PORTLAND VISITORS WELCOME GUESTS OF COMMERCIAL CLUB

Manager Hardy of Portland and Others Make Interesting Addresses

To meet representatives of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, here in the interest of the Manufacturers' and Land Products show, a fair representation of the Salem Commercial club was present last evening at a dinner given the visitors at the Marion hotel.

Introducing George E. Hardy, the new manager of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, A. J. Kingsley, of Portland stated they had found it advisable to go out of the city for their manager and had finally selected Mr. Hardy on account of his experience in civic work and understanding of shipping problems.

"I am amazed at your beautiful civic center, one that the eastern cities are spending millions for," said Mr. Hardy. "You have one of the nicest little cities I have ever seen, and I never saw a more beautiful country than I have seen today, and I have traveled in all parts of the country."

Lack of Interest Hurts. Referring to the work of commercial clubs, he said the great trouble was to arouse an interest among the members and to get them to work, as the average man was willing that the secretary or manager should do it all. "As to your market problem, I hope for some practical solution. How to dispose of the things grown is really your great problem."

He suggested the Missouri plan which is "get to know your neighbor, you might like him." Complimenting the commercial club on its stand, and the fact that even the large cities in the east are becoming interested in the farmer, and that efforts were being made to get every farmer in the country interested and a member of a commercial club.

Must Plan for Future. "The Portland Chamber of Commerce is willing to do all it can for Salem and is proud of the capital city. You must plan for the future, ten years ahead as things work out. The man who has no time to help the community is a very common individual, and the citizen who has no grave concern about the city, is of grave concern to the city. Portland hopes to form a federation of the commercial clubs of the state and hold meetings when the officers of all the commercial clubs in the state will meet and discuss their needs."

Talks of Land Show. A. J. Kingsley, president of the Manufacturers' and Land Products show, offered the suggestion that these shows were to bring the producer and consumer closer together and to interest the people in general in the products of the state. He figured that out of every $600 worth of goods manufactured, 40 per cent was for labor, and this $240 was kept in the state in the way of a pay roll. It would wonder fully benefit the state.

In the show this year, 23 counties are fully represented, 12 of them with separate exhibits," said Mr. Kingsley. "We are holding this show under the auspices of the Portland Chamber of Commerce. There is no profit to anyone. Anything we can do to bring the consumer and producer together and induce the retailer to buy goods manufactured in Oregon, will be a good thing for the whole state. Our work is also educational as we will have exhibits from the Portland and other schools. Our object is to help outside cities as well as Portland. We cannot grow without the help and support of the state, and anything you want the Chamber of Commerce to do, call on us and we will do it."

Must Pay Bigger Salaries. D. C. Freeman, industrial commissioner of the Hill lines, stated that one of the objects of the Portland show was to familiarize the people of the state with its products and that for the first time, all the outside counties would have creditable exhibits. He read a telegram from the Portland Chamber of Commerce urging the Cherrans and Commercial club to attend on Salem day, November 3.

O. M. Plummer, president of the school board of Portland, and a man holding half a dozen positions of prominence in the city, spoke vigorously on the school problem. "Get behind your schools and give them the best you have," said Mr. Plummer. "If you want to be a great city and known as a center of learning, get the best teachers in the United States. Pay your teachers more money. I understand you have a teacher who has devoted 20 years to the work and you are only paying this teacher $1,000 a year. Salem should establish the fact that it has the best teachers on the coast. Then people would come here to live. The farmer comes to the town that has the best schools. Make Salem known as a center of learning, where the children can get the best instructions in the country. That is the biggest problem you have today. Teach the boy, not the old man. The boys and girls are the ones that will shove us on to prosperity. I prophesy there will be a junior high school in the city within a few years named the Albert school. I hope Mr. Alberts won't wait too long before giving that $50,000 for a junior high. Get behind your schools and you won't have to worry about the future of Salem."

Wants Farmers to Attend. H. B. Miller, of Eugene, spoke briefly on the kind of civilization of the present day, claiming that the best communities are where there is the greatest diversity in life.

Judge Scott suggested that a strong effort be made to get the farmers to attend the show in Portland on Salem day, November 3. This idea met with the approval of President Hamilton, who acted as toast master for the evening.

