Defense Pleads Robbery.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2.—Testimony, intended to show that Dr. C. Franklin Mohr carried large sums of money, was introduced by the defense today in the trial of Mrs. Mohr and two negroes on charges of murdering the doctor.

This was to support the defense contention that George Heald, negro chauffeur planned to rob the doctor as he rode with Miss Emily Burger on the murder night, and that he intended to blame the widow.

Heald has claimed that Mrs. Mohr hired the two negroes on trial with her, to commit the crime.

The wife and sister of Henry Spellman, one of the negro defendants, were arrested today on a perjury charge after their testimony as to the time Spellman returned home on the murder night had contradicted the evidence they gave at the inquest.

GOOD WORK FOR SICK WOMEN

The Woman's Medicine Has Proved Its Worth.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies were first introduced, their curative powers were doubted and had to be proved. But the proof came, and gradually the use of them spread over the whole country. Now that hundreds of thousands of women have experienced the most beneficial effects from the use of these medicines, their value has become generally recognized, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women.

The following letter is only one of the thousands on file in the Pinkham office, at Lynn, Mass., proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an article of great merit as shown by the results it produces.

Anamosa, Iowa.—"When I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered with a displacement, and my system was in a general run-down condition. I would have the headache for a week and my back would ache so bad when I would bend down I could hardly straighten up. My sister was sick in bed for two months and doctored, but did not get any relief. She saw an advertisement of your medicine and tried it and got better. She told me what it had done for her, and when I had taken only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my head began to feel better. I continued its use and now I don't have any of those troubles."—Mrs. L. J. HANNAN, R.F.D. 1, Anamosa, Iowa.

Salem Mission, Freed From Debt. Now Has New Pastor

At the business meeting of the Salem Mission Monday night, the usual harmony prevailed. Dr. McInturff, who has been asking to be released from the mission as pastor, that he might be free to work in a larger field persuaded them to accept his resignation and suggested that Bro. E. K. Spiker of the Christian church and who has been working in the mission as assistant pastor with Dr. McInturff for two years, become the pastor; it was unanimously carried, also Rev. J. T. Horning, of the Minionite church, was unanimously chosen to act as assistant pastor, and Miss Charlotte Horning to play the piano.

The treasurer, Miss Haverson, gave a most gratifying report showing that the last payment had been made on the piano and all furniture of the hall and that there was not a dollar indebtedness against the mission.

A tender and touching service followed the business meeting over which the new pastor presided. Many were the words of appreciation for Dr. and Mrs. McInturff's faithful earnest work during the past two years, as they have toiled without salary as pastor and pianist; and much of the time given to visiting the sick and poor, comforting them and relieving their needs. It was very gratifying to the retiring pastor to see the earnestness and the sweet spirit that was manifested towards the new pastors and the promises made by them to stand by the work.

The gospel wagon from the Friends church is expected to come down Wednesday night, February 2, and assist in the meeting. All the members of the mission come and bring your neighbor, a good time is expected.

MISS WILLIAMS IS PASTOR OF CHURCH

Called By Friends to This City From Pastorate In Far North Country

Miss Ethel Williams, of 1776 Fairgrounds road, holds a rather unique position in the city, that of pastor in Salem of the Church of God. She preaches at the regular services Sundays and has charge of the regular Wednesday evening prayer meetings. Having been in charge of the Church of God at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, for several years, she came here last October at the urgent call of friends, as the church here had no regular pastor. Since that time she has been actively engaged in the work, although the church at Saskatoon is awaiting her return.

Miss Williams first became interested in the Church of God about 11 years ago, while living near Grand Valley, Ontario. Frequently at meetings held, when no regular pastor was present, she felt called upon to speak, feeling that she had a message to deliver. Continuing in the work of the church, she felt more the responsibility of helping other people and so she called to preach because stronger, she was ordained at Grand Valley and took up her first charge at Dashwood, Ontario. Here she was in charge of the church for two years, later being placed in charge of the Church of God at Dundalk, and Welland, Ontario.

