TIGERS' LAST CHANCE COMES THIS AFTERNOON

Hughey Jennings' Team Has Little Show To Carry Away Pennant

By George Holmes.
 Boston, Sept. 20.—The last chance of the Detroit Tigers to figure in the world's series money was presented to Hughey Jennings' club this afternoon. Having lost two of three in the present series to Boston a defeat this afternoon will place them four games behind the fast going leaders. If they win it will leave Detroit only two games behind the Red Sox.

While it is mathematically possible for the Tigers to win the American league pennant, baseball experts regard it as just about as probable as the return of James J. Jeffries to the championship of the prize ring. Not only have the Red Sox a longer schedule before them but they will face the weaker clubs of the league, while Detroit must play the stronger.

This afternoon's contest promises to be even harder fought than the three previous battles. The Tigers realize that it is a case of do or die with them now. Not many baseball players will see more than $2,000 world's series money slip away from them without a great effort and the Detroit players are no exception.

The pitching selections for this afternoon will undoubtedly be Daus and Bath.

In the race for the National league pennant, the Phillies are in a slightly more hazardous position than is Boston in the American. In the remaining games of their schedule, they must meet the runners up in that league, the Boston Braves and Brooklyn. Like the Red Sox, however, the loss of the flag by the Phillies is a possibility, but not a probability. They are four and one-half games ahead and need only to break even during the remainder of the season.

Grover Cleveland Alexander and "Smoky" Joe Wood wouldn't sound bad as the pitching selections for the first game of the world's series.

Wants World's Series.
 New York, Sept. 20.—The Federal League again wants a chance to demonstrate that it is in a class with the major leagues, through competing in the world's series, it was learned today. President Gilmore of the Federals has challenged the National Baseball commission and demanded participation in the 1915 series.

Claims World's Record.
 Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—Martin Graves of Denver today claims the world's record for 100 miles on a motorcycle. He covered the distance Sunday at the estate fair grounds track here in 1 hour, 42 minutes and 41 seconds.

Johnson and Griffin.
 Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 20.—William M. Johnson and Clarence Griffin, national tennis champions in doubles today are challengers of the Tri-State Tennis association championship. They won the right to meet the champions when they defeated R. W. Holden, Jr. and Trux Emerson, of Cincinnati, in the finals, 8-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

FARMERS' ATTENTION.

There will be a meeting of the Woodburn Commercial and Agricultural association at the city hall in Woodburn on Monday evening, September 20, for the purpose of formulating plans and deciding upon a date for the corn show and farmers' institute to be held in the next few weeks. The drainage question which concerns the farmers of Woodburn, will be up for discussion and Mr. Chapin states that the petition has been signed up and the government has decided to send an engineer to make the preliminary survey.

It is the intention to hold these corn shows in various towns of the county and collect the exhibits to send to the National Corn show to be held at St. Paul, Minn., in the early part of December. Corn is becoming one of the Jack Ryan felt healthy in the morning at Los Angeles and let the Bees down with two bingles.

The Angels gathered four tallies. Hales won the afternoon game for Los Angeles with a timely wallop.

San Francisco and Oakland split which makes it five out of seven for the Seals.

A freak double play in the third enabled Portland to choke off a threatening Vernon scoring bee and win.

That tied up the Portland series, three all.

OREGON IS AHEAD OF MASSACHUSETTS IN ITS LIBRARY SYSTEM

Central Library Superior To Unit System Used In Eastern States

The state of Oregon is ahead of Massachusetts in the spreading of culture through public libraries and the system in vogue in Oregon is vastly better than the library of the state of Massachusetts in the minds of the librarians of the nation is the report of Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, who has just returned from a five months' trip through the east. In Oregon the state library is the repository of reference books and others that are seldom used in one single city but are in great demand throughout the state at different times. Also the local libraries have a system of exchanging books which permits one small library in a small town to secure any book that is catalogued in the state and thus the small country library has practically as many books to draw from as the library in Portland.

There are certain books of fiction and other books that are in constant demand in every town and these are generally owned by the local library and in this department the larger city had the greater supply. In Massachusetts, however, and also in most of the eastern states the local library is a unit itself, only the books on its shelves are available to the patrons. In some libraries where there are 25,000 volumes, there are 5,000 volumes that are being used constantly and the others are dead and only called for at extremely rare intervals. The Oregon system permits these reference books to be kept at the state library which is the center for distribution and when the book is called for at the local library the call is sent to the state library and the book supplied. These books are in use nearly all of the time as there is someone, somewhere, who wants one.

