ALLIES ARE HAMMERING AT DARDANELLES AGAIN

Tremendous New Offensive Answer To Demands of Allies and Austrians for Possession of Goritz Rear Guards

KITCHENER'S ANSWER

Rotterdam, Nov. 22.—A tremendous offensive in the Dardanelles has been undertaken by the allies, according to a Constantinople dispatch today. This move is regarded as Earl Kitchener's answer to suggestions that the Dardanelles struggle be abandoned. The London war council decided not to act on these suggestions until Kitchener had personally visited that region and this big move is believed to indicate Kitchener's decision.

begun," the war office stated. It was added that five fortresses in Belgium, two in France, 15 in Russia and eight in Serbia have been conquered to date. "Occupation of the Sanjak of Novibazar is progressing," said the official statement. "The people are receiving the invaders with open arms. The Sanjak towns are highly valuable for establishment of halting places on our military roads to Sofia."

Zurich, Switzerland, Nov. 22.—With bayonets, and even knives, a hand to hand struggle for possession of the Dobro plateau is being fought between Italian and Austrian troops. Grenade attacks marked the beginning of the Italian onslaught, which now centers at the Goritz bridgehead. Determined to capture the town, the Italians are deluging the Austrians with shells of many calibers. Many of the defenses of the city have crumbled. Italian infantry attacks occur daily. Sometimes several of these are staged in a single day despite terrible weather. The Italians advance a few yards at a time. Then they throw up sand bag defenses, firing meantime at the Austrians, while the Italian artillery shooting overhead clears the way for fresh charges. Losses on both sides are enormous. Many soldiers have fallen exhausted.

the statement reported the French artillery active between the Meuse and Moselle and likewise in the Champagne and east of Luneville. "A feeble Russian advance against the Bluzh cemetery was repulsed."

Goritz Under Fire

Vienna, Nov. 22.—Defenses of Goritz are still under heavy fire. The Italians are bringing up new fresh forces. These are engaged in battering at the bridgehead. Stubborn resistance marks the Austrian struggle. Several Italian onslaughts before Monte Sabotino collapsed under Austrian fire. Temporarily successful in the Olavin sector, the Italians were driven out by counter attacks except from one summit. There bitter fighting now rages. Severe losses were inflicted on the Italians when attacks against Peota miscarried, while around Podgora they were likewise repulsed. Monte San Michele is bathed in fire. The struggle there continues uninterrupted.

Important Italian Successes

Rome, Nov. 22.—Leaving their trenches full of dead, Austrians flew before impetuous Italian attacks in the Goritz region at Olavin and thereabouts, the war office reported today. The Italian success was hailed as "important."

Strike Serb Center

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, L. I., Nov. 22.—Forcing an entrance into the Lab river valley, in west central Serbia, on both sides of Poduyevac, the Germans are in a position to strike direct at the Serb center, 18 miles north, according to the war office today. In addition to 2,600 prisoners which the Austrians took in their occupation of Novibazar, the Germans captured 50 mortars, 14 cannon and miscellaneous munitions. The Serb outposts, driven in and reduced to only a fraction of their original strength, but brave to the point of desperation, have begun their final fight on the historic Plain of the Black Bird, Kosovo.

Austrians Take Town

Vienna, Nov. 22.—Nowibazar, on the edge of Serbia near the Montenegrin line, is in the hands of the Austro-Hungarians. Despite bitter weather, the invaders succeeded in battering their way into the town. Two additional lines of trenches south of Olavin were captured by the Italians, while on the Sarso plateau, the Italians registered new successes in the Monte San Michele and San Martino sections. Air raids continue actively.

GREECE STILL REMAINS AN UNCERTAIN FACTOR

Outcome of Crisis Was Today As Doubtful As Ever—How Far Allies Will Go With Economic and Commercial Blockade Only Matter of Conjecture—Unconfirmed Reports State That German Troops Have Reached Constantinople—Position of Serbia Serious

Paris, Nov. 22.—The outcome of the Greek crisis was today as doubtful as ever. How far the allies have gone or will go with their "commercial and economic blockade" against Greece had not been made public officially. Unofficial news that allied warships are searching Greek merchantmen is an unexpected development which is taken to mean that a literal blockade, not a mere "paper" affair, has been established. Reports that Greece has decided to remain neutral are unconfirmed. These stories said that while Serb refugees would be disarmed, the allies would not be interned if they fled across the Greek border, though they would be forced to quit the country. Such a course probably would not meet with allied approval, however, for the removal of allied forces fleeing from Serbia would relieve Germany of the need of having strong forces in Serbia. How Greece will act, however, will probably be divulged shortly, for a cabinet session was held yesterday to discuss the whole situation. Meantime, the positions of the Serbs grows hourly more tragic. Kosovo, the Plain of the Black Bird—is the scene of a big battle, while in the Monastir region another conflict is raging. The allies are reported to have sent heavy reinforcements to the latter section, but the reports are shrouded in mystery. Moreover, it is felt these new groups came too late. Unconfirmed dispatches say the first Teuton reinforcements in the way of men have reached Constantinople. These stories are received here, however, with some doubt. While the Greek situation is critical, the Serbs, utterly demoralized, are making their way over snowy trails—fleeing with blood from their torn feet. With them are their women folk. Some are reported already to have passed over the Greek border, while others have sought refuge to the westward of their own land. Press reports indicate that the Venizelos party will not participate in the coming Greek elections. Leaders are said to be doubtful of their ability to enforce the Venizelos policy even if successful at the polls.

