Minister Talks On Plumb-Line and Uses

Rev. Carl H. Elliott spoke Sunday morning to his junior congregation from the text in Amos, 7:7. "I will set a plumbline in the midst of Israel."

Presenting to view a real plumbline he said to his juniors, "I am sure that you have seen this tool and many of you know its use. It is used by masons and bricklayers to guide them in building their walls straight. It is used also by owners and inspectors after the walls are finished to see if they are plumb or straight. It is both a guide and a test."

But God is more interested in straight lives than He is in straight walls and he has given us this book or Bible to tell us when our lives are not straight and to guide us in making them straight.

We hear of some men who "are straight as a string" and of others who are too crooked to mention. The former have been guided by the plumbline and the others have built thoughtlessly or as they chose.

Boys and girls are often tempted to do things that are wrong. Some lie about their age when they go to the fair or ride on the train. When they do they are not using God's plumbline.

Abraham Lincoln was one who was known as "straight as a string" even when he was a grocery boy. One night just as he was closing the store a lady called for half a pound of tea and he gave it to her, but the next morning happened to notice the scales which showed only a quarter of a pound and he knew at once that he had given only half as much tea as the lady as she had paid for and he at once closed the store and delivered the extra quarter pound to her. At another time he walked two miles after hours to return six cents that he had taken by mistake.

I read of another boy who became a very useful man. When a boy he failed in Greek and was urged by his mates to use a "pony" or translation but he would not say that it was bad enough to fail but it would be worse to lie.

Let this plumbline teach us this lesson: We can build our lives straight by using God's guide and at least they will stand His plumbline test.

During the seven weeks here, Sunday spoke to over 800,000 while another 100,000 attended meetings conducted by members of his party. Included in the 13,922 sawdust trailers were 4,104 juveniles.