The Oregon system, according to Miss Marvin, is better than that of any state in the union except in California which also has a statewide system that permits a small amount of books to supply a wide demand. The eastern libraries are far ahead of the western in equipment, said Miss Marvin, but the necessities of a large demand, and a small fund to supply this demand, has forced this state to evolve a plan which makes the best of the present opportunity and distributes the supply over the state to the best advantage.

Miss Marvin also noted the activity in New England to repopulate the abandoned farms and the optimistic boosting literature that was being distributed to induce people to go back to those abandoned farms and take up scientific farming.

"How much better they could do in the fertile western states," said Miss Marvin, "but Horace Greeley's advice is being changed now to 'Young men, stay in the east and help rediscover New England!'"

Dr. John Fuller returned Monday from a vacation trip to Seaside, where he and his brother, who is located at St. Helens, spent several days in the mountains and on the seashore.

John Pugh was in the city Friday. He is interested in opening a road from the Fargo country to the Aurora road near the Geo. Kraus farm. Mr. Pugh says Aurora business houses are losing several thousand dollars of trade per year through having no open road into the Fargo section.

The burning of the A. E. Feller hop house resulted in a loss of about $1200 or $3000, with insurance of only $500. The cause of the fire is not known, but it is not believed to have been incendiary. The Hop Growers' Fire Relief Association carried the insurance. The store house containing the 1915 hop crop was saved, being at a safe distance.—Observer.

AURORA HOP NEWS

Chas. Krausberger is authority for the statement that the average Oregon hop crop for the last 10 years has been a little more than 900 pounds per acre. He estimates that this season's crop will average about 500 pounds per acre or a little more than half a crop. On the basis of 25000 acres this year, the state crop will amount to about 55,000 bales.

The early extravagant estimates of 160,000 and 185,000 bales made by the bear interests have been reduced to 125,000 and even 100,000 bales during the past weeks. The more conservative buyers now place the crop at 85,000 bales which may be a few thousand too high. Firms whose sales are not covered by contracts in full are of course anxious to depress the market until they can cover their shortage in the open market, which will account for their bearish tendencies. Those who sold short without covering their sales by contracts are also interested in bear-the market. New business has not developed sufficiently to establish market values.

Among the remarkably high records for heavy dried hops was that at the A. B. Dental yards where the hops dried at the rate of 18 pounds of dried hops to the box.

Henry L. Bents of this city who does a large English business in hops favors this plan but advises growers to make their bales as near 300 pounds as possible, thus gaining about 10 per cent in space if the hops are exported.

Civil Service Position Open to Applicants

Here is a chance to get on the government's pay roll, all the way from $800 to $2400 a year. And after once getting on the pay roll, through the civil service, the job is a life-time one, provided of course, the work is properly done.

Examinations will next week be held at Seattle, on October 5, and parties who feel competent to hold one of the various positions offered should write the postmaster at Seattle for information.

For instance, a job that pays from $1800 to $2400 a year is that of field assistant in marketing investigations. The same salary is attached to the position of assistant marketing live stock and meats. These are two of the best paying positions in the civil service.

Those who can pass a satisfactory examination for assistant in shade tree insects, will be put on the pay roll at $1400 as a starter, with the chance of working up to $1600 a year. A library assistant will be paid $60 a month with the chance of working up to $83. This position is open to both men and women. Another position that women may hold is that of laboratory aid in chemistry and physics, with a salary of from $600 to $900 attached.

A forest ranger is paid from $1100 to $1200 a year, but about the only successful applicants for this position have been those who have had some practical experience on the range besides having studied forestry at one of the state institutions.

The juvenile department of the United Artisans was organized Saturday evening with a membership of 50. A preliminary organization was effected, which will be made permanent this week. A class of 50 is regarded as an unusually large one, and it is expected to even double this number as soon as the work is under headway of securing new members. The branch of the United Artisans take up the insurance of children between the ages of two and sixteen.

Pittsburg Press: Perhaps invisible government is so called because it is everybody's plain view.
