Tremendous Crowds Greet President Today

"As we have repeatedly failed to get from congress proofs of its consideration for national defense, what reason have we to believe that she shall not fail again unless a strong unified sentiment throughout the country demands it? Let us be truly conservative and refuse to gamble with the future of the country."

Bandits Attempt Theft of Fortune in Diamonds

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 3.—With Sergeant Herbert J. Thornbury suffering from a serious wound in the shoulder and one bandit in custody, the police today threw out a dragnet for two other robbers who attempted a $35,000 diamond robbery here last night.

TACOMA RESIDENTS TRY DIGGING OUT OF THE BIG SNOWDRIFTS

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 3.—Unlike the soldiers in Europe, who are always digging themselves in, citizens of Tacoma early today began the task of digging themselves out. Snow drifts to the depth of six feet or more were everywhere in evidence.

The city was as silent as a tomb. An occasional automobile could be seen slipping and sliding along the downtown streets, but not a street car was moving anywhere.

Long lines of early workers trudged along abandoned street car tracks from the outlying sections and others waded and floundered through billows of snow that lay waist deep on less frequented streets.

No deaths or serious accidents due to the storm have been reported in spite of the confusion on downtown streets during the height of the storm late yesterday. Damage to property is not believed to be heavy.

Like Dakota Blizzard. The snow storm, which raged with all the violence of a Dakota blizzard yesterday, put traction service out of commission and crippled telephone and telegraph communication and transcontinental roads are unable to get a single train over the Cascades.

The snow ceased early last night, but with its cessation the wind rose and the two foot mantle that covered the ground was soon in motion. Drifts were piled up everywhere and traction officials, after battling with the element for several hours with snow plows and gangs of men, finally threw up the sponge and admitted themselves worsted.

Seattle Cars Blocked. Seattle, Wash., Feb. 3.—Two hundred street car employees were kept working all of last night and today in an effort to make headway against the snow and ice blocked tracks.

On many lines the attempt was to clear enough trackage to get the marooned cars through to the barns. Because the cars were isolated at various parts of the city, it was practically impossible to make headway with snow plows.

Many of the cars have been brought in today, but there were still enough out to make clearing with snow plows impossible.

Cathedral Wrecked. St. James cathedral the finest edifice of its kind in the west, and one of the finest in America, a replica of the famous St. James of Rome, is a partial wreck today. Its great central dome collapsed late yesterday, under the pressure of snow on the roof. The damage is $75,000.

Why He Was Sober. Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3.—Hailed before Justice Summerfield on a charge of driving his automobile while drunk John Anderson asserted he had only two cocktails and that receiving hospital attendants even took those away from him with a stomach pump when he was arrested. A verdict is expected tomorrow.

County Fruit Inspector Gives Advice on Spraying

Spraying time of year is now upon us, and C. Constable, county fruit inspector, has prepared two articles on the subject. The first article is as follows:

Spraying is a vital problem. Many of the orchardists are now awaiting suitable weather conditions to start their spray pumps. Most of them know just what they are going to spray for, but some do not, and I think an article which was written by Prof. A. B. Conley of the Oregon Agriculture College will be of great benefit to the novice at least. He says—

Knowledge of a multiplicity of sprays is not essential to success in spraying. Equipped with an understanding of the range of usefulness of three or four standard sprays, with a good pump, and a determination to do a thorough work, one is well fortified, as may be, against orchard pests and diseases.

It should first be thoroughly understood that spraying is not a cure all. There are many diseases and some insect troubles of the orchard for which spraying is of no value, either as a preventative or cure.

Fortunately, most of the important orchard pests and diseases may be held under control by proper spraying. It is important to note, however, that in order to do effective spraying against any pest, it is essential that the proper spray be used at the proper time for that particular pest. A spray which is effective against one pest may be totally ineffective against another, even if applied at the proper time. The proper spray for any pest applied at the wrong time is as useless as no spraying at all.

It is, therefore, of prime importance that every grower should know what diseases and insects are prevalent in his district; that he may be able to recognize them when he sees them, and practice the proper method of control. The proper time at which a spray should be applied and the proper spray to be used is determined by the life history of the organism causing the trouble, whether it be an insect or a fungus or bacterial disease.

Insecticides. Under the head of insecticides are included sprays used primarily to combat insects. To understand the general principle which underlies the selection of the proper remedy to be used for any particular insect, one has only to know that nearly all insects may be divided for practical purposes into two great groups, viz: chewing insect and sucking insects.

Fool Poisons.—For combating chewing insects, those that actually chew and swallow the tissues of the plant on which they feed, a poison must be used. The surface of the parts of the plants on which such insects must be contacted or sprayed with some poisonous substance which will not injure the plant, yet will kill the insects which feed upon the parts thus coated.

Contact Insecticides.—For combating sucking insects, that is those with such mouth parts which pierce the plant upon which they feed and suck the juices, a spray must be used which will kill such insects by acting externally on their bodies, since they secure their food from beneath the surface and cannot be made to eat poisons. A spray of this sort is known as a contact insecticide.

University of Idaho Will Play at Dallas

(Capital Journal Special Service.) Dallas, Or., Feb. 3.—The next basketball game of interest to the citizens of Dallas will be played on the local floor on the evening of February 10th, when the Dallas team will meet the swift team of the University of Idaho, who are to play a series of games in different parts of the valley. For the coming week the local team intends to do some of the hardest work in its history so as to be in the pink of condition when the clash comes with the Idaho outfit. The game last Friday night between Dallas and the Chemawa Indian school resulted in a victory for the home team by a score of 24 to 23. Had the game been two minutes longer it is possible that the score might have been in favor of the Indians as they picked up courage in the last half of the game and threw baskets at will.

Hoyt Released on Probation

Circuit Judge H. H. Hoyt suspended the sentence of Herman Hoyt, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing and killing a heifer belonging to H. G. Campbell, Monday afternoon. Hoyt was suspected of killing the animal a week ago and a search was made of the place on which he is located and the butchered carcass of the animal found under a pile of hay. The meat was later on returned to the meat by Mr. Campbell who had found them to be in a destitute condition. At his trial Hoyt declared that he stole the heifer to provide food for his wife and six children who were in a starving condition. In suspending the sentence Judge Hoyt said that he would after six months, continue the case against Hoyt got into some other trouble. He will be required to pay for the animal he killed before the expiration of the six months. Upon his release from jail Hoyt returned to his family.
