America's Final Note to Austria to End Quibbling

even if this presentation were correct in all points and the most rigorous legal conceptions were applied to the judgment of the case, it does not in any way sufficiently warrant attaching blame to the commanding officer of the war vessel or to the Imperial and Royal government.

"The government of the United States has also failed to designate the persons upon whose testimony it relies and to whom it apparently believes it may attribute a higher degree of credibility than to the commander of the Imperial and Royal fleet.

"The note also fails to give any information whatsoever as to the number, names and more precise fate of the American citizens who were on board of the said steamer at the critical moment.

"However, in view of the fact that the Washington cabinet has now made a positive statement to the effect that citizens of the United States of America came to grief in the incident in question, the Imperial and Royal government is in principle ready to enter into an exchange of views in the affair with the government of the United States. It must, however, in the first place, raise the question why that government failed to give judicial reasons for the demands set forth in its note with reference to the special circumstances of the inhumanities evidenced upon which it itself lays stress and why, in lieu thereof, it referred to an exchange of correspondence which it has conducted with another government in other cases.

"The Imperial and Royal government is less able to follow the Washington cabinet on this unusual path, since it by no means possesses authentic knowledge of all of the pertinent correspondence of the government of the United States, nor is it of the opinion that such knowledge might be sufficient for it in the present case, which insofar as it is informed, is an essential point of another nature than the case or cases to which the government of the United States seems to allude. The Imperial and Royal government may therefore leave it to the Washington cabinet to formulate the particular points of law which the commanding officer of the submarine is alleged to have offended on the occasion of the sinking of the steamer.

"The government of the United States has also seen fit to refer to the attitude which the Berlin cabinet assumed in the above mentioned correspondence. The Imperial and Royal government finds in the much esteemed note no indication whatever of the intent with which the reference was made. Should, however, the government of the United States thereby have intended to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed for the Imperial and Royal government with respect to the judicial consideration of the affair in question, this government must in order to preclude possible misunderstandings declare that as a matter of course it reserves to itself full freedom of discussion of the case of the Ancona. In having the honor to have recourse to the kindness of His Excellency, the ambassador of the United States of America with the most respectful request to be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the American government on this occasion to state that the Imperial and Royal government is in no less degree than the American government and under all circumstances, most sincerely deploring the fate of the innocent victims of the incident in question, the undersigned at the same time avails himself of this

Note Brief and Short.

Washington, Dec. 18.—A brief, sharp note, permitting of no quibbling will go forward to Austria tonight in the Ancona case.

The Secretary of State Lansing has prepared it in vigorous language; upon it President Wilson has placed his initials, and it will be cabled tonight, according to announced plans today. Already it is in President Wilson's hands.

The Austro-American situation is "very grave," according to officialdom.

The promptness with which America makes its rejoinder—less than 48 hours from the time Austria replied to the first American demand—leaves no doubt that Austria rejected these demands.

Whether Austria is given a time limit within which to comply with American insistence on a disclaimer could not be learned. Such a limit would mean the rejoinder is an ultimatum and the rejection thereof would result in a severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Secretary Lansing drew the reply last night, following a lengthy cabinet session.

Situation Is Clearing.

Washington, Dec. 18.—A rift in diplomatic clouds shadowing Austrian-American affairs, as a result of the Ancona torpedoing was apparent today.

Both sides to the controversy showed signs of granting concessions. Officials here were more optimistic.

A new note to Austria, in amicable terms, is in preparation, and is slated to go forward at an early moment. In it, the administration will give some details of its Ancona evidence—Austria asked this—and will outline the principles of the Lusitania settlement with Austria's ally, Germany. These concessions, however, will not permit of further temporizing on Austria's part, and they will be accompanied by an ultimatum demanding immediate compliance with America's original demands.

The American rejoinder will be finally determined at a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing.

Inasmuch as the president is leaving tonight on his honeymoon, the situation will be in the secretary's hands, though in event of necessity, Lansing naturally will confer with the president.

Austria Would Avoid Break.

From Teutonic sources came indications today that Austria does not want a break if it can be avoided. Moreover, the fact that the administration intends giving some concessions in the way of information alleviated the tension materially.

Examination of an immense amount of documents is necessary in order that the rejoinder may partly meet Austria's request for further information. To get this, Secretary Lansing, Counselor Polk and Assistant Solicitor Woolsey worked later.

To prevent further procrastination and to meet the Austrian contention that she has not been "officially" informed of settlement of the German submarine controversy, the rejoinder will include a summary of that.

Secretary Lansing is understood to believe that Austria knew of the German-American submarine controversy, though in her reply she pleaded she did not have official knowledge thereof. Copies of the German-American correspondence, nevertheless, were given to Austria's representatives here. The secretary was slated to confer with Charge Zwiendiek of the Austrian embassy at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and it was possible he would make Austria's reply thereafter.

NEW SAWMILL

The fact that the Silver Falls Timber company has secured an extension of time on an option of a tract of land adjoining this city owned by J. W. Wolfard, indicates that there are liable to be some extensive lumber developments in Silverton during the early part of the coming year. Just what the extension of this option means is as yet purely a matter of speculation, but it is generally believed that the Silver Falls company intends to establish a sawmill in Silverton. If such a plan is consummated it is likely to be a mill of great capacity and will probably double the large pay roll that Silverton now has.—Silverton Tribune.

FIGHT AT AUMSVILLE

Claire Brock and professor L. D. Cook engaged in a fistie encounter Friday evening on the street near Speer's store which resulted in the professor getting a black eye. We understand the cause of the trouble was some remarks made by Cook about young Brock's sisters which he quite naturally resented. City Marshal Merrifield appeared on the scene before they had finished and put Brock under arrest taking him before the recorder where Brock was fined $5. The next day, Saturday, Cook filed a complaint of assault and battery against Brock at Salem. Monday Brock appeared before the court at Salem and was bound over to the grand jury under $100 bonds.—Record.
