Psycho-analysis, a branch of psychology which of recent years has been the earnest study of learned men in this country and Europe, but which until recently had never been placed before the public because of the lack of definite results, is used as the theme for "Milestones of Life," a four-part Mutual Masterpicture produced at the Thalhoner studios in New Rochelle, N. HUBBARD POSTOFFICE ROBBED OF $90 CASH AND $135 IN STAMPS

Same Safe Blown Open By Robbers Last Year and Not Yet Repaired

The Hubbard postoffice was robbed last night of $90 in cash, $135 in stamps and two checks aggregating $60 with some other papers of more or less value. The robbers did not find it necessary to blow the safe as it was the last postoffice safe cracked in this county over a year ago and had not been repaired since. The robbers broke open the section house at Hubbard, took out what crow bars and other tools they needed, and then pried open the rear door of the postoffice.

ambassador Dumba's request for "leave" and his plans for early departure tend to decrease the tension. The state department is arranging a safe conduct for him to Holland, and it is understood he will sail the latter part of next week on a Dutch steamer. Though his departure will be "on leave," rather than on complete recall, it is believed Austria will not re-open the dispute by later returning him.

Von Bernstorff Optimistic

New York, Sept. 15.—All German-American difficulties will be settled within a fortnight, according to a statement credited to Ambassador von Bernstorff, in the Evening World, in an interview here following his return from Washington.

Officials Are Pleased

Washington, Sept. 15.—Commenting on the Evening World's quotation of Ambassador von Bernstorff's high state department official said this afternoon, "I am glad to know the ambassador feels that way about it. He is probably right in saying there is an amicable understanding between the department and himself."

SHOULD A MOTHER TELL?

JANET BEECHER IN "FINE FEATHERS"

Eugene Walter's Drama Is Filmed. A Warning to Extravagant Wives.

"When lovely woman stoops to folly she always comes off second best, sooner, rather than later. Mere man, if he makes a fool of himself, suffers, perhaps, but usually manages to wriggle out of his troubles without fatally hurting himself. Nature, but, why labor the point? Woman always pays; and sometimes." Let it go at that.

Eugene Walter in the play of "Fine Feathers" pointed this moral, and around the text of it constructed a play which registered a great success on the "regular" stage. Temptation to cheat comes in the way of a young couple in reward for which the wife can escape from the bitterness of life on $25 per week in a New York suburb, i. e., Staten Island. There are no "classy," well-dressed people in New York south of Thirty-fourth street. Jane Reynolds, the aspirant after Fifth Avenue fine feathers (it's in this gilded thoroughfare of Gotham that she buys 'em) thought this way, when the tempter came along and persuaded her to induce her husband to pass on an inferior quality of cement for a great deal than in excess of construction.

"Bob" Reynolds fell for the bribe and Jane got her fine feathers. The gambling mania got "Bob" and he was financially ruined in double quick time. The bursting of the dam, due to the bad cement completed the tragedy of "Fine Feathers." The chief culprit, the tempter, committed suicide, and the young couple resolved to commence life all over again and go straight.

Janet Beecher plays the lead in this photoplay, which has many good and stirring scenes, notably a view of calistoga life, at Murray's, the well known New York restaurant, and the bursting of the Pees Dam, and the immediate of the surrounding country. Miss Beecher will be remembered because of her association with the Belasco forces. "Fine Feathers" will be shown at the Oregon Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

FIRST AND FOREMOST.

Very often the ability of a company or some one member of that company is considerably overestimated, but it can be taken as an absolute fact that there is no possible way in which the work of Mr. Billy S. Clifford can be "Walk This Way," is a light comedy that is full of snap and ginger and still retains a story through its entirety which for simplicity and beauty, will not be equalled in a long while. This unusually clever piece will be seen at Grand Opera House on Friday evening, September 17.

The staging of the piece has required untiring patience and with a wardrobe that will seldom be rivalled, it is no wonder that the company has firmly established itself in the hearts of comedy lovers as well as those entering to the musical variety as shown in this bill. There are two distinct features combined into one ideally perfect whole. A ladies' brass band of 14 pieces is carried this year and will render a popular concert program on the streets at 3:30 p. m., and again in front of the theatre that evening.

