Watching the Scoreboard

St. Louis Poles harpooned the Whales eleven times. Chicago made a good start and chased Crandall out of the box, but Willett held them down to four swats.

Braves made it three in a row from Pittsburgh while E. Snodgrass, just fired by the Giants, made his bow in Boston swings and drove in the winning tally.

Cubs won a tight game from Philadelphia and then submitted to an old-fashioned massacre of the Custer variety, the score being 13 to 5.

Cincinnati beat Brooklyn when Pfeffer became excited in the first canto and handed the visitors three runs.

Red Sox blanked St. Louis and made it four straight, seven to nothing.

Greeng sailed along on an even keel while Harlow Hamilton for the losers had a stormy voyage.

Fair Grounds Bulletin

Fair Grounds, Monday, Aug. 23.—The sun rose in a clear sky this morning and the moon filled last night. The weather indications for the following month week are that weather will be same. Two auto loads tented on the camp grounds last night, coming direct from Crater lake and en route to Portland and Vancouver, Wash.

The energetic and up to date farmer, W. A. Jones, of the state fair board, reported to the efficient secretary of the same board, W. A. Jones, last Saturday that the state's crop of clover seed was ready to be cut and today Farmer W. A. Jones is harvesting the crop. The jolly good natured 240 pound farmer secretary allows himself less strict hours rest a day, but he is making good and the board is much pleased.

President John Henry Booth is reported to be at Newport enjoying himself with his family. Together with the president of the leading southern Oregon bank, managing a 2,000 acre ranch, keeping out of politics and making a successful president of the board of state fair directors his only opportunity to visit with his family is when he ties himself to the popular Newport ocean beach. Mrs. Booth and the boys are delighted with the opportunity to again form the acquaintance of John Henry.

Horace Skigg, the popular young Salem boy who is the representative of Arthur Y. Peck, superintendent of the floral department, is making good with the work assigned to him. Horace takes a pride in his work and interests himself as much as if it were his own. If it takes half the night to finish a certain job of flowers that need attention Horace will be there.

E. F. Carleton, superintendent of the industrial department, has every assurance that the exhibits in his department will be fifteen per cent better than last year.

Those wishing to address the superintendent of the pavilion, C. E. Freytag, will reach him at the Oregon building, San Francisco, Cal. He has charge of the Willamette valley exhibit down there.

CARRY STOMACH JOY IN YOUR VEST POCKET

Daniel J. Fry Has Such Faith In This Dyspepsia Remedy That He Guarantees It.

One of the greatest successes in the sale of medicine has been achieved by Mio-na, the standard dyspepsia remedy, and its sale is increasing so rapidly that Daniel J. Fry, the popular druggist, has had work to keep a stock on hand. It is very popular with bankers, ministers, lawyers and others whose business or profession keeps them close confined, while those who have brought on indigestion through irregular eating, worry, or other causes, have found relief in this reliable remedy.

Mio-na comes in tablet form and is sold in a metal box especially designed for convenience in carrying the medicine in the pocket or purse. It is pleasant to take, gives quick relief and should help any case, no matter how long a standing. This remedy has been so uniformly successful that Daniel J. Fry will in future sell Mio-na under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it should not prove entirely satisfactory. No other dyspepsia medicine ever had a larger enough percentage of cures so that it could be sold in this manner. A guarantee like this speaks volumes for the merit of the remedy.

There is no time like the present to do a thing that ought to be done. If any one has dyspepsia, today is the best time to begin curing it.

Lawyers of Northwest In Joint Session

Portland, Ore., Aug. 24.—The Washington State Bar association, in session here, preliminary to the joint meeting with the Oregon Bar association, today elected M. F. Grose, of Pomeroy, Wash., president. Frank Reeves, Wenatchee, the retiring president was not eligible to re-election because of a clause in the constitution of the association which prevents the president holding two consecutive terms.

Will Shaffer and Arthur Romington, both of Olympia, were re-elected secretary and treasurer respectively.

After the election of officers the meeting devoted itself to the disposal of routine business.

Would Purchase Telegraph and Telephone Lines for Operation By Government

Low wages versus children as revealed by the Masly report of the industrial relations commission.

From 12 to 20 per cent of the children in large cities go hungry.

Only one-third of the children in public schools complete the grammar school course and only 10 per cent finish high school.

Seventy-five per cent of the children in four industrial centers investigated stop school before the seventh grade.

In manufacturing and mining industries from one-third to one-half of the wage earners cannot decently support families on their wages.

