SALEM AND THE MARKET PROBLEM

The question of Salem's relations to the surrounding advantage. agricultural districts, and Salem's duty to the farmer was discussed in the Commercial Club meeting Wednesday night; it aroused a great deal of interest and naturally some warmth of feeling was evidenced by those whose bility of the future growth and commercial importance of them. They are the words of the country's foremost for the produce of the farm.

A local market in booths along the streets or in a public square does not supply the need. It may be a good thing in a degree, bringing together the producer and local consumer who may desire fresh fruits, vegetables and other products of the farm. Frequently, however, the produce offered for sale will not all be disposed off because the local demand is limited and this is all that the public city market appeals to.

that is akin to the unemployment problem. Quite frequently we know that thousands of men are out of work is with the produce market. For instance, potatoes may foundation to build upon. be a drug in the local market but there may be outside markets where they would bring a fair price. It is the the right time. To become prosperous the Willamette tunity to take a half-holiday. Valley must export a surplus-it cannot flourish on home consumption. Salem, therefore, needs large jobbing established an outlet for the surplus produce of the in accord on one point at least.

Here is what we mean: the little town of Oakland in Douglas county is the most extensive market for turkeys prints an aditorial on "Colonel Roosevelt as a Presidential on the coast, and chickens, eggs and other produce are Possibility." extensively shipped from that point. One mercantile firm, which developed this business by furnishing the outside markets, has accumulated property said to be worth a million dollars, and many farmers and stockmen have shared in their prosperity. The largest potato buyers in the Willamette Valley are located in the little town of Mount Angel.

Salem lacks exporters of this type. Some years ago the great wheat exporting firm of Balfour, Guthrie & Co. maintained an agency in this city but it was discontinued and now many farmers of the surrounding country go to Portland to sell their wheat. We have probably the largest prune packing houses and canneries in the state. The hop growers' association is taking care of that industry to the best of its ability. Still there are many times when the farmers come to Salem with general produce only to find the local market glutted and no one to declared washes and the local market glutted and no one to declared washes and the local market glutted and no one to declared washes and the local market glutted and no one to declared washes as a conspicuous place in the racing form on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, and wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, and wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, and wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, are wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, are wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, are wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, are wheat, grown on the ranch of A landley, near Athena, Country, are on exhibition at the Oregon Wash lughon, Country, are on exhibition at the Oregon Wash lughon, and Navigation country, and Navigation country are interested that the local and the local market for some kinds of fruit in Oregon with the largest prune packing houses and canneries in the state, and are attracting unto an item of news for the surface of the su duce only to find the local market glutted and no one to take it off their hands at any price. This is the problem then to be solved, and if the Commercial Club is able to do it the farmers will ask no more of them.

That depends on how this which the position carries with it. His injunction to the to owe much to Salem. That depends on how this question of relationship between the farmer and city is handled and developed in the future.

It is mainly a question of a larger and surer market for the produce of the farm.

And wouldn't go to bed!
She fought and won the battle,
And screamed til she was hoars.
And spalled her disposition,
Of course!

At Sixteen.

She wanted to be pretty,
A sort of fluffy dream.

She lived on cake and pickles.
A dainty, precious team!

She loathed fresh air, and walking
And work, and all that's coarse;
And she ruined her complexion,
Of course! Of course!

At Seventeen.

She wanted shows, and novels,
And everything that's gay,
A lazy life, and easy,
With only fun and play,
And in the race with Mother
She rode the winning horse;
And she clipped her education,
Of course!