Two years was passed as assistant pastor at Edmonston, Alberta, in a church that had members and a congregation of several hundred. Her next charge was at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, where she remained for two years, as active pastor of a church with an attendance of more than 100.

Not only for the benefit of her health but from the calls of friends and the feeling that her work was in this field, Miss Williams came to Salem, and since then has had active charge of the church and its work.

"The term Church of God," said Miss Williams, "is taken from the Bible. We have no discipline, no creed, and we take the Bible as it is and believe that if all Christians could get together, regardless of creed, they would exert a greater force and influence in the world. The Church of God is trying to gather together His people, like in the early days of the church.

The Church of God, in its organization, comes direct from the people. Those with a message, may preach. The church believes in immersion after conversion. Anyone having been saved may become a member of the church.

The services of the church are much the same as others. The pastor is maintained through free will offerings, with no stated salary. The teachings of the church come direct from the Bible, believing that unity among Christians would accomplish more for the good of people than a diversity of creeds.

The Church of God, of which Miss Williams is pastor, was built about four years ago at 1776 Fairgrounds road, and at present the average attendance is close to 50.

Although the church at Saskatoon is awaiting her return, Miss Williams says that her future depends upon what she regards as her duty and if she remains here, it will be from the fact that she is called to this work. Miss Williams lives with her mother in a cozy little home near the church.

In explaining the belief of the members of the Church of God, Miss Williams said: "We believe to be saved and really given up to serve the Lord, brings such joy and blessing, that the heart is fully satisfied and there is a power there to enable you to do right in every circumstance."

Washington, Feb. 2.—The senate today rejected the Cummins amendment to the Philippine bill, proposing to free and recognize the islands as soon as voters approve a republic there.

Senator Hitchcock introduced an amendment, proposing increase from four to six years, if a republic is set up and approved by an election. America, however, would retain coaling stations on the islands and remain the "most favored nation" in trade treaties.

Later, the senate also rejected the Hitchcock amendment.

Interesting Points About Laymen's Missionary Poster

The pastor is symbolical of both home and foreign missions, which are strikingly represented. The non-Christian world is typified by a figure of a great idol with a group of worshippers before it, and mission work at home by a man of the common people, standing in a city street.

The particular idol which has been taken as a symbol of idolatrous religion is the gigantic bronze Buddha at Kanakura, Japan.

This wonderful idol is supposed to date from the year 1252, and the reasons and particulars of its erection have been lost to history. The bronze figure, sitting uncrossed in a grove of trees, is fifty-four feet high and ninety-seven feet in circumference. It is made of sheets of bronze cast separately, brazed together, and finished on the outside with a chisel. The length of the face is eight and one-half feet and the width from ear to ear, seven feet and nine inches. In the forehead there is a solid silver boss of the weight of thirty pounds. Each eye is four feet in length and is made of pure gold. The weight of the statue has been estimated at four hundred and fifty tons, and its value as bronze, at the prevailing market price, is about $315,000.

This does not take into account the silver boss, the idol's forehead or the golden eyes.

On the head are ball-shaped protuberances resembling curls. These represent snails, which, according to legend, crawled up to shelter the bald head of Buddha from the burning rays of the sun. Immense bronze plants of sacred lotus are in front of the figure and at each side are great bronze lanterns.

This image was chosen by the Secretaries of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which organized and is directing the campaign, as typical of the religions of the non-Christian world, complacent, unhearing, unseeing, unmoved by the millions who, without knowledge of Christ, bow in futile worship before their idols. On the poster the great idol is printed in dark green, as near as possible to the color of old bronze. The head and shoulders stand above a forest, outlined against a twilight sky.

Home missions is represented by a man standing bewildered in the heart of a great American city, in which much of home mission work is centered. He seems to need the ministrations of a church in the picture, but alas, the doors of the church are closed, for it is a week day. The man may be an immigrant just arrived, an alien who has been in the United States for some time, or an American-born laborer or mechanic.

He is depicted as representative of many thousands. The factory, the tenement and the slum in the picture, are important factors not only in his problems but in the work of the home mission agencies. The man appears to be poor and the artist has endeavored to give the impression that he is drifting away from spiritual and moral moorings.