WILLAMETTE NOTES

Dean Chase has selected the young ladies who will compose the Ladies' Glee club for the coming year. Those chosen were: Olive Roache, Carrie Cook, Fannie McKernon, Margaret Garrison, Leila McCadden, Ruth Spoor, Grace Sherwood, Violet Maclean, Lucile McCully, Ruth Winters, Louise Benson, Glenna Teeters, Esther Emmel, Venita McKinney, Maude Maclean, Caroline Sterling, Valada Hoxie, Esther Cox, Lela Jones and Winifred Bagley. They met yesterday afternoon for their first practice at the music hall.

Sandwiches, to supply the crowd that awaited on the steps after chapel, were not forthcoming, at least in great enough numbers. Five baskets of them were sold in a short time, but so hungry was the crowd for the delicious morsels that only about half were able to get any of them. Next Wednesday the Y. W. C. A. plan to supply everyone.

Oscar Lund, ex-'16 was a visitor on the campus this morning. He was a member of "Doc" Sweetland's famous football team while in school two years ago. He stated that it seemed good to come back and see old friends.

It is probable that Willamette will meet Chemawa on the home gridiron next Saturday. With no game, between now and the big game of the year, October 30, when U. of O. comes to Salem, the game with Chemawa will help wonderfully in keeping the team on edge for the big battle. Coach Mathews has been working his men hard this week and they are beginning to show results in the manner in which they play.

Willis "Jack" Bartlett invited several of his friends in last night to one of the most unique and at the same time interesting parties that has been held in university circles for some time. The evening's entertainment consisted in having everyone present write a 500 word essay, taking up some specific phase of art. Those present were all delinquent members of Prof. Wallace McMurray's popular advanced rhetoric class. The essays will be presented to the professor for his enjoyment. About 11:30 o'clock a sumptuous "feed" was enjoyed by all. Those present were: Messrs. Joe Gerhart, John Gary, "Toots" Bartlett and Harold Tobie.

Miss Barbara Steiner, a popular young lady of the freshman class, was elected vice-president of the class Monday.

ALIENIST SAYS GIRL IS A SEMI-IMBECILE Indications Are That Killing of Cripple Was Not Done In Self Defense

San Francisco, Oct. 21.—Convinced that Mrs. Mary Parnis alone backed up the body of Michael Weinstein, her crippled son, after decapitating him, as she confessed, police today turned their attention to unraveling a few unanswered questions in the grisly mystery.

They still wanted to know, why, if the murder was in self defense, after the Atlantic City fruit dealer had attacked her, she had a new trunk in the house. It was hinted that they believed this might have been intended for the same purpose for which she used the box couch to hide the torso.

Alienists differed as to the girl's wife's mentality. One held she was sub-normal and committed the murder in cold blood, instead of in self defense. Another said she was very possibly normal.

Still another alienist ventured the opinion that the girl is a semi-imbecile. He declared that a person killing in self defense would not attempt to hack up a body after the killing, but instead would promptly notify the police, knowing they had a good excuse.

The girl explained that her husband wanted her to go to Los Angeles and that, for this reason, she had bought the mysterious trunk.

As to why some of Weinstein's clothes were found in the murder room, she said that he had left her before the killing, and then had returned partially disrobed.

The girl will not be arraigned for probably a week. In the meantime her mentality may be tested by experts, as there is some doubt that she is mentally normal. Some authorities inclined to think that the extremes to which her slaying went indicated more than merely the self defense and subsequent fear of the law which she pleaded as her excuse.

Day to fill a vacancy that existed.

Arrangements are being completed to hold a cross country run on October 30. The race will be started early in the afternoon so that the finish will come between halves of the U. of O. W. U. football game. A large silver cup will be awarded to the winner. The cup is the gift of Houser Bros. It is something that will be well worth winning. A large number of men have been out training for the past week in preparation for the race, which promises to become a permanent one. Last year Norman Hayner, ex-'15, but now a student at the U. of W., won first place. His absence leaves considerable speculation as to who will be the winner.

PANIC ON FERRY BOAT

New York, Oct. 21.—Trampled by horses on the lower deck and thrown into a panic, more than 50 persons were injured today when a Lackawanna railroad ferry crashed through a heavy fog into the Christopher street pier head. More than 500 were aboard and these were mostly women. Screaming in terror, they were landed finally in safety, though not before they had been caught in a stampede of horses, and a jam of automobiles on the lower deck.

A TURKISH STORY.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Unspeakable atrocities were charged against Russian troops in a dispatch made public by the Turkish embassy today. This said that they pined Armenian babies' cheeks to prevent them from nursing and that many starved to death. Women looted over precipices rather than face the tortures. Aged and wounded men were smeared with kerosene and burned alive.

