FIRE SINGES LINKS;
RECORD LOWERED
TO 48 BY G. H. EDDY

Salem Golfers Show Vast Improvement Over Scores of Earlier Season

The Salem Country club golf links assumed a "black and tan" appearance last week when some brush fire at Finzer got beyond control and for a while assumed alarming proportions but were controlled later though only after the turf of the links was parched and blackened. In spite of the erratic course, however, the course record was lowered last week by G. H. Eddy, the professional, beating his previous best round by one stroke and doing it in 48.

At the same time the club record of fifty-one, held by R. C. Bishop, Arthur Hutchison, and Allen Hutchison, was lowered one stroke, the last named doing it in 50. Neither of these scores is likely to stand long, as quite a number of the players are making such rapid progress that soon they will consider "a fifty" too much for the round.

When the links were opened scores for the round varied from 80 to 125. Now the same players take from 50 to 75 which is quite an improvement. Golf must be learned in a plodding, painstaking way, and the finished golfer is the product of long study and persevering effort. While Salem golfers are not strong numerically, those who do play are not wanting in enthusiasm, and no doubt will yet be heard about in the golfing world.

PACKEY CONFIDENT; MIKE SILENT, GLUM

Welterweights Will Meet For Ten Round Bout at Brighton Tonight

By George H. Holmes.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
New York, Sept. 11.—With the time for their bout only a matter of hours, Packey McFarland was smiling, happy and confident today, while Mike Gibbons was as glum and silent as though he were preparing for his own funeral. The men will meet tonight in a ten round bout at Brighton.

The most conspicuous feature of Gibbons' training has been the grouch which possessed him, although he never let it interfere in the least with his work. Despite Mike's apparent air of dejection, many of his followers predicted today that Packey will lose his smile before the bout has progressed far. Ten to eight odds on Gibbons were being offered with no takers.

Although Packey himself obviously has no fear of the outcome of the fight, many experts are not so confident. Packey has been out of the ring for quite a while, and opinion among fight fans is that he should have taken on one of two boxes of smaller calibre before meeting a man of Gibbons' class. That is the reason Gibbons is running a slight favorite, for he has been fighting right along.

Both men have trained consistently and hard, and as far as it is possible to judge with the eye, both are in prime condition. They will weigh in at 3 o'clock at 147 pounds, and neither will have the slightest difficulty in making the weight.

The pugilistic world has been fed up for a month for this bout. Past records have been delved into, almost everyone who ever heard of a boxing glove has speculated on its outcome, and when it is all simmered down this big feature stands out above the rest—that no one, not even McFarland or Gibbons themselves—knows any more about it than anyone else. And that is nothing.

Jim Jeffries proved to the boxing world at Reno five years ago that there is no "dope" on a fighter who has been out of the game several years. Jeff was going better than he had ever gone in his life, according to the men who watched him train—he had speed, agility, the punch—everything that had carried him to the front ranks of boxers. But after he got in the ring he didn't have anything except a memory of what had been, and a mighty sore head.

McFarland has been out of the game over two years. In that time he hasn't boxed much even in practice and any dub of an athletic judge can testify that it doesn't take a man long to go back when he isn't working; that a paunch is easier acquired than removed. Not that Packey has a paunch, however, at least externally. He looks, and says he is, in shape.

There can be but little doubt that the St. Paul phantom is right. He has been boxing steadily, working "cal" along, and boxing critics consider him now at the zenith of a successful career.

There is plenty of Gibbons' dope. There is none of McFarland. And for that reason fight fans generally have picked the little Minnesota man to win. Chances of a knockout, either way, were regarded today as about as probable as Bryan's ascendancy to the White House. It takes a good man to put away even a second rater in a ten round affair, particularly if that second rater has a pair of legs that conceal the speed in getting away from a sleep wallop that McFarland's does.

McFarland is more or less noted for the fact that he never acquired a tin ear or any other disfiguring marks in the ring.

