Thomas H. Camm, who was reported by the Seattle papers to have committed suicide in that city by taking poison, Monday of this week, was well known in Salem. He lived here a number of years during the 70's and was clerk of the board of school land commissioners under the administration of Governor Grover. He left this city and moved to Seattle in 1880. According to the Seattle papers, he is said to have become despondent. He was 82 years old, coming to Oregon in 1860. When he lived in this city, his home was at 266 North Church street.

Like the novel, Graustark is one of the most popular plays ever presented in Salem. The full houses during fair week at the Oregon prevented many Salem people from enjoying this popular photoplay. So many patrons were disappointed that a return engagement has been arranged for today only.

Among the several groups of women who were discussing prison reform last evening at the close of the address of Joseph P. Byers, the opinion is general that within a short time the prison proposition, and the handling of the mentally defective will become a political issue, backed by the Woman's Federation of the state. Many expressed the thought that in a very short time, the strength of any political party will depend on the stand taken in regard to reform in the handling of county jails, employment of prisoners, and the segregating of the habitual criminal from young, first offenders.

SEATTLE IS SECOND

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 27.—Seattle takes second place in the country as an importing port, according to the report received here today from Washington, D. C., for the week ending October 23. Its imports of $3,853,015, were exceeded only by New York. Seattle takes fifth place as an exporting port for the same period, being exceeded by New York, Galveston, New Orleans and Boston. It is also fifth in total volume of business.

Club Will Discuss Bridge Questions

Tonight, the Salem Commercial club will discuss fully the bridge question from the standpoint of Salem, and the business men of the city. The meeting was called to especially get the views of the business men, and as to what part Salem will take in the question that is of vital importance to every man in the city, and especially to the business men and tax payers. Judge Bushey has been urged to be present, as well as commissioners Beckwith and Goulet. Assistant engineer Sadler will express his views of the situation from the standpoint of an engineer, and it is also hoped that the Polk county commissioners will make it convenient to attend.

There is a feeling among the business men that the Commercial club should become interested at once in the bridge question, and that the club should show a disposition to cooperate with Polk county and come to some quick decision.

As the bridge question is by far the most important matter before the citizens of Salem, as well as those living across the river, it is expected that the matter will be pretty thoroughly discussed. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock.

Upon the inquiry of the State Industrial Accident commission today Attorney General Brown gave out the opinion that the laws of the state applying to the industrial accident-commission would apply to work going on within the Crater Lake National park. It was incorporated in the law passed by the last session of the legislature that the laws of the state apply to all national reserves unless the United States government has exclusive jurisdiction and that the government will not be considered to be in exclusive jurisdiction until a surrender of the state rights have been made to the proper federal authorities and the governor officially notified that the government accepts all responsibilities for the district in question. No notification relative to the Crater lake reserve has been made to the governor.

TO HAVE WORK HOUSES TAKE PLACE OF JAILS

Joseph P. Byers Makes Strong Address Before Federation of Women's Clubs

Abolish the county jails and substitute county work houses was the suggestion offered last evening by Joseph P. Byers, president of the American Prison association, in his address last evening before the State Federation of Women's clubs in the house of representatives.

"In the average county jail, no man comes out any better and the most of them, worse. Go and visit your county jails. You will find young men and regular criminals herded together. For the young offender, a house of detention is much better than a county jail, and the work house better than a jail sentence. Send your hoboes to the work house and also your inebriates. For the first offense, give him 30 days real work, and double it if the offender comes before the court a second time. Every man placed in the county jail, as now constituted, should have a speedy trial."

Taking up the general problem of prisoners, Mr. Byers stated that each man should be studied, and the conditions under which he committed the crime. Habitual criminals and the weak should be segregated. Records in the eastern prisons had shown that 90 per cent of the crimes has been committed by repeaters, constituting only 57 per cent of the prisoners. A prisoner should be sentenced on his known criminal character, and moreover, people of known criminal character should be taken in.

Believes in Honor System. "I believe in the honor system, but trusting a man does not make him honorable. Honor is synonymous with self interest. Any desirable form of government in a prison must be a monarchy. The honor system can be overdone, but in all dealings with prisoners, they must be made to feel a governing force.

As to the feeble minded, the speaker emphasized the fact that they should not be sentenced to prison, but should be sent to a place where they could improve. Irresponsible persons, not quite weak enough to be sent to insane hospitals, do great damage in prisons, as they are the tool of stronger minds.

"Something is wrong in Oregon. You are guilty of a great injustice to men in your state prison. Idleness means degeneration of body as well as mind. I saw one-half of your prisoners idle, when they should all have been at work. The prison officials can do nothing. Right here is a great chance for the women's clubs to do a great work, in urging legislators to provide work for your state prisoners. They are organizing a night school. You should have had prison schools years ago. They will find their teachers. The women's clubs will have an opportunity to give them books. It is a pity to compel men to be idle.

Men Should Be Employed. "I like your warden. He looks good and sound to me. He needs encouragement, but he can do nothing under your present state laws. I am addressing the greatest influence in the state of Oregon, and you should make it felt on this prison proposition."

As to the employment of the prisoners, the speaker acknowledged that 520 prisoners could not be employed in manufacturing articles of use and wear for the other state institutions, but that some other means of employment, such as road making and clearing land might be employed.

The Rev. O. H. Holmes of Forest Grove, a member of the Oregon parole board, stated that 520 prisoners were now confined in the pen and that a number would soon be 600, and the 20 now working on flax would soon be reduced to 100 and later there would be no work.

"It is a burning shame we have to herd 520 men together, with nothing to do. As to paroling men, we will not turn any man loose unless he has employment. We have 42 men up for parole now and more to come before the board of parole at its meeting next Saturday."

Federation Indorses Ideas.

In the discussion that followed, it developed that prisoners have opportunity to write all the letters necessary for their welfare. It was also shown that the letters sent to prisoners on parole were in blank envelopes, with merely the rural number of the penitentiary on the upper left hand corner, so that no one, unless familiar with a prison envelope, would recognize it.

The general opinion of the women was that if the parole board would frame a bill providing for employment of the prisoners, the federation would support it.

Mr. Byers made a very favorable impression and his ideas coincide with those in the city who have made a study of the prison problem. He is perhaps the greatest authority in the country on the prison proposition, as besides holding the office of president of the American Prison association, he is executive secretary of the national committee for the care of the feeble minded.

Exhibits in Game Case Are "Strong" Evidence

The exhibits in the case of the state against Robert Wetherill, charged with violation of the game laws, were taken out of cold storage for the trial in Justice Webster's court yesterday and the jury disagreed. The exhibits were two China Pheasant hens and they have been on ice since October 3 when they were killed. In the event that the case is carried to the supreme court, the hope was expressed that the cold storage would do its duty before the health officer got wind of the affair. Wetherill was charged with having two more hens in his possession by Roy Bremmer, game warden, and the case has been pending since October 3. The cold storage has done its work nobly so far but every time the exhibits are brought into a heated court room another element is added to the case. W. C. Winslow appeared for the defendant and District Attorney Ringo represented the state.
