Rev. Carl H. Elliott Speaks On Ten Prophets In Series of Addresses

Rev. Carl H. Elliott, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in his sormon Sunday morning began a series of addresses on the 10 prophets of Israel. In a preliminary statement, Mr. El-liot said that for his authority on this series of sermons, he had taken first the Bible, and then two books, one by Dr. A. D. Davidson and the other by Willard J. Beecher, of Auburn Semi-

The word prophat, said the speaker, was from Greek words meaning to speak for, and did not necessarily mean that a prophet should tell future events. Prophets often prophesied or foretold events that did not come to pass. Foretelling events was not the primary objects of the prophets of Israel.

The foretelling of an event was merely the means to an end, and was often employed by the prophets to bring the children of Israel to obedience. Prophets were independent of any organization, and according to history were to be found among the shepherds and common people as well as among kings.

According to the Bible record, prophets received messages from God either by dreams or vision, but the main thing was to be able to interpret a dream, rather than to receive a message in a dream. Taken as a whole, Mr. Elliott was of 350 Court Street Phone 124 the opinion that the special work or mission of the prophata was to keep the children of Israel in line with God's will, and to hold them true to the teach-UNDERTAKERS.
