

Will Ask Congress To Enforce Land Grant

occupied the place on the program which was to be given to R. A. Booth who was unable to be present. Mr. Benn spoke in behalf of the different counties of the state in which these railroad lands were located.

"Early settlement and taxation of these lands is the paramount issue," said Mr. Benn. In Lane county 46 per cent of the land pays the taxes on the entire county and contributes toward the state taxes and runs the county government. We have our share of forest reserves and not one acre of this land should ever go under control of the forest reserves. We have enough of government ownership of land. We want the lands settled and put on the tax roll."

P. F. Dunn, a Southern Pacific attorney from San Francisco, presented the side of the railroad in the present controversy, and at the beginning of his talk reviewed the history of the railroad land grants. The land was granted to the railroads, Mr. Dunn said, in order that it might cease to be public domain and might become tax bearing. When, by the terms of the grant, the railroad was forced to accept other lands in lieu of the agricultural lands within 10 miles of its tracks on either side, the company took lands in the hills and mountains. This was back in 1860 and again in 1870. Then the timber was small and practically valueless but with the growth of the timber industry the lands had become valuable timber lands and then in the guise of "actual settlers" certain interests had become anxious to become possessed of these lands at the rate of $2.50 an acre or about $400 per quarter section.

"No one had ever questioned the title of railroad company to these lands and for 40 years the company had been selling these lands at prices in excess of $2.50 an acre and in excess of 100 acres in one lot. Then the right was questioned and litigation followed and Judge Wolvertson ruled that this condition of $2.50 an acre and single quarter sections, became a "condition subsequent" according to the ruling of Judge Wolvertson. If this condition subsequent were not observed the lands might be forfeited and revert back to the government."

"The railroad holds, however, that the conditions imposed in the grant was not a condition subsequent, and the supreme court has ruled that it was simply an agreement and if the railroad did not keep this agreement when selling the lands it simply was not allowed to sell them but the title was never questioned through 40 years of dealings which were reported to congress semi-annually in due form."

"There are two points I want you gentlemen to get clearly and that is that the absolute title rests with the railroad company and again if the railroad sells these lands instead of holding them it must sell at statutory prices under the terms of the grant but suppose the railroad does not choose to sell? The railroad is under no compulsion to sell by any terms of the grant, but simply that if it does sell it must abide by the restrictions imposed by the terms of the grant and to actual settlers. The language of congress in making this grant was not restrictive but restrictive only and no limitations of time were made."

"The report of the department of commerce states that the bulk of the lands of the railroad are heavily timbered and not suitable for agriculture but it stands to reason that the lands which are timber lands only may be used to the best interests of the owner, whether private or a corporation."

"The railroad desires to meet the people half way in this proposition for the disposal of these lands and whatever your resolution to congress is let it be fair, reasonable and equitable and the railroad company will be ever on the alert to meet you on that footing and

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

to bid in releasing the suitable lands to the settlers and I am sure that you will agree that the price should be over an acre above $2.50 an acre since the railroad company has been paying taxes on these same lands at the rate of about $11 an acre.

Congressman Albert Johnson, of the Third District of Washington, viewed with alarm mostly the encroachments of the forest reserve and was decidedly against any move to throw the lands into a forest reserve. He suggested a committee of three, five or seven de-termining men to be appointed to go to Washington, D. C., to work with the state delegation in congress as he said western states out of 435 and that the eastern congressman saw little of any interest in any debate on the disposition of western lands.

Statement of Legal Rights. By George M. Brown, Attorney-General. (1) A state has no power to tax the property of the United States within its borders. (2) All of the public domain within the state remains exempt from taxation, except so far as the United States has voluntarily parted with its title to the same, which act of segregation is ordinarily evidenced by the issue of a patent.

(3) Statutes, as well as constitutional provisions, exempting property from taxation are to be strictly construed. (4) It is a presumption of law that property is taxable. (5) It is the land itself with which the state is concerned in taxing and does not look to the covenants contained in the conveyance.

(6) A proceeding to assess and collect taxes upon land in Oregon is a proceeding in rem. (7) The power of taxation is a sovereign right belonging to the state in its sovereign capacity. (8) The value of the land for the purpose of assessment is independent of any encumbrance, embarrassment, claim, lien or liability attached to the title of the property, or covenant contained in the conveyance, or any other condition that impairs the use or transfer of property.

(9) Value for taxation means the actual judgment of the public as expressed in the price which someone will pay for the land. It has also been stated as the highest price that a normal purchaser, not under peculiar compulsion, will pay at that time to get that thing. (10) The fact that the lands subsequently acquired a value in excess of limitation imposed for sale would not change the character or legal effect of the conveyance.