In the families of workers 37 per cent of the mothers are at work and unable to give the children more than scant attention.

There is a direct relation between poverty and the death rate of babies.

Out of every 1,000 babies whose fathers earn less than $10 a week, 256 die yearly.

Where the father earns $25 a week or more the death rate is 84 babies out of every thousand.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Purchase by the government of the property and equipment of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies and the American Telephone and Telegraph, for the operation of a national telegraph and telephone systems, was recommended by the section of the Masly report of the industrial relations commission made public today.

A national anti-tipping law was also recommended by the report in that part given over to discussion of the Pullman company. Such a statute, the report recommended, should prohibit the tipping of any employee of a public service corporation engaged in interstate commerce and provide for a "proper fine for both the giver and the recipient of the tip."

In transferring the telephone and telegraph companies to the government, the report recommended that all officials and employees necessary for successful operation be retained and others absorbed in other branches of the federal service as far as practicable.

Startling revelations were made in the report signed by Commissioners Walsh, Lennon, O'Connell and Garrettson, of living and working conditions of workers in American industries. Evidence was presented in support of the contention that industrial unrest is due to wages "too low to provide a decent standard of living." This, it is held, is the result of lack of labor organizations by which better wages can be forced.

The commission also made public supplemental findings and recommendations by Commissioner Lennon and O'Connell. They urged strong labor organizations as the paramount remedy for industrial unrest.

The Masly report urged equal political rights for women as one of the means by which women workers may obtain a living wage.

The report declared many "typical industrial communities now present every aspect of a state of feudalism, with employers controlling the social and political life and abridging the fundamental rights of citizens."

It is evident both from the investigations of the commission and from the reports of recent governmental bodies that a large part of our industrial population are a result of the combination of low wages and unemployment, living in a condition of actual poverty," the report declares.

At least one-third and possibly one-half of the families of wage earners in manufacturing and mining "earned in the course of year less than enough to support them in anything like a comfortable and decent condition," it was stated.

"The crux of the question," the report says, "is, have the workers received a fair share of the enormous increase in wealth which has taken place in this country during the past quarter of a century as a result of their labors: the answer is emphatically—no!"

The wealth of the country between 1890 and 1912 increased from $5 to $57 billion, or 188 per cent, whereas the aggregate income of wage earners in manufacturing, mining and transportation has risen between 1889 and 1909 only 95 per cent, from 2,516,000,000 in 1889 to 4,916,000,000 in 1909. Furthermore, the wage earners' share of the net product of industry in the case of manufactures was only 49.2 per cent in 1909, as compared with 44.9 in 1889.

"The investigations and hearings of the commission," it was stated, "justify the conclusions:

"As a result of their unprotected condition, women and children are exploited in industry, trade and domestic service and agriculture to an extent which threatens their health and welfare and menaces the well-being of the future generations.

"The competition of women and children is a direct menace to the wage and salary standards of men.

"Under present conditions children are permitted by their parents to go to work largely because their earnings are necessary for the support of the rest of the family. The restrictive legislation which has been enacted has placed a heavy burden upon their fathers and mothers who, at existing wages, have been barely able to support their families. The evidence shows that the burden of child labor legislation has rested upon the wage earners rather than upon the employers."

Further found that:

"The welfare of the state demands that the useful labor of every able bodied man should as a minimum be compensated by sufficient income to support in comfort himself, a wife and at least three children and provide for sickness, old age and disability.

"Under existing conditions such an income is not received by fully one-half the wage earners employed in industry."

It is probable that even at present the national agricultural and industrial output is sufficient to permit the establishment of such a standard.

"The problem is therefore essentially one of distribution."

The adjustment of wages by legal enactment was declared impracticable and organization and fixing of standards by collective bargaining was therefore recommended.

"Creation of a federal bureau of labor statistics was suggested. Under normal circumstances a work day should not exceed eight hours, the report declared.

The employees of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies are not only under paid, but subjected to many abuses, it was stated.

Star Quits Stage to Raise Her Baby

New York, Aug. 24.—Mme. Alma Gluck, who rose from obscurity as a stenographer in a Nassau street insurance office to become a leading opera and concert singer, gave birth to a baby daughter Saturday.

Because of her desire to rear her child personally, Mme. Gluck has cancelled a season's contract worth $150,000, and will probably not be heard again on the concert stage for several seasons, it is said.

She and her husband, Efram Zimbalist, the famous violinist, are occupying a cottage at Lake George. They were married two years ago in London. Word from Lake George is that the mother and daughter are doing well.