GRAIN CROP LARGE IN PACIFIC STATES

Northwest Section Harvested 119,000,000 Bushels This Year, It Is Estimated

Portland, Or., Sept. 15.—The Pacific Northwest this year gathered $119,200,000 bushels of grain compared with 111,400,000 bushels a year ago, according to statistics compiled by Hyman H. Cohen, crop expert of the Portland Journal. The harvest is practically completed in the three states, only a very small area remaining uncut.

The size of the wheat crop is the biggest surprise. In July, previous to the harvest, the estimate of 66,000,000 bushels was considered by some to be far too high. The actual harvest shows a total yield of 69,300,000 bushels for the three states, 3,300,000 greater than the July estimate and $300,000 bushels greater than last season. It was the biggest crop of wheat ever harvested in the Pacific northwest.

With its immense acreage of both spring and winter sowing it is but natural that Washington fields should lead the total of the three states. The Evergreen state this season produced a total wheat crop of 39,000,000 bushels, Oregon 19,000,000 bushels and Idaho 11,300,000.

OUT AND DRIED IN ADVANCE.

What will it avail for Jackson county to send a delegation to the congress called by Governor Withycombe to formulate a program of action in regard to the disposal of the lands of the O. & C. grant, when the program is cut and dried in advance?

The rules of order adopted by the preliminary conference provide the organization and the program. The rules provide: "No speaker shall be recognized by the presiding officer except those who have been invited to speak, and no questions may be asked of any of these speakers."

"All resolutions will be read by title and name of author only and then will be referred to the resolutions committee. Until the resolutions committee reports, the rules provide that the conference can take no action on any motion or resolution."

The speakers have already been selected. The officers have been chosen. The committee on resolutions has been appointed. There will be no chance for free speech, lest as Governor Withycombe says, "There is danger that radicalism might predominate."

This land grant conference is on a par with waterpower conference called by the recent reactionary legislature to meet in Portland September 20 to 23. This conference is called in the interest of the power trust to oppose Secretary Lane's Ferris water power bill. The Oregon delegates were named in the resolution calling the meeting.

Governor Withycombe, staunch friend of the predatory interests, has called on the governors of other western states, except California, to send delegates. These delegations are composed of representatives of the waterpower interests. California was not invited, lest Governor Johnson send a delegation representing the cause of the people. The National Conservation association is also barred.

BUREAUCRACY'S IRON RULE IN RUSSIA

Premier Wins Czar From Liberal Reform Policy Endorsed by Duma

By J. W. T. Mason. (Written for the United Press.) New York, Sept. 15.—The fight to liberalize Russia has begun. Premier Gorevkin has apparently decided not to grant reforms urged by the duma. Moreover, progressives cannot hope to obtain these changes through the reactionaries' voluntary retirement from the councils of state.

The premier has returned to Petrograd from the czar's field headquarters where he explained to the ruler what the duma's reform program proposed. Simultaneously, the government announced that it considered this program untimely.

"The government," means bureaucracy. Sometimes, the term also means the czar, sometimes, it does not. The presumption, however, is that this time it indicates the czar.

Gorevkin apparently succeeded in winning him away from reform, at least for the present. But the next man to get the czar's ear may undo Gorevkin's work, especially if the Teutons continue their advance. Undoubtedly the czar realizes, partly at least, just how far bureaucracy has been responsible for Russian defeats. But it does not follow that the czar must turn to a new democracy as the only alternative.

On the contrary, he may reassert his own autocratic power, which the bureaucrats have largely undermined. In fact, he is probably going to do this, counting on the loyalty of the peasant class to support and sustain him. Bureaucracy may favor such a move temporarily, as tending to check the demands of the liberals. Moreover, a stiffening resistance to the German onslaught, since the czar succeeded to the chief command in place of Grand Duke Nicholas, favors his pretensions to such a method.

But, the czar cannot play absolutist if the Teutons continue to advance. The liberals will be vastly assisted in their fight to democratize Russia, if Field Marshal Von Hindenburg seriously threatens Petrograd.

Hesperian Was Mined.

Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, Sept. 15.—Concluding that the liner Hesperian was mined, not torpedoed, the admiralty has disregarded the alleged statement of a survivor that he saw a submarine just before the vessel was sunk. Officials today remarked that this claim had always been advanced, even after it had been established that mines were responsible.