The principal element of interest outside of the set speeches that were delivered at the night session of the conference, was the verbal tiff between Lafferty and Senator Day, of Multnomah county. It had already been decided that in the appointment of the resolutions committee each of the counties in which railroad lands were located should have one representative. Five were to be named from the state at large and two were to be named to represent the Farmers' union and the O. R. Land Grant Enforcement association.

Lafferty maintained that the delegates at large should be appointed from counties not having representation on the committee and the controversy arose when the chairman appointed three delegates to serve of the resolutions committee who were from counties having railroad lands within their borders.

The shorthand notes and the written motion which carried giving the chairman to appoint the members of the committee appeared to sustain the chair. The following were named to serve of the resolutions committee. Benton county, W. P. Lafferty; Clackamas county, W. A. Dimeck; Clatsop county, not represented; Columbia county, A. L. Clark; Coos county, Hugh McLain; Curry county, S. P. Pierce; Douglas county, Robert E. Smith; Jackson county, W. C. Lafferty; Josephine county, H. L. Gilkey; Klamath county, Guy Knykendall; Lane county, L. E. Bean; Lincoln county, L. M. Davis; Linn county, Judge H. H. Hewitt; Marion county, Judge C. L. McNary; Multnomah county, R. G. Callvert; Polk county, C. L. Hawley; Tillamook county, G. B. McLeod; Washington county, R. N. Barrett; Yamhill county, Jesse Edwards; Grant Farmers' Union, C. E. Spencer; Labor Federation, E. J. Stack; at large, Roy Ritter, Umatilla county; E. E. Kiddle, Union county; L. N. Day, Multnomah county; W. W. Cardwell, Douglas county; V. Carter, Jackson county.

Ex-Senator Fulton Speaks. "I take the position that the proper construction of the supreme court decision is that title under the grants is vested in the railroad company and that the provisions do not constitute a condition subsequent, but simply a covenant, and while compliance with a provision will be enforced their violation affords no ground for forfeiting the grant," said former Senator Fulton in his address last night. "That being true, the title to the lands has passed from the United States and the lands have become a part of the great mass of property within the state subject to taxation and available for the state's industrial and commercial development, and it is not in the power of the general government to cause these lands to be returned to the public domain."

"The lands once having become private property and subject to taxation their status in that regard cannot be changed without the consent of the state. Hence without the state's consent they cannot be incorporated in the forest reserve or otherwise withdrawn so as to preclude the state from dealing with them as private property."

THE MARKETS

While there was some buying of wheat yesterday in Portland at advance of 2 cents, the general opinion is that this buying had nothing to do with the general condition, but merely the filling of contracts. At least, there is no change in the local prices, and the chances are that it will be hard to dispose of much wheat even at 70 cents. But the opinion seems to be among buyers, that 70 cents is the bottom.

Sugar is off ten cents a hundred retail. The poultry and egg market are holding steady, with a feeling that higher prices are due next week.

Hawley's Views Differ. Congressman Hawley delivered an address in which he took issue with the address delivered by Senator Fulton. Senator Fulton held that the lands, once withdrawn from public ownership and turned over to private ownership, could not be again turned back to the state. Congressman Hawley held that these lands could be turned back to the uses of the citizens of the state for the establishment of homes. Mr. Hawley said:

"Much has been said that I would agree with, but I would like to take issue with Senator Fulton when he says that land transferred to the government from private ownership cannot be put back to taxation. "The case is not before us as a new case. If it were there would be many solutions. We have been warned that the destiny of these lands, unless we act with dispatch, will be to go back into the forest reserve, that are our warning by Mr. Graves' letter and Mr. Fulton's address. The supreme court said the terms of the grant were an 'enforceable covenant.' I have given the subject careful thought and I am not yet prepared to say what we can do."

"In my judgment safety alone lies in asking congress that in the shortest possible law with the smallest possible enforcement it provide for the enforcement of the covenant. "The minute we try to dispose of the lands anew we abandon what rights we have under the present law. There is danger unless we insist on enforcement of the terms of the grant to the end of settlement and taxation. "It has been humorously said that the United States bets a man 100 acres of land that he can't go onto the land and keep himself alive. But that is the real test that we must have. "The population of our nation has increased while the food supply has decreased. We must give the settler a chance to go onto these lands and develop them. "Do that which can be done for the good of the state and its people. "I studied this question from the standpoint of the man I will meet and that will be raised, and it is matter of the greatest concern that we act in the way in which we can most clearly. That is along the line of the present status and the supreme court's decision. "I favor the suggestion that a committee should be appointed to go to Washington to help get our hopes realized."
