You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs.

ALL PREPARING FOR GAME TOMORROW

Yale Tries Out Harvard Field For the Annual Gridiron Battle

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 19.—Yale tried out the Harvard stadium today in preparation for tomorrow's renewal of the historic gridiron struggle between the Crimson and the Blue.

For an hour the Yale team and substitutes gambled over tomorrow's battle ground, acclimating themselves to the field and the shadows cast by the stands.

The Harvard team spent the greater part of the day in acclimation. According to the trainers, the eleven is in perfect condition and fit for a grueling battle.

Coch Houghton refused to discuss a Harvard victory. He expressed confidence in his team but pointed to Yale's recent wonderful improvement as sufficient for a desperate struggle.

Under graduate interest has centered in the prospective kicking duel between Guernsey and Eddie Mahan, the Crimson. Experts too believe that the result of the game may depend upon the booting of these rivals.

Guernsey's wonderful work in the recent Princeton-Yale game has filled the Yale supporters with confidence. They declare that if the Yale backs can get the ball within Harvard's 40 yard line, Guernsey will do the rest.

Mahan's kicking has been one of the features of Harvard's games thus far. He has proved a worthy successor to the peerless Brickley. Harvardites are sanguine that he will outkick Guernsey throughout the game.

Three weeks ago the Yale team was regarded by students and critics alike as hopeless. Defeated by three small colleges, the Blue predicted for doomed terrific beatings at the hands of Harvard and Princeton.

Since that triumph Shevlin, former Yale star and all-American end, who was called by his alma mater to try to develop at the eleventh hour a team that would not disgrace the Blue, succeeded in lifting the eleven to an unexpected and brilliant victory over Princeton.

Since that triumph Shevlin and the Yale team have been working desperately and Yale supporters believed that another miracle may be in store for tomorrow, a victory over Harvard.

O. A. C. Through Training.

Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 19.—With signal practice O. A. C. today practically completed training for the big game with the University of Oregon at Eugene tomorrow.

Reports of injuries to members of the team has caused some apprehension. Bisset and Allen may not be able to participate because of sprains.

Fans here believe that the Aggies, with their superior weight, will be able to beat through the line of the varsity boys.

Dope Favors Aggies.

Eugene, Ore., Nov. 19.—With clearing weather it was believed today that Kincaid field would be in fine condition for the game tomorrow between O. A. C. and the University of Oregon.

Coach Hezek pronounced the varsities fit today and expected victory but acknowledged that the battle would be hard fought.

The teams are evenly matched but this season's dope seems to favor the Aggies.

To Play the Sage Hens.

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 19.—California's varsity composed of practically same men as played in the Washington game, will leave tonight for Reno to play the University of Nevada Saturday.

SALEM FOOTBALL FANS TO ATTEND ANNUAL U. OF O.-O. A. C. GAME

Several Hundred Spectators Will Go To Eugene For Tomorrow's Contest

Several hundred Salem football fans will leave this city tomorrow on the excursion train to witness the annual U. of O.-O. A. C. game at Eugene tomorrow afternoon.

Keen interest has been aroused in the big contest in this city on account of the large number of former students from both institutions who reside here.

While considerable enthusiasm has been displayed in the game the fans are particularly so about making any bets for articles more substantial than cigars and no odds are quoted by those who would risk a few coins.

The O. A. C. team will be in good condition for the game despite the hard luck tales that are coming from the camps of both teams and the experience of the past has been that both will present their strongest possible lineup and the yards about stars being out on account of injuries may be discounted by the fan.

Eugene is expecting the largest crowd that ever journeyed to the university city and with the Alumni Homecoming and the dedication of the new university administration building in addition to the main attraction it is probable that the Lane county city will be crowded to its fullest capacity over the week end.

FRANK SARFF SPOILS SALEM'S CHANCES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Salem Center Was Over 22 Years of Age But Said He Was Only 20

After completing the football season in the valley without losing a single game Salem high school's chances for the football championship of the western district received a severe crimp this morning by the admission of Frank Sarff to the team.

While Sarff entered the Salem high school center, that he is 22 years of age. On September 2, when Sarff entered the Salem high school he signed a statement giving his age as 20 years and on this morning he was groomed for the team and coached into a reliable player by Coach Glancy.

There is a rule in the state league that any player is not eligible to compete if he is over 20 years of age and so Sarff's admission to the team is a violation of the rule.

Principal Nelson, of the Salem high school, said this morning that it was to be regretted that the young man and his father had not been more forthcoming in the past.

Mr. Sarff, senior, stated that his son was 22, and signed a statement to this effect. Armed with the statement of the boy's father the Albany contingent intimated that a protest would be filed.

This however, was not yet been done but if Albany protests the player the Salem officials will not support Sarff as he admitted to Principal Nelson this morning that he had seen 22 football seasons.

FOOTBALL CLIMAX COMES TOMORROW

Yale-Harvard and Other Big Games Scheduled On Gridiron

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) New York, Nov. 19.—The climax of the 1915 football season—one of the most wondrous seen in years—will be reached tomorrow at Cambridge when Harvard and Yale resume their age-worn scramble on the gridiron.

It matters but little, apparently, that each team has been defeated this year, and is no longer in the championship running. The Yale-Harvard game is THE game of any season, principally because its the Yale-Harvard game. It is doubtful if a Cornell-Pitt game could arouse the tremendous enthusiasm that is attendant on tomorrow's struggle.

Had both lost every game this season, it would still be the big game of the season, looking through eastern eyes. The game tomorrow can hardly be termed a battle. It will, barring miracles, be a massacre, with Percy Houghton's big Crimson eleven on the prodding end. Yale is completing the worst season in her history.

Harvard has been defeated this year—the first time in three years, but the Crimson demonstrated two weeks ago that it still has a man-sized wallop in either mitt by defeating the best eleven Princeton has put out in years.

Eddie Mahan is a whole team in himself—190 pounds of whirling, swirling, kicking football ability. Against the tall Harvard captain Yale has to offer 11 young men who have been laced by Colgate, by Virginia, by Brown, and by W. & J. already this season.

A tremendous crowd will see the game. Old Harvard grads will trek back to Boston to gloat over a Yale kicking. Yale grads will go back to hope, and after hope is gone, to ramble over the old days, when the Blue was rooting on the topmost pinnacle of football fame.

The football game isn't so important—it's the occasion. That is what makes it the big game of any season.

WILLAMETTE-ALBANY PLAY OFF

Albany, Ore., Nov. 19.—Willamette university has called off its game with Albany college because of the large number of cripples on the team, and the contest between Albany and the Chemawa Indian Training school on Turkey day is the only game left, and will complete the season's schedule for the local college.
