THE SWISS MILITARY SYSTEM DISCUSSED

Secretary of War Outlines Its Features for Benefit of Congress

The Swiss military system is now being discussed by every High school debating society in the state and the librarian of the state public library is receiving daily calls for books on preparedness and treatises on military systems.

According to a statement recently made by the secretary of war to the committee of military affairs of the house of representatives, every Swiss is liable to military service from the age of 20 until the age of 50, and officers until the age of 55.

Between the ages of 10 and 16, the Swiss boy receives courses of gymnastics in the public schools and after the age of 16, the law requires him to go on with his gymnastics and take up musketry. Rifle shooting in Switzerland is a natural sport and practically every boy belongs to a rifle club.

The first line, called the "elite," consists of those from 20 to 32, inclusive. The second, or "landwehr," of those from 33 to 44 and the third of all others from 17 to 50.

Recruits receive instruction from 60 to 90 days. For the elite, a repetition course of from 7 to 14 days is held every year. The landwehr are required to take a repetition course of 11 days every four years. All work is in the field and on the target range.

According to the National Guard personnel of the National Guard, "said army without any loss of rank in the secretary, "are in the Guard primarily with the view of training for national service. They have a right to especial consideration in the formation of any body of national citizen soldiers. Therefore, it is recommended that the officers and men of the national guard be given the right to enter the Continental Army, grade for grade and rank for rank. This would enable them to either stay in the National Guard which will be conserved and built up, or enter the Continental army without any loss of rank in the transfer."

MT. PLEASANT ITEMS

A sad and mournful look could be seen on the faces of the Mt. Pleasant coasters when the snow began to disappear, but we noticed this (Wednesday).

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not care children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional case for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child—the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adult and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Exhibit at Library

A. P. McKinlay, who lectured at the library last week, left a very interesting exhibit on "The Relation of Greek and Latin to Practical Life." This exhibit consists of a number of charts which are now displayed at the public library. It shows the value of the study of the classics to the modern man or woman. There are many references in every day life and literature to classical subjects. These are appreciated much more by the individual with an understanding of their meaning. One of the most interesting charts is one giving a page of the dictionary with the different words with Latin or Greek stems underlined. You will be surprised to find how many on one page are underlined. Come in and see this exhibit.

BISHOP WILL VISIT

An event in which all the people of Woodburn should be interested is the visit of Bishop Sumner of the Episcopal church to Woodburn on the evening of February 3. This is the first time that Bishop Sumner has visited Woodburn and it is hoped that the people of the community will take an interest in this visit and turn out and fill the Episcopal church full to show him that the people of Woodburn are interested in him and the work that he was called from Chicago to do in Oregon.

The date is Thursday, February the third, at the Episcopal church, at 7:30 p.m.—Woodburn Independent.

Would Make Clothing of Made In Oregon Goods

The possibility of manufacturing the product of the Thos. Kay Woolen mills into clothing, to be labeled as "made in Oregon," has impressed several who have written to the Commercial club after reading articles in the papers regarding the raw materials for manufacture found in Oregon.

The idea seems to be that a manufacturer would find it to his advantage to take the products of the woolen mills and manufacture them right here into clothing. With the present situation as it is, the cloth is manufactured here, shipped to the east where wages are paid, then re-shipped to this country, whereby the people of Oregon pay a tariff going and coming, besides being deprived of the wages paid for manufacture.

The parties writing the Commercial club are wanting to know why some one with the money and experience in manufacturing garments should not establish a small factory in Salem, where the cloth is manufactured.

WOODBURN CANNERY

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants' association was held at the city hall Tuesday evening with about 20 business men and some farmers in attendance. The expected report of the cannery association showing in what way the business men could assist in this enterprise, was not forthcoming because of a misunderstanding as to the time of meeting, and a special meeting will be called for this purpose.

After the regular routine business was concluded, the business men listened to an interesting talk given by L. Merrick, secretary of the Oregon Merchants' association, in which he told of the work done by the state association and the legislation now before congress which would benefit all lines of business.

Mr. Merrick also extolled the work of the Woodburn association and stated that it was one of the liveliest organizations in the state and had done more to bring about harmony between the consumer and retailer than any other organization working along that line.

DEATH OF PROFESSOR COLEMAN

George B. Coleman died at his home, 4833 Sixty-fifth street, S. E., Portland, January 21, aged 58 years, of chronic endocarditis. Services were held at the Portland Crematorium, January 24, at 2 p.m.

Deceased moved to Portland last summer from Woodburn. He had been superintendent of the Woodburn schools for two years and made a large number of friends here to whom the news of the professor's death was unexpected and comes as a great shock. He was very fond of children and his old pupils here will especially mourn the death of this good man.—Woodburn Independent.
