Hop Picking Ended, Prune Picking Is On, and Threshing Finished

(Capital Journal Special Service.)
Quincy, Ore., Sept. 17.—What has been Oregon's longest hop picking season, for its shortest crop of hops, is drawing to a close and the remaining beer blossoms will be under cover by Saturday night in this section. Some of the pickers have remained to gather prunes and dig potatoes, and many growers have been made to the growers for the use of hop stacks in which to spend the winter, by families who have no particular homes to return to in the cities. The threshing season has also been extended this year owing to the large acreage of grain, which is just now being cleaned up and the threshers put to work hunting clover seed. The price of this is two cents higher than last year owing to the fact that but little old seed is on the market. Last fall rains came upon the clover shocks and prevented hauling in many cases, although the clover midge would have left it a light crop anyway. This was followed by the freezing weather that killed out hundreds of acres of young clover in the winter, necessitating another planting.
Miss Christine Harold, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Beckner, motored over to Pratum Sunday to visit the Powell family, who were former residents of Clear Lake. Elbert Powell and his sister Ella, will teach the school at Brooks, beginning next Monday.

The 104 teachers of the Salem public schools met this morning in the auditorium of the high school building for a general conference and instructions. This afternoon, the teachers met with the principal of the building in which they will teach. On account of a delay in building material, the McKinley school opening will be delayed a week or more.

L. B. Denny died September 8 at his home in Myrtle Creek. A good many people in Salem will remember him as he lived here at one time. He was 65 years old and crossed the plains in '52 with his parents, Rev. John P. Denny, deceased. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter also three sisters, Mrs. H. C. Farpley, Mrs. A. E. Ginet and Mrs. J. Z. Ashby, all of Salem.

Five of the latest patterns of nitrogen lamps, using 400 watts of light, have been installed by Rostein and Greenbaum to light their new display windows. A new and improved lighting system has also been installed throughout the store. These new lights add much to the appearance of the store, and those in the window assist materially in lighting this part of Commercial street.

On account of the brown rot and cracked prunes, most of the growers of prunes are disappointed in their early estimates, as the crops are much shorter than anticipated. Many of the growers are through, while others are busy in order to get through before the rains. The dry season so far has materially helped and this has been greatly to the advantage in the crop gathering. These opinions were expressed today by C. O. Constable.

W. L. Crissey, chief assistant secretary of the O. A. C. and grant conference and G. N. Van Sant, assistant secretary, finished the minutes of the conference this morning after putting in almost the entire night on the work, and returned to Portland this afternoon. Mr. Crissey is chief of the bureau of development of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Van Sant is in the foreign commerce bureau of the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

The Woodmen of the World held an enthusiastic meeting last night and laid out plans for a campaign that it is hoped will add 300 new members to the order by the first of next year. The present membership of the order is 697, the largest organization of Woodmen of the World in the state, outside of Portland. Salem camp, No. 118, now ranks in size, third in the state. With its membership of 16,083, the Woodmen of the World has the largest membership of any fraternal insurance order in the state.

Regarding the course of study for the three higher classes in the high school, Principal J. C. Nelson states that there will be no change in the general requirements for graduation and that only the regular 15 units will be necessary. There will be a few changes in the commercial course. All pupils of the high school will report at the building Monday morning. All other pupils will report at the room they attended last year, except the seventh grade, and they will report to the junior high school building in their district. The three junior high schools are Washington, Lincoln and Grant.

Texas doesn't look good, especially after one has lived in this valley several years. At least this is the experience of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hill, who came to this country about seven years ago from the northern part of Texas, the garden spot of that state. After about six years here, Mr. Hill felt that possibly Texas was the best country for him after all and returned to Beaumont about six months ago. But it was the old story ever again, the old home wasn't what it used to be, Texas didn't exactly look right, and now Mr. and Mrs. Hill are here, and will locate on a farm near Springfield.

Plans for the tennis tournament are progressing satisfactorily and everything now points to a large attendance to determine the championship of the Willamette valley, when it comes to tennis playing. Word was received this morning from A. D. Wakeman, of Portland, one of the ranking players of the state, that he would be here with several friends. The Albany players have written that they will be here and letters of inquiry from other points indicate a large attendance from the tennis clubs in all parts of the valley. As a unique feature of the tournament, a dance will be given on Saturday, September 25, on the asphalt courts.

The public market today on Ferry street showed little more signs of activity, as six booths were taken. One week ago today but two booths were occupied. As no special notices had been given to the public of the market, and as but two farmers had produce on sale one week ago, the town people seem to have been in doubt, and business was not very rushing. There is still some feeling among the farmers that the present location is not the best for the market, and this to some extent has prevented several from bringing in their fruit and vegetables Saturday mornings. At present, it seems that the public market proposition is drifting, with no one willing to take hold of it and push it to success. This seems to be the opinion of many who are interested. One Jap came in late in the day with vegetables.

That Girl Of Yours

She'll be ready for school next week — that is, if her eyes are in normal condition, or if she is wearing properly fitted glasses. Are you sure that she is physically prepared for the long hours of study and the trying demands that will be made upon her youthful eyesight? It has been proven that seventy-five out of every hundred children have defective vision.

Are you sure—absolutely sure—that she is not among the seventy-five? She may not complain of her eyes. To you or to herself or to those around her it may not appear that there is anything wrong with them — and right there is where the danger lurks—the danger of not discovering the true cause in time to remedy it. Therefore it is a good plan to have the child's eyes examined anyway, so that you know you are on the safe side.

Headache in various forms, smarting, burning, watering eyes, dizziness, frowning, seeing double, squinting in bright light, restlessness, nervousness—these are but a few of the more noticeable symptoms of eyestrain—there are many others. Any or all of them may be corrected by glasses scientifically made and fitted. Little defects grow into big ones. Neglect is sure to cause regret later.

Eyestrain means muscle strain—and strained muscles grow constantly weaker, and that means a severe and perhaps dangerous drain on the entire nervous system. A child's eyes are delicate things, to be delicately handled. To properly fit them is a difficult problem, requiring the rarest skill and greatest experience.

My nearly 33 years' experience as an eye specialist, together with the fact that I have successfully fitted the eyes of more than 900 children in Marion and Polk counties alone, is a guarantee that I am qualified to treat your child's eyes. I use no drops or drugs, and all examinations are free from pain or discomfort. No extra charge for examination. All work guaranteed.
