

This crucible, into which the undergraduates are poured to emerge better founded men through having rubbed elbows with their fellow students, is really a great club house, cosmopolitan in character and intended as the clearing house for all student activities, thoughts and tendencies.

President Emeritus James B. Angell of Michigan, several years ago made the statement that the mind is deeper and actor of young men receive as deep and abiding impressions from mixing with one another as they do from contact with their professors. That sounded a new note in education and gave an indication of what might be expected in modern university development.

The Michigan union aims to give students that broader education that comes from knowing men. Michigan has 6,800 students coming from every part of the globe and the exchange of ideas among cosmopolitans is considered by Dr. Angell one of the greatest needs at all the large universities.

The alumni of Michigan—35,000 in number—are to present the building, equipped and endowed, to the union. The entire cost will be $1,000,000. Of that sum, $250,000 is for an endowment to insure dues so low that the advantages of the union will be within the reach of every student. The building will contain many of the features found today in the fine club houses of large cities—swimming pool, meeting rooms, billiards and bowling alleys, banquet halls and dormitories for returning alumni.

The campaign to raise the $1,000,000 will be started in October. A Michigan union committee is to be found in each of the leading cities of America—183 in all.

With all the committees at work in October, the total number of "old grads" on the job for their alma mater will be in excess of 2,000.
