Cheese, Butter, Etc., In Export Trade of 1915

Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.—Cheese, butter, and other butter fats are again becoming important factors in our export trade after a long period of comparative inactivity. Fifteen or 20 years ago the United States was selling abroad between 20 million and 30 million pounds of butter from 50 million to 80 million pounds of cheese, and from five million to 10 million pounds of imitation butter annually. In later years, however, exports of this class decreased in a marked degree and in the fiscal year 1914 had fallen far below the quantities named. In the year just ended there was a distinct revival in all these lines, with totals closely approximating the high levels touched in the decade from 1890 to 1900.

The large gains made by domestic dairy products and butter substitutes are well illustrated by figures published by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, department of commerce, in the June "Summary of Foreign Commerce." Butter, usually averaging about three and one-half million pounds annually in our export trade, in 1915 went to nearly 10 million pounds. During this period imports of butter were reduced by more than one-half, falling from a little less than eight million pounds in 1914 to less than four million pounds last year.

American cheese, running at about two and a half million pounds a year, went to 5 1/2 million pounds in the fiscal year 1915. Here also, as in the case of butter, the trade balance was transferred to the export side, for the year's imports of cheese last year only totaled 50 million pounds, a decrease of 13 3/4 million pounds from the total for 1914. Exports of condensed milk, usually exported in sums valued at between one million and two million dollars annually, in 1915 rose to three million dollars in value, the quantity (37 million pounds) being double that of 1914.

Imitation butter contains in addition to oleomargarine oil some butter fat. The exports of this article also doubled, raising from three and a half million pounds in 1914 to five and one-fourth million pounds last year. England has become our largest foreign market for butter, cheese, and condensed milk, having taken three and a third million pounds of butter, out of a total export of 10 million pounds; 48 1/2 million pounds of cheese, out of a total export of 54 million pounds; and four million pounds of condensed milk, out of a total export of 37 million pounds. Canada, Cuba, Panama, Australia and Venezuela also take considerable quantities of American butter; Panama and the West Indies are important markets for our cheese; while Cuba, Belgium, the Netherlands, China, Japan, Hongkong, Russia, Cosen, Panama and Brazil take large amounts of American condensed milk.

These exports, while important, represent a very small proportion of the annual products of the 60 million cattle on American farms, valued at more than two and a third billion dollars. As long ago as 1909, the latest period covered by the national census, we produced 1,619 million pounds of butter, 321 million pounds of cheese, and 5,814 million gallons of milk, while the quantity of oleomargarine on which internal revenue tax was paid in 1914 aggregated 142 million pounds.

AUSTRIANS CLAIM GAINS

Vienna, by wireless to Bayville, Oct. 22.—Successes for the Austrians on all fronts were claimed today. The official statement told of a battle raging with the Russians yesterday southwest of Czartorysk, southeast of Kulkibor, near Novo Aleksiniek, 1300 prisoners were taken. In Serbia, the Austrians occupied Sabac, and General Von Kovecs advanced on the heights of Kolubara to the mouth of the Tisza. Another force passed the Ralyar district south of Grocka. In the struggle with the Italians the statement said "Italian attacks along the whole Isonzo front failed completely."

RAILROAD CONNECTS THEM

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 21.—The trail of the iron horse today links Port Angeles and Port Townsend. The first train over the Seattle, Port Angeles & Western railway, branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, carried officials of that road yesterday. It passes through a rich timber, dairy and agricultural region on the Olympic peninsula. Seattle will be connected with the Port Townsend terminus by a ferry service. Regular freight and passenger service will be inaugurated in a month, it is announced.

Pacific Salmon In New England Streams

Numerous reports have been received by the bureau of fisheries confirming early indications that a run of humpback salmon has been established on the coast of Maine. The fish that have been observed are the first results of plants made in February, 1914. The humpback salmon is a rapid grower, and attains full maturity in two years. For this reason, and because of its high value as a food fish when taken in salt water or when fresh run from the sea, the bureau selected this species for introduction into selected New England streams. Many fish weighing five to seven and a half pounds have been taken or seen in Pezoboot river, Maine, and 20 were captured alive by agents of the bureau near Bangor and held in an effort to obtain ripe eggs. From two or three fish 3,000 eggs were taken on September 6 and, after fertilization, sent to the Craig Brook hatchery for incubation. Accounts of the appearance of this new fish in various minor rivers have come in, and in the Denysa river there was a noteworthy run which began as early as August 15 and was continuing as late as September 24. The local fishermen caught and ate large numbers, and during the week of September 20 an employe of the Green Lake hatchery took 35 fish (eight males and seven females) which had passed through the fishways in dams in Denysa river and were dropping down stream in a open condition; at the same time both live and dead fish were observed below the dams.
