MAXWELL CO. HEIR TO STRANGE DUTY

Inherits Obligation to Build Parts for Others as System Expands—Every-body Satisfied—Parts for Costly Cars Built by Same Men Who Turn Out Maxwell

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2h - tembina-tions and changes in ownership of va-rious plants have brought about many atrange situations in the automobile industry, but none stranger, in all prob-ability, than that of the Maxwell Motor Co., Inc., which finds itself, as the re-nult of several long-term contracts, under obliation's to furnish radiators, fenders and many other pressed metal parts, to a number of rival manufac-ing in Pol

Though the plant adjoins the Michigan Central tracks, but a small part of its product is shipped by rail, the great bulk being moved by motor trucks. A stendy stream of these vehicles plies between the radiator plant and the Oakland avenue Maxwell plant, and the Oakland avenue Maxwell plant, where final assembly is made.

Many of the processes in vogue in this Muxwell plant have been original with its staff; some of them have accepted by the industry as well high revolutionary. A recent example is the heart-shaped radiator crown which the plant is making for Maxwell cars. Its manufacture implied a problem of press and die work never before successfully
