THE MARKETS

About the only change in the market today is in the retail price of hard wheat flour, which has advanced five cents a sack. Valley flour is expected to take another upward price within a few days.

Some mills are offering but 83 cents for wheat today, while others are holding at the 85 cent price of the past week. The market in all other lines is steady.

ITALY NOW MOBILIZED

Rome, Oct. 20.—Italy today called to the colors four more classes of reserves, thus completing her mobilization. No official explanation was given but rumors immediately followed that the additional forces were intended for Balkan service. These reports were strengthened by official admission that no more troops are needed at the Austrian frontier.

AMERICANS CAN'T COME

Washington, Oct. 21.—Turkey has advised the United States, through Ambassador Morgenthau, that she is unable to comply with the request of the American relief committee for immediate release of Armenians, for whom a committee guaranteed transportation to America. Inability to locate them was the reason given.

OPEN FORUM

WHAT CITIZEN THINKS OF IT.

Editor Capital Journal: I want to throw my hat in the ring in this county agricultural controversy.

We already have a fruit inspector and a livestock inspector and a dairy inspector, I am told. Though few farmers have ever seen these officers.

Now the county court is asked to swing open the doors of the county treasury and take out $1200 to pay half of the salary of another kind of farm inspector or rather instructor, or expert agriculturist or something like that.

If the taxpayers of this county will come through with their share of the "wad" our Uncle Samuel says, through another expert stationed at the O. A. C., that he will also put up $1200 to complete Mr. Chapin's salary for one whole year—$200 a month.

Fine job and good pay for telling experienced farmers how to grow crops. Money talks in this farming business as in any other kind of a financial venture. When there is profit in sight on what we can grow, we'll deliver the goods.

Until we are encouraged by a reasonable hope of profit we simply will not try to grow much of anything in our fields. Why should we?

That's what is the matter with agriculture in the United States today. It's not want of knowledge of how to grow crops—bigger crops—some of our city farmers would have you believe, that is responsible for our waning agriculture in this country. It is the uncertain, vacillating, manipulated markets for farm products that is at the bottom of the whole trouble.

Big business is responsible for much of the unrest among our farmers. One of the slogans, silently expressed is "Farm the farmers" and a careful study of their operations in securing favorable laws passed to carry out their designs will convince anyone that they are beginning to succeed admirably.

The Smith-Lever bill passed by our last national congress lays the foundation for this whole movement. Vast millions of public funds are to be expended to teach the American farmers how to grow bigger crops. But little or nothing will be done to teach the farmers how to organize themselves into co-operative buying and selling associations, or enable them to establish rural credit banks.

The manner in which this invisible octopus, Big Business, has succeeded in fastening one of its tentacles on Oregon and around our agricultural college is a long, long story and, if written, would not be very flattering to some of our former lawmakers.

Briefly speaking, Marion county taxpayers are now asked to help finance this gigantic scheme to farm the farmers; ostensibly to increase the supply of food for the hungry millions; but, in fact, to encourage our farmers to grow maximum yields on their farms to be dumped into an oversupplied market and then doled out to consumers at the other end of the series of toll gates for all the traffic will bear.

I do not believe that any member of the "Each-for-All-and-All-for-Each Club" is aware that his organization, like other similar commercial organizations throughout the United States is being cunningly used to promote the interests of Big Business.

Late investigations of our government has brought to light the appalling situation that sixty per cent of all the wealth of this nation is owned by two per cent of our population. Think of it! Two million of our people have in their personal possession more than the remaining ninety-eight millions of our people own of the total wealth of the United States.

The amazing thing is that, not content with what they already have, they are now quietly and greedily grasping for as much more as they can get, through secretly setting movements on foot among the masses. The argument used is what is asked is for the exclusive benefit of the people.

Among such schemes for "working" the dear people is authorizing large issues of interest-bearing bonds to construct hard surfaced highways; urging enormous appropriations for national defense and the movement to work the farmers and consumers through the Smith-Lever law so as to increase the tonnage for railroads; increase the call for money in the banks to move the groups and supply the national wholesalers with commodities on which to increase their present enormous profits.

It is out of the allied interests of vast business organizations and inter-organizations from which these movements known popularly as "Big Business" come.

We are dealing with one manifestation of such a movement here in Marion county now while we are being offered the services of a special agricultural expert.

His labor, we are told, will be for the benefit of all. In the final analysis the purpose is to create more wealth with which to make the already surfeited rich, still richer, while, through overproduction, the farmers would become more impoverished and consumers would still be asked to pay for their food and clothing the very highest price they could afford.

Should any one doubt the truth of the above let him investigate carefully behind the scenes where Big Business is at work and he will be convinced of its truth.
