Willamette Notes

Professor Robert Stauffer, head of the department of English literature, will deliver the fourth lecture of the faculty course in the chapel of Waller hall on Monday evening, January 10, at 8 o'clock. His subject will be a character who is recognized as a genius in literature, "Rabindranath Tagore, Hindu Mystic and Poet." This lecture will be especially interesting to students or lovers of literature, as it will give them a chance to know something about this oriental writer and what his writings consist of. The public of Salem are invited to attend this lecture. There is no admission.

Professor Wallace McMurray will deliver an address at the Unitarian church Sunday evening on the subject, "The Value and Importance of the American Theatre." The professor is a careful student of modern drama and especially American dramatists and his lecture will consequently be one well worth hearing.

The Willamette calendars which Dr. Doney had printed are being appreciated by those who have secured them. They have a picture of Eaton hall in brown print and on the back an article about the value of a college education. There are a number of these calendars left and anyone desiring one may have the same by calling for it.

A large crowd of Willamette students went from the basketball game to the parlors of the First M. E. church, where the Epworth league had an old-fashioned taffy pull. Games were played and everyone had an enjoyable time.

The Willamette second team will play the Oregon State Mute school team on the Willamette basketball floor this afternoon. The mute school has always turned out a strong team in the past and today's game will show what this year's team's strength is. If the second Willamettes win they will perhaps play a number of games with neighboring high schools.

As Mr. and Mrs. Oran Weddle both are confined to their beds, Mr. Weddle seriously, and Mrs. Weddle with a partly dislocated hip, the neighbors turned out yesterday morning and filled their wheelbarrow with good fire. Dennis Caldwell gave the timber and A. D. Gardner furnished the team to haul the wood, while the neighbors and citizens donated a good dinner to the men and some money besides. The dinner was taken over to the woods by Frank Lesley and C. C. Mulkey.

Those who cut, sawed and split ten big ricks of wood for the unfortunate family are: W. R. Bruner, L. C. Bailey, Luther Cole, Carl Follis, R. Henkel, Arthur Johnson, Cecil Riggs, Floyd Crabtree, John Felton, Adam Shepherd, Geo. Warford, Cliff Staytons, Fitz Goodman, Frank Hamman, Chas. Stanz, Gus Traak, Orlo Mack, Chas. Stovall, A. S. THE MARKETS

The wheat market weakened yesterday in Portland. But the ups and downs of the Portland market has very little influence on the general price throughout the valley. The Portland prices on club wheat for first grade milling wheat, with no vetch.

The continued cold weather is making the cabbage market nervous, and until the amount of damage really done by the freeze is known, cabbage will be higher. Today the quotations are from two to two and a half cents wholesale. If cabbage has suffered but little by the freeze, this price will not hold. If much damage has been done, look for higher prices.

The feed and mill stuff market is strong in Portland and if this continues it will soon be effective in the Salem markets. At present, the old price holds good.
