SALEM AND ALBANY BATTLE FOR HONORS ON WILLAMETTE FIELD

Large Crowd of Staunch Supporters Follow Invaders To This City

The Albany High school football team with its aggregation of rosters numbering over three hundred arrived in this city today to take part in the annual affair between the Salem and Albany High schools on Willamette field this afternoon. The Albany contingent is reported to be in good condition for the game and Salem is not suffering particularly on account of injuries though Coach Clancy says several of his men in the first lineup may be forced to retire early if they happen to be bumped in a sore spot.

The Albany Huskies average a shade better than 190 while Salem weighs in at 156. White will fill in at right guard in place of Carson in today's Salem lineup and Williams will play left tackle in place of Maloney. The Albany lineup will stand as announced yesterday.

Willamette field is soft today but has dried off sufficiently to ensure a fast game. Yesterday it was under water but the porous soil dries rapidly when the rain stops. On a fast field the heavier Albany line will have but slight advantage over Salem and the speedy Salem backfield is expected to make the most of their fleetness of foot.

If the score of today's game stands in Salem's favor the Red and Black warriors have an excellent chance to land the valley championship when they meet Columbia University here on Thanksgiving day. Hauser of Chemawa will referee, "Pete" Anderson, of Albany will umpire and Ben McClelland is slated to act as head linesman in the game this afternoon.

FALLS CITY NEWS

(Capital Journal Special Service.)
Falls City, Ore., Nov. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. N. Selig left Thursday for San Francisco, where they will attend the exposition for several weeks.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Collins, Tuesday evening, a girl.

Friday is to be "Go to School day" and every parent should be at the meeting. If they are not there, it is their own fault for invitations have been extended to every parent to come out on that day.

Mrs. Kate Kief and Miss Edna Wickard, of Chamute, Kas., who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Talbot, left Saturday for their home. Mrs. Talbot accompanied them as far as Portland.

Wm. Dennis and family have moved into the Lomax property, opposite of the Christian church.

Wm. Finley, the lunch stand proprietor, will go to Dallas, where he will open up a restaurant in the Coxy Corner near the postoffice. His family will remain in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols were in Dallas Wednesday.

Mrs. Addie Montgomery was called to Dallas the first of the week, by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Peterson.

Friedrich Nietzsche had a brilliant career through college and developed into a great thinker. He held up for mankind the ideal of "Superman," the race surpassing itself, the creating of a stronger, more imposing and more dominant race. By many his teachings have been blamed for this great European conflict, though he lived and taught before the struggle began. Dr. Doney who has already made for himself the reputation of being an entertaining speaker will interpret the philosophy of Nietzsche in his own inimitable manner.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Will Open Thursday Afternoon —Miss Marvin Will Give Instructive Talk

A special exhibit of attractive books for children will be held at the Salem Public Library, beginning next Thursday. Many of the books are bound in pleasing editions with which to make a nucleus for a Child's Own Library, while others will be found in a less expensive form. Animal stories, Bible stories, fairy stories and books describing things children may make and do, are included in the list.

The exhibit will open Thursday afternoon in the educational room of the library where they will be spread out for the pleasure of the children. A talk will be given descriptive of the books by Miss Cordella Marvin, state librarian, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, to which parents are especially invited.

The boy scouts of America have proposed that the first week of December should be observed by all as juvenile book week. Although the library wishes to cooperate with this boy scout national movement, yet it will hold its exhibit one week earlier in order that if certain books desired are not in stock, the dealers in the city will have time to order them.

For Miss Marvin's talk Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock all parents and teachers are especially invited, but for the convenience of those who cannot see them Thursday, arrangements will be made to keep the books on exhibit the remainder of the week.

Austria and Italy Will Be Discussed

Germany, France, England, Russia, have all passed in review and only two more addresses remain in the splendid series of illustrated addresses on "Europe and the War" at the First Congregational church on Sunday evening. "Austria and Italy" will be considered on Sunday evening and on November 21st the address on "The Balkans," probably the most interesting address in the course, will be given. Austria is old and the modern Austrian-Hungarian Empire may be viewed as an effort to maintain the ancient glories, the inherited traditions, the magnificent imperialism, of, in many ways, the oldest and most aristocratic empire existing today in Europe.