IDENTITY OF TRUNK MURDER VICTIM IS STILL UNSOLVED

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—With the identity of the trunk murder victim again in doubt, the Portland police were more mystified than ever today. Rev. John Oved, a Lutheran minister, identified the body found in the trunk in the Willamette river Friday night as that of John Lind, of Boston, Mass. Word from Boston is to the effect that John Lind is alive. Lind in Boston said that a coat, bearing his name and the brand of the selling merchant was stolen from him six months ago. A coat bearing similar markings was found in the trunk with the body. If the Boston information is correct, or unless there are two John Linds in Boston, the police will have to retrace their steps in the matter of identification. It was known, however, that the murdered man gave the name of John Lind in Albany and Salem. Whether it was his own or assumed presents another knot for the police to unravel. It was also known that the traveling companion of Lind in both towns gave the name of George Bartholomew. Bartholomew, according to E. O. Curtis, of Salem, is a son of Mrs. Rita Hopkins, of 771 East Thirty-fifth street, Minneapolis, Minn. The mother was formerly married to a Bartholomew at Aberdeen, S. D., but secured a divorce and later wedded Charles Hopkins. She also secured a divorce from Hopkins but remarried him. Curtis said he was acquainted with the family. "Ed" Hopkins was the name given by the man who rented the conveyance at the Motel stables in which the body was hauled to the river. A hat bearing the initials "G. B." on the sweatband was packed in the trunk with the body. The young man who helped the murderer load the trunk on the wagon at 407 Stark street, where the man was killed, has not been located. The police believe that he did not know what the trunk contained. Charged With Murder. Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—A formal charge of first degree murder was filed today against George Bartholomew, alleged companion of the man whose body was found in a trunk taken from the Willamette river here last Friday. That Bartholomew is the murderer of the man was the fixed belief of the police who have confessed to their own satisfaction that he spent a month with the trunk mystery man in Albany and Salem and that they came to Portland together early last week. The police still adhere to the theory that the murdered man's name is John Lind. The warrant issued for Bartholomew's arrest specifically charged him with murdering John Lind. Mother of Suspect. Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Rita Hopkins, said to be the mother of George Bartholomew, wanted at Portland for alleged murder of the trunk mystery victim there, said this afternoon she knew nothing of the case. Her son, she explained, is Edward Bartholomew and not George. She had not heard from him since he was in Belmont, Cal., last spring. The son is a barber.

BRITISH SEARCHED AMERICAN STEAMER

State Department Will Make Representation To England

Washington, Nov. 22.—Reports, establishing that the British searched the American steamer Zealandia within the three mile zone at Progreso, Mexico recently will be made the basis of representations to England, the state department revealed today. The state department will investigate the situation further where the Zealandia reaches New York. Consul Germon at Progreso reported that the ship papers were with him when the British boarded her. Such holding of the papers is regular, though the British seek to justify the search by the fact that the Zealandia did not have the papers at the time. The consul, the commander of the battleship Kentucky and the Mexican authorities all agree that the Zealandia was only 2.3 miles from shore, thus placing her within the neutral zone where she would be supposed to be free from such search.

Alleged Murderer Seen By Barkeeper

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—In a formal statement, Joe Lochner, a bartender in a saloon at Fifth and Irving streets this afternoon declared that George Bartholomew, wanted for the alleged murder of the man whose body was found in a trunk in the river here, was in his place at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Bartholomew took two glasses of whiskey, Lochner said, the first of which he spilled because of nervousness. He paid for the liquor with money taken from one of two large rolls of bills. Lochner's statement was corroborated by a patron of the saloon who was present when the liquor was sold.

SAY OREGON'S BLUE LAW CONFLICTS WITH CONSTITUTION

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—That Oregon's ancient Sunday closing law conflicts with the national and state constitutions because it is discriminatory was contended in federal court here today by Attorney W. T. Hume, representing the Brunswick, Blake-Collider company, which is seeking a permanent injunction restraining the peace officers of 27 counties from enforcing it. The arguments were being heard by Judge Wolverton, of Portland, Judge Cushman of Tacoma, and Judge Gilbert of San Francisco. Three judges are necessary because the constitutionality of a law is in question. Attorney Hume declared that the law was discriminatory in that it allowed certain businesses to remain open on Sunday, but compelled others, just as legitimate, to close.
