LIVESTOCK EXHIBIT LARGEST EVER SEEN AT THE OREGON FAIR

Industrial Department Crowds Space and Others in- creased In Proportion

The state fair grounds is a busy place these days with dozens of hammers pounding in hundreds of nails to make the booths to exhibit the greatest array of products that has ever been assembled in this state. Not only will both pavilions be packed to the roof but all of the available space for livestock of all kinds is taken up and William Hogg, superintendent of the livestock department says without hesitation that there will be the finest assortment of livestock shown this year that has ever been collected outside of the Panama Pacific fair at San Francisco.

In fact considerable of the stock that is to be shown at San Francisco is stopping off at the state fair here this year. That is the reason that Tamworth swine from Iowa, three herds of cattle from Minnesota and Iowa, Parucheros from Illinois, sheep from Kentucky, and chickens from everywhere will be shown this year and for the first time the state fair crowds will be enabled to compare eastern prize stock with the western product.

In 31 Mr. Hogg estimates that there will be about 750 head of cattle, 500 sheep and swine, 150 goats and 250 horses to be shown. This does not include the race stock which is in a separate department. There will be about 100 head of Shetland ponies at the fair this year, the Levy stable of Union will exhibit 28 head, Wolf, of Woodburn; H. E. Gordon, of Newberg; C. C. Calkins of Airie, and numerous others will show the diminutive horses that become the pets of the children and the nests of the groupings.

Ed Schoel, a well known exhibitor of this state, sent in a telegram today from North Yakima where the Washington state fair is now in progress that a good exhibit of livestock would come to Salem from North Yakima this year. Among the lists of Washington stock coming here Mr. Schoel enumerated, 24 Herefords, 16 Shorthorns, 33 Jerseys, 22 Ayrshires, 42 Guernseys, 21 Holsteins, 110 sheep, 15 goats, 18 D. L. C. hogs, 18 Berkshire, 45 Hampshire, and 25 Tamworth swine. L. E. McCaleb, of Monmouth will also have entries in the Mule Footed hog class. These strange swine are a rarity on the coast and their coming will prove an event of interest to stock men.

There is one department at the fair this year that promises to far eclipse all other years and that is the industrial and school department. There are 450 boys and girls alone in this county who have been working since early spring to prepare the best exhibit possible for the state fair and the other counties in proportion have as many eager girls and boys. In nearly all of the counties district and school fairs have already been held and the prize winners are coming to the state fair with their exhibits to win more laurels and to compete for the short courses offered by the Oregon agricultural college.

The 24 club winners will receive a free trip to O. A. C. where they will be given special instruction in the following subjects: Corn growing, potato growing, vegetable gardening, poultry raising, pig feeding, dairy herd record keeping, seed grain selection and production, field pea production, fruit growing and marketing, girls especially, baking, canning and preserving, sewing, and farm and home handicraft.

In the old pavilion in the center of the building will be set up a booth where Luther J. Chapin, county agriculturist will hold a canning demonstration with some of his prize canning clubs each day. All of the most modern methods of steam canning and preserving will be demonstrated and explained to all interested parties.

Not only in the industrial department, however, but in all departments is the fair looking up this year and considering the start that is already made at this time the optimistic speculation of the "biggest and best" ever held in the state appears to be based upon real facts and are confidently expected to be realized next Monday morning when the gates open on the fifty-third annual fair.

this winter in order to be with their sons who will attend college in that city. Carl E. Miller, who has been doing laboratory work this summer in the office of Dr. B. F. Pound, will leave tomorrow for Portland to attend the Northern Pacific College of Dentistry, and Albert Miller will also leave in a few days to attend a trade school.

In the construction of the new building for the Roth Grocery company on Liberty street, Theodore Roth is holding pretty close to the "Try Salem First" idea, as so far, all the contracts have been awarded to Salem firms. One of the most important contracts, that of heating, was awarded today to the plumbing firm of T. M. Barr, who will install one of his own inventions, Barr's Economy boilers. This boiler will have a 2,000 square feet radiating surface and will be brick set.

Tomorrow is again market day, but it is not known how many of the farmers will bring in produce. Those who have been bringing in fruit and vegetables, as well as chickens and eggs, have been fairly successful in disposing of their goods, considering there has been no concerted effort on the part of the farmers, or any assurance given the town folks that there would be a market to patronize. Many of those interested, expect a better market after the farmers decide on a location.

The Elliott Printing house today closed a lease for the basement of the Salem Bank of Commerce building, and will move into their new quarters about the fifteenth of next month. Their new location will include the entire basement, formerly occupied by the Salvation army barracks. The Elliott Printing house has been in its present location on Commercial street for 12 years, five years on the upper floor, and seven years on the lower.

Here is good news for the housekeeper. Sugar is going down and is now at the low price of last January. The best cane sugar is now quoted at 46.25 a hundred. Last February the highest price of the year was reached, when sugar sold for eight and three-quarters cents a pound. On top of this good news of reduced prices in sugar comes the announcement in the Portland papers of reduced prices in flour, which will become effective here in a day or two.

A call has been made to the Cherrians to meet Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Commercial club, when committees for the week will be appointed and arrangements made for special drills and other exercises of the week in which the Cherrians will take an active part. J. H. Lauterman, chairman of the reception committee, will have charge of the Cherrians Monday, and will appoint committees for that day to meet trains and to officiate otherwise in making strangers feel at home.

State Engineer John H. Lewis returned last night with Percy A. Copper, assistant engineer, from the water power conference which has been in session in Portland. Mr. Lewis was unable to say how far-reaching the effects of the conference would be. However, he said he was much interested in the discussions as some of the ablest water power men in the country were present. The discussions in the night failed to influence any votes on the final resolutions as Mr. Lewis expressed the opinion that the vote would have been the same if no discussion had been given, each man being more or less of an expert and having opinions of his own.

Fred F. Hinshaw, of the U. S. geological survey, left Salem this morning to make a trip through the valley an eastern Oregon in conjunction with the state engineer's force to check up the measurements of the stream gauging stations. From Eugene Mr. Hinshaw will cross the mountains to eastern Oregon and will check up the stations as far south as Warner valley in Lake county. This department of the U. S. geological survey checks over the measurements of the local stations to determine and establish the high and low water marks of the streams in the interests of irrigation, water power and navigation.

During state fair week, a seven and a half minute service to the grounds will be maintained by the Salem Street Railway. The cars will be run in sections of three, and will be put on with the early morning runs. In order to give good service and properly handle the crowds here next week, six large open cars have been rented from the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, of Portland, and will be in constant

To investigate reports of fire blight in the neighborhood of Homere, C. O. Constable, county fruit inspector, was working in that section of the county today. Beginning next week, he will take up the work of inspecting nursery stock in the nurseries and at the same time continue his search for fire blight.

The Salem fire department was called out at a little after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to handle a brush fire that had got beyond control near State and Twenty-first streets. The fire was following down a ditch filled with rubbish and had reached a sign board which was then burning. The department laid out a line of hose and drowned the flames.