In order to understand Austria Hungary we must go back to the day dawn of the history of Central Europe. What we now know as Austria-Hungary was never wholly conquered by the Roman as was the case with most of southern, central, and western Europe. Austria has been called "The Whirlpool of the Nations." Austria from one standpoint is the result of racial clash for Teutons, Finns, Aryans and many other races met here. The most of the tribes were Teuton or Germanic.

When the Goths invaded Europe some remained behind the Danube, and were called the eastern Goths or Ostrogoths and their realm was called the Oostereich shortened through Medieval Latin into Austria showing Austria to be a Gothic country. The Goths besides the Danube early became converted to Christianity under the labors of Vulfes, called the great apostle to the Goths. He constructed an alphabet and translated Christianity in the Eastern Empire and so it was spread among the Ostrogoths.

Austria was Romanized by Charlemagne. The armies of Charlemagne east and west and south, marching through lower Germany, reached Austria, defeated the Avars, and united eastern and western Goths in one great Frankish kingdom. The kingdom of Charlemagne affected all Europe but perhaps Austria most of all. In 800 Charlemagne was crowned by the Pope at Rome as Roman Emperor. Charlemagne was not French but was a Frank of Germanic stock. The Austrian Emperor as the head of the so-called Holy Roman Empire considered himself and was considered by most Catholics at least, in an important sense, the secular head of the Roman church. For a long time Austria had dominion in Italy. Except perhaps at the time of Frederick the Great, Austria certainly was the most powerful representative of the Germanic race down to 1866. Austria and Italy are historic foes, Austria in the main in the dominance, although Venice for long centuries controlled most of the Adriatic seaboard which was recently owned by Austria.

Italy's alliance with Germany and Austria was defensive only. It is reported that when Italy declared herself neutral the kaiser sent a telegram to the Royal Palace in Rome, "I will never forget an I will never forgive her." If Austria is proud of her ancient glories so is Venice and Italy with her. Large portions of the ancient Venetian domain today belong to Austria and Italy is in the war in the effort to regain this territory. Italy has interests in Albania east of the Adriatic and these combined with her desire to secure the Austrian territory and Trieste have led her at last into the great war on the side of the Allies. Ever since Carour created a United Italy in the middle of the nineteenth century the nation has been growing rapidly in unity of spirit in ambition and efficiency. While Italy hesitates so long before attacking Austria, her old enemy and if regarding from her the old Venetian provinces? The probable answer is: The influence of Italian socialists who are particularly strong and are bitterly opposed to the war. The address will be illustrated by fifty stereopticon slides.

CIRCULATION OF LIBRARY INCREASING

Report Issued By Librarian Indicates Gratifying Growth

The circulation of the Salem Public Library is gradually increasing, according to the report for October just issued by the librarian, Miss Anne D. Swezey. The October report of this year shows an increased circulation of 454 more than the month of one year ago, and 1293 more than October of 1913. The gain has been along all lines, both adult and juvenile.

During the month, 150 books and three pamphlets have been added to the library, all for adults. This brings the total number of volumes up to 11,393. The circulation for the month was 4446, of which 3102 were taken out by adults and 1344 by the children. Fiction is still in the lead, as the adult readers called for 732 books of reference and liberal education, 2315 of fiction, and 55 magazines. This percentage of fiction is about the same as one year ago. The juvenile readers called for 531 class books and 831 fiction.

The average daily circulation for the month was 171, with the greatest call for any one day on the last day of the month, when 265 volumes were taken out. The smallest day's circulation was the first day of the month, when 101 were called for.

The new registrations for October were 197. The call for reference works has increased greatly during the past month. This is due to some extent to the organizations of the junior high schools, as to teachers of these schools have sent many of their pupils to the library for assistance.
