SHEPHERD WRITES OF MEETING RETREAT BUT DID NOT RECOGNIZE IT

Note—Following is the third installment of William G. Shepherd's unexpurgated story of the allied retreat from Serbia. The previous installment described the departure of Shepherd and other correspondents for the Anglo-French front in Serbia.—Editor.

By William G. Shepherd.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Salonika, Dec. 11.—We smashed up a wagon load of refugees as we went along. It was one of those vital carloads of household goods, with an old woman and a baby sitting on the pile and the younger and stronger members of the family plodding along in the mud before or alongside the two oxen. As we turned down the road, the perplexed peasants turned the oxen and headed for a roadside ditch. The unusual sight of an automobile seemed to freeze them. A woman and a man stuck the oxen with sticks. The wheels went down with a crash and everybody screamed. The old woman held up the baby in her arms. The body of the wagon settled down into the ditch, on its side. Gently the old woman and the baby slid out into the mud. Beside the road was a camp of British engineers and we saw them flocking by scores from their tents to the scene of the household wreck. By the time we had passed fifty or more of these parties of refugees, we knew that somewhere ahead the retreat was under way. As we went along the mountain roads in the French ambulance, we knew how comfortable a wounded man must be in such a car. In addition to the spring of the pneumatic tires were the springs of the car itself. The stretcher seats on which we sat were hung by a third series of springs from steel bars which were suspended from the ceiling of the ambulance. The motion of the ambulance, except for a slight swaying, was almost imperceptible.

Shell Wakes 'Em Up.
Just when we were marveling at the comfort with which we were traveling along, a commotion on a hillside to the left of the line of refugees, there was a terrific explosion at the roadside and the shriek of a shell. A shell drilled a tunnel through the air and through this tunnel the echoes of the whistling of the shell jar and clash and mix in one long whine. The shell we heard was leaving us. Through the ambulance window we saw first a cloud of smoke and then the outline of a huge gun which stood at least eight feet above the ground on giant wheels and had a mouth that a man could have put his head into. The great cannon stood within fifteen feet of the road, but it was so cleverly sheltered and hidden by decorations of holly that we had not seen it.

"Let's get out and photograph it," said one correspondent, our Lieutenant. "Not here," said the British guide. "The Bulgars are across the valley and if we stop long enough to give them our range they'll fire at us sure."
The road will cut along the face of a hill. Below us was the valley of Oostorino and four miles away, beyond the valley were other hills like ours, where the Bulgars artillerists were hidden. Just a quarter mile further and we reached the shelter of a turn in the road. The huge English gun behind us kept spitting out its roaring challenges across the valley. By the watch it was possible to hear the whine of its shells for six seconds; the whine always ended in a deep, dull roar where the shell had broken some five or six miles away.

Mrs. McCauley at 456 North Liberty street, Sunday evening he went to Mrs. McCauley's residence and engaged a room and when he left Monday morning he took two purses, one of which contained $3.50 and the other two Lincoln pennies. She did not report the robbery to the police until last night. The police have no clues to the robber.

Orders have been issued by King Bing commanding all the Cherrions to appear in full uniform at the Commercial club Friday at 11:00 o'clock, to parade in behalf of the great letter writing campaign and incidentally to pose before the moving picture man. As this Parle picture will be perhaps shown before thousands in all parts of the country, it behooves the Cherrions to put on their best, as it is up to them to let the world know that we do not only have the finest climate, but some of the best looking men in the country.

Last night was the coldest night this country has experienced since January, 1909. The mercury in the thermometer of the Oregon City Transportation Co., registered 16 above, while many thermometers exposed to the wind went two better and made a low record of 14. January of 1909 was the coldest month for many years in the valley. January 4 of that year the government's record was four above, while on January 12 of that month, the record was two above. The minimum temperature for January 1909 was 25 above. Today the river is three feet above low water mark, and falling. The weather has not Sergeant Schuman, recruiting officer for the U. S. Marine corps, states that he will be able to use a few young men who can qualify. The regular quota from this district had been filled, but after January 21, he can again take enlistments.

"It is up to the churches to furnish amusement and recreation for the young folks," said a prominent citizen last evening after hearing Superintendent Elliott's address in which he stated that the boys and girls must have amusement of some kind and that the only reason a girl attended a jittery dance was because she had no other place to go for amusement.

Judge Charles L. McNary will not come before the people this spring as a candidate for the nomination as representative for congress from this district, nor will his name be permitted to be voted on at the primaries. Several papers in the district were urging that Judge McNary should become a candidate but according to the latest information, he is not before the people for any office whatever.

While not in favor of cutting out foot ball or basket ball or any of the sports as organized in the high school Superintendent Elliott in his talk last evening before the Men's Six o'clock club spoke strongly in favor of extending physical education in order that every boy and girl will benefit. This general plan of physical education will be probably taken up next fall through a special instructor.

The truancy officer, for the Salem schools, Mrs. E. I. Pickett, reports that she is in great need of underclothing for children. She reports several cases where small children are not properly clothed for this severe weather and the call is urgent. Parties having underclothing to give to these children should communicate with the Social Service Center of the Commercial club, or through Superintendent O. M. Elliott's office.

A prize has been offered by the Commercial club to the school sending in the greatest number of Oregon boosting letters. The nine graded schools and junior high schools are in this competition. The decision will not be according to the largest number mailed by any one school, but the largest number in proportion to the attendance of the school. This gives each of the schools a fair start to win the prize. The English classes of the high school are writing letters as a regular part of their work. In order that these classes may appear in the Parle moving pictures to be taken at 11:30 Friday morning at Commercial and State streets, these grades will be dismissed for the period after 11:15 o'clock.

Reverend Richard F. Fischer was called to the Unitarian church for another year at the annual meeting held last evening at the church. He has been pastor of the church for two years, coming here from Dunkirk, New York. The board of trustees elected at the meeting are as follows: Dr. R. E. Leo Steiner, Roy Burton, Mrs. Joan A. Hollock, H. C. Fletcher, R. A. Mahoney, J. W. Cox, Judge Daniel Webster, C. S. Hamilton and Mrs. W. E. Hamilton. Reports from the officers of the church showed the condition satisfactory in all departments. The work for the coming year was outlined by the pastor, which includes the meetings open to the public when topics of general interest will be discussed and addresses given by those who are especially capable of speaking on the subjects assigned to them. The annual session closed with the singing of refreshments by the ladies of the church.