"Nobody's going to spoil my map," is the McFarland slogan. And nobody—even the best ones—have spoiled Mike's to any great extent, so fight fans, particularly New York ones, are looking for a rattling good exhibition of scientific boxing, and little or no slugging.

Next to the possibility of a k. o., interest has been centered largely in the amount the boxers are to get. McFarland is scheduled to pull down a coin at the rate of nearly $600 a minute if the battle goes ten rounds. He is guaranteed $17,500, win, lose or draw, Mike is going to collect $15,000 for his end.

THE CATHOLIC POSITION

The Knights of Columbus acted wisely in giving a formal answer to the misrepresentations, which have been circulated in regard to the attitude of American Catholics on two important subjects, namely, on political questions and the public schools. The Knights, at their recent annual meeting, at Seattle, say:

"We should lose no proper occasion to declare the position of Catholics and the teachings of the church on this matter, namely, that while Catholics acknowledge the pope to be supreme in spiritual matters, they do not hold that he has any authority in civil matters. If any spiritual authority were to direct us to do any act contrary to the rights of free citizens, or the welfare of society, we would be bound to disobey."

HANGED FOR BRUTAL CRIME

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 11.—David Fountain paid the death penalty on the gallows at Folsom prison today for one of the most horrible crimes in the history of the state.
Little Margaret Milling, aged 8, was the victim. The girl, last December, took her sewing outfit, and went to the Sunday school room of the German Lutheran church, in Sacramento, to help make Christmas dresses for poor children. There was no meeting of the sewing circle that day, due to a misunderstanding, so Margaret went to the piano and started to play.
Fountain, aged 54, was the janitor of the church. As the girl was playing he approached her and began tossing her in the air. Suddenly, by his own confession, he lost his senses and attacked the child. Hair was torn from the girl's head, her face was horribly scratched and her body bruised.

The murderer brushed out any spark of life that may have remained by winding a rope tightly around the child's neck.

MAMAUX, SENSATION OF 1915 AND STAR OF PIRATE PITCHERS, COST CLUB NOTHING

Albert Mammaux.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—(Special)—It is not always the high priced ball player that delivers the goods in the major leagues. A few years ago Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, signed his name to a check calling for $22,500 and payable to the owner of the St. Paul club of the American Association for Marty O'Toole, who was then setting the American Association on fire by his wonderful pitching.

From the start O'Toole proved a full use and was called the "427,500 lemons." His spit ball, which proved such a terror to the players in the American Association, was no wonder to the hitters in the National League, and he got bumped hard and often. Last year O'Toole was sold to the Giants. Now he is having his own troubles to win games in the American Association. From which the Pirates got him.

One day last year Dreyfuss walked into his office in Pittsburg and began opening his mail. Dreyfuss had his not spread for minor league players to build up his team, but was not sweet on paying any more high prices for players of O'Toole type. One of the letters that Dreyfuss opened was from a Pittsburg man, an admirer of Manager Clarke and the Pirates.

The writer of the letter said he was the grandfather of a Pittsburg boy who had made a great record on the sand lots of Pittsburg, and was desiring of a try out with the Pirates. Would Fred Clarke give the youngster an opportunity to show his wares in the big league? he asked.

The youngster was told to report to Clarke, but failed to impress the manager at the start and was turned over to a minor league team for development. He was taken south by the Pirates this spring, and today $22,500 could not buy him. His name is Albert Mammaux, and he is known wherever the great national game is played. He didn't cost Dreyfuss a cent, unless the owner of the Pirates sent something to Mammaux's grandfather for recommending the young star to the Pittsburg club.

Mammaux today is rated in the class of Alexander and Johnson. His admirer in Pittsburg claims he is even greater than either of these two stars, as this is his first year in the big league, while both Alexander and Johnson have been pitching their a number of years. Mammaux's pitching this year has kept the Pittsburg writers striking distance of the leaders, and according to Clarke, with another pitcher of Mammaux's calibre Pittsburg would win the pennant.