Today, Tomorrow, Saturday

"In a peculiar degree the United States seems to be reborn from generation to generation, because renewed out of all the sources of human energies of the world. There is here a great MELTING POT in which we must compound a precious metal. That metal is the metal of nationality."

WALKER WHITESIDE IN THE MELTING POT

Perhaps no moving picture which has been made in America will be found to compare in the number of people used and the diversity of types with "The Melting Pot," in which the Cort Film corporation has starred Walker Whiteside, known to many a critic as "the premier dramatic artist of the world." In the various scenes presumed to take place in the Russian city of Kishineff more than 5,000 extra people were used in order to give the atmosphere of a large city filled with a shifting population. In the American scenes, notable among which is the concert hall setting, which called forth much commendation from the critics of pictures, thousands were used. The concert hall scene alone took more than a thousand extras, including a real symphony orchestra of 100 players, who performed a Beethoven symphony during the run of the rehearsal, and the actual taking of the picture so that the great audience assembled might get into the proper attitude in front of the camera.

There has been no more thrilling affair put on the screen than the picture of troops of the czar's horsemen riding down the defenseless crowd of fleeing men, women and children in the Kishineff massacre. For this scene an absolute reproduction of a street in Kishineff, with a synagogue at the end, was built especially for "The Melting Pot." This most wonderful and magnificent production that equals if not surpasses "The Birth of a Nation," will be shown at the Ye Liberty theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Ward of Industrial School For Girls Is Restored to Husband

The romance which culminated in the marriage of Mary Begg, a girl paroled from the Girls' Industrial school, to Francis Lockhart, and which was shattered by the girl being sent back to the school, was patched up this morning when the board of control restored the bride to the waiting arms of her new husband, so to speak. Secretary Oleott was appealed to to use his influence to repair the shattered home and since the secretary of state considered that marriage is no crime it was decided that the recent Mrs. Lockhart might again reside at the kitchen stove in their bungalow.

Mr. Lockhart is said to be a well to do young farmer residing in Portland and they received the very best wishes of the matron of the school, Mrs. Hopkins. The couple were wedded in Vancouver soon after the girl was paroled and since the paroled girls cannot contract matrimonial obligations without the permission of the board of control it was considered that she had violated the terms of her parole and she was brought back to the school by Matron Hopkins while the case was being investigated.

The girl was committed from Multnomah county by Judge Stevens on a charge of vagrancy. Mr. Lockhart claims that the worst crime his bride ever committed was laughing in church.

Former Journal Man Pursued by Misfortune

The two children, aged two and five years, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Sefton, formerly of this city and now residing at 1872 Pike street, Portland, narrowly escaped being burned to death yesterday morning when they set the house afire while playing with matches. The house, which was a one-story dwelling, valued at about $400, was burned to the ground.

The little girl, aged five, attempted to put out the flames but, finding it impossible, ran to call her mother, leaving the baby in the burning house.

Mr. Sefton was employed on the Capital Journal during the summer of 1914 in the circulation department. While riding his motorcycle over in Polk county he ran into a dead rut and was pitched headlong into the road sending him to the hospital where he hovered between life and death for days and did not entirely regain his strength for nearly a year.

Polk County Officials Want Bridge Inspected

(Polk County Observer.) A petition to the state highway commission was mailed by the county commissioners on Saturday, asking that the officers appoint a competent engineer to carefully examine the inter-county bridge in all its parts and report upon its condition. The engineer's office will probably have Mr. Holmes, a bridge construction expert, inspect the structure early this week, in fact the county court has been given to understand that the inspection started yesterday, and the report will be made sometime this week. A detailed report is asked for by the court, and upon this will be determined the necessity for a new structure or the repair of the present bridge.

It was the opinion expressed by the Polk county commissioners that it would be far better to rebuild the county for a new structure than to jeopardize the lives of those who travel over the bridge, but if there are no physical defects in the structure the expense of a new bridge will not be undertaken at this time.

OLD HOLD-UP DAYS RETURN

New York, Oct. 21.—Plying their trade as in days of western hold-ups, bandits early today followed up the recent West Shore hold-up by an attempt to rob the "Six Express," carrying a small fortune in raw silk. Railroad detectives, however, drove them off with rifles, while the robbers kept up a running fight until they disappeared in the underbrush. Posses are now combing the underbrush about Ridgewood, N. J.
