show, but last night's exhibition was clearly that of the greatest trained animal show ever seen in Salem. From FAVORABLY RECEIVED the opening number the show was marked by plenty of music and clever acts of the trained animals both wild and denestic. Last night's show was unlike the average circus in that there was not so much going on but that all could be seen and enjoyed, and the feature acts were performed alone so that all might see and marvel.

The show was particularly free from fakirs and the usual run of circus hangers on that are the bane of the police officers. Not a single arrest was made yesterday by the local police on account of the circus crowd and not a single directly toward Petrograd, the Slav misdemeanor was accounted that the single directly toward Petrograd, the Slav Lious, tigers, goats, horses, leopards, be charged to the circus followers.

WOOLEN MILLS ARE SOLD It is reported that Bishop & Sons, of Pendleton, who operate an extensive woolen mill property in eastern Oregon, have purchased the Washougal woolen mills at Washington. The price ding of the trainer and the elever sale is believed to mean a prospective status of the performers drew general applause from the targe crowd which packed the main tent tast night. Many seasoned circus-goers were pleased to note the rapid improvement in the Barnes' saow. "A few years ago Journal."

Ye Liberty started off the week with a repetition of "The Bargain," a western picture featuring William Starte whose homely set attractive tree.

Hart, whose homely yet attractive race in combination with a genuine talent for wild western histrionies has put him well up on the list of popular favorites during the past year. 'The Bargain" is interesting but not en-tirely satisfactory, innamuch as it depends too strongly upon improbabili-ties. Its hero is a road agent—a two-gun man, who while escaping from the officers of the law meets up with a girl and marries her without revealing to her his identity. After this he blunders out and is captured by a sheriff, stolen mone, and all. The sheriff ties the road agent up and goes Cast Appears in Support of praise for his very effective work in Eminent Cast Appears in Support of Frederick Perry.

It is unusual to find such a combination of stars in one production as is presented in William Fox's latest photogrammatic success, "The Erring Wife," or "Dr. Rameau." In the title role appears Frederick Perry, lately starred in the efroadwey success of the season, "On Trial," and admittedly the most effective dramatic actor on the stage today.

We have not for a long time found more enjoyment in a picture than we found in "The Flying Twins" at Bligh's. We agree heartily with an old gentleman who sat directly in front of us. He said "Them twins is sure some twins." The picture combines several twins." The picture combines several elements any one of which is causid.

As occasionally happens, the star was not the brightest spot in the "Chimmie Fadden" picture, shown at Ye Liberty Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. Lewis McCord, in the part of Mrs. Padden, did as fine a bit of character work as has ever been seen in Salem, silent or spoken.
