Bureau Will Give Aid To Prune Growers In Fight On Brown Rot

Washington, Feb. 4.—That the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture is preparing to give a practical help in combating the brown rot prune disease in the Willamette valley in Oregon is assured in letters written by Dr. W. A. Taylor, chief of the bureau, to members of the Oregon delegation.

"I am glad to state that the results of the work of the crop season 1914, while not entirely satisfactory, will enable us to issue very promptly a preliminary publication which should be helpful to the growers in arranging their spray treatment for the disease," says Dr. Taylor.

"The experimental work on cherries was done at Salem, Oregon, and that on prunes at Vancouver, Washington where the conditions are substantially similar. The Oregon experiment station has also been conducting experiments in the same line, and as we are planning to continue our work at both points this season, we feel that we shall be able to meet the most pressing needs of the situation."

Nation's Celebrities Take Part In Fete

(By United Press.)

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 4.—Thomas A. Edison, James Whitcomb Riley, Andrew Carnegie, George Ade, William Jennings Bryan, Henry Watterson, Mrs. Potter Palmer and about 100,000 other Florida residents and visitors will celebrate the festival of Don Jose Gasparilla that ferocious cutthroat who sailed the Spanish Main with a dick in his teeth and a red rag on his head a century ago.

Plans to organize a Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce, with a view of replacing, for Americans, the Italian Riviera with the winter resorts along the Mexican Gulf, were to be discussed at a meeting here during the carnival and South Florida fair. In the membership of the proposed chamber of commerce would be included Gulf coast cities from Key West to Corpus Christi, Texas. The chamber also would discuss plans for a cross continent highway, to be known as the Florida east coast, to the Pacific along the Gulf coast route.

With festive dancing in the streets, allegorical and historical pageants, and a sub-tropical fair, the carnival is to last until February 12. Harness and running races are to be featured daily. Most of the floats and pageants feature the vain attempts of treasure-seek-

The Lusitania docked at Liverpool flying the American flag to protect her from a submarine attack, the captain said. The German submarine warfare decree was received at Washington. The decree blamed neutral countries for permitting Great Britain to cut off supplies from Germany.

Appropriation Sought For Panama Canal Work

Washington, Feb. 4.—Appropriation of $19,000,000 for completing the Panama canal and $8,250,000 for further fortifications there was sought today by Major General Goethals before the house appropriations committee.

He related plans for $500,000 worth of search batteries, $240,000 worth of submarine mines to be strung at each end of the canal, and for a $500,000 projectile factory to give the isthmus an independent munition supply. He declared that the canal needs two colliers, at a cost of $1,300,000 each.

Prospects for clearing slides from the big ditch were also discussed.

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

160 ACRE FARM SHOW WESTERN CANADA

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the harvesting of grain. For while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, double equipped, equipped and increased facilities have been strained as never before, and previous records have been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being reported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point ship-ments were much larger than to New York.

Thousands of tons of wheat are reported from all parts of the country, while only a few bushels were sent from any one place.

Thousands of farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land upon which they have sown their seed has been so well watered in good weather, compared to other areas, and the soil is so rich, and the crops are so well cared for, that the yield is so much greater than in other sections.

LIEUTENANT JONES UNDER ARREST TODAY

Charged With Loss of Naval Signal Book While Commanding Vessel

Vallejo, Cal., Feb. 4.—Lieutenant H. H. Jones, U. S. N., was under technical arrest today, by order of Commandant F. M. Bennett of Mare Island navy yard, and his liberty was confined to the navy yard and Vallejo only, as the result of the loss from the destroyer Hull of a naval signal book while Jones was commanding the vessel.

Information reached the navy yard today that Jones must report on board the battleship Oregon in San Francisco bay February 9 to face court-martial on charge of losing government property.

By order of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who is evidently much alarmed over the disappearance of the code book, a most searching investigation of the affair will be made. Captain Reeves, commanding the Oregon, will be president of the court-martial and Captain Crisp, U. S. M. C., retired, will act as judge advocate.

The Oregon and the battleship South Dakota will leave San Diego Monday for San Francisco. It is probable that several officers of the South Dakota will be detailed to serve as members of the court.

Mare Island naval officers are reluctant to discuss the affair but it is understood that the navy department fears the code book may possibly have fallen into the hands of some foreign power. If this should be established, it would necessitate rewriting the entire book.

One of the principal witnesses at the court-martial will be Ensign E. D. Kirkpatrick, of the cruiser Chattanooga, who was the last officer to see the book before it disappeared.

Senator Works Attacks President As Jingo Before Committee Today

Washington, Feb. 4.—President Wilson was attacked as a "jingo" by Senator Works of California today.

Speaking before the senate military committee, Works said Wilson's campaign for military preparedness is an "unwise attempt to scare the people into accepting a program they do not want."

"The public mind," he continued, "has been excited by publicists and movies, and now the president is increasing that excitement. Among his statements is one that we should have the biggest navy in the world. But, I cannot believe that he realizes what Great Britain's naval program is or that it has the policy of laying down one battleship for each fighting unit laid down by any other two nations combined."

"For my own part I see no cause for alarm and I do not contemplate that this nation will be led into war," Works spoke in behalf of the bill for defense "against the forces of nature;" in this connection, he advocated further reforestation and reclamation to prevent floods and other natural disasters, "likely to cause a greater loss of life and property than war would."

Before the house military committee, Representative Kahn of California, declared that the "continental army of administration proposes would be an army of the idle rich" as workmen could not afford to leave their employment to engage in drill.

General Scott, chief of staff proposed against the committee report a bill to federalize the militia; instead he urged universal military service.

American Representative Control Poland Food Supply

Berlin, Feb. 4.—The German government agreed today to permit American representatives to take over the complete control of the food situation in Poland to relieve thousands of starving people there, provided adequate funds for genuine relief work are raised. Moreover, Germany agreed to finance the work in part, and promised not to requisition food destined for the sufferers.

Caspar Whitney of the Belgian relief commission and P. C. Walcott of the Rockefeller foundation declared that a famine is imminent unless relief work is started promptly. Forty per cent of the 7,500,000 population in the Polish war zone are dependent upon charity and proper relief measures will require $2,000,000 monthly.

The Capital Journal's Great Clubbing Offer With Premier Farm Paper

Each and every reader of any periodical or newspaper has chosen in his or her own mind a periodical or paper that was considered better than all the rest. If you pick up that article you know exactly where to look for the news you want. Upon a daily sheet the front page is reserved for the ripe news of the world. Further on you find that gleaned from the separate localities surrounding the news office. Other space is reserved for the advertising, maritime, society, editorial and other news. Just as you consider the writers of that paper just a little better than those of the other papers or you wouldn't have the paper. You consider the make up and general character of that special sheet also of a better grade.

Now we, The Daily Capital Journal, have been in the position of a subscriber in regard to agricultural papers.

We have tried to select that periodical which to our notion, stands at the zenith in the nature of a farm paper. We have held a clubbing arrangement with the Western Farmer for some time past. Since we accepted the clubbing offer the Western Farmer has so far exceeded our expectations, and continued to grow better, that we are proud to still continue to offer it to our subscribers.

Remember, a copy of the Daily Capital Journal and the semi-monthly Western Farmer for the price of the single subscription to the Daily Capital Journal. This offer applies to old and new subscribers alike.

The price of the Daily Capital Journal is $3.00 per year by mail. That of the Western Farmer is $1.00 per year. The two papers may be had for the single price of $5.00.

Remember also, this is not where we are going to give you something for nothing. No man or firm on earth could do that and stay with it any length of time. But, we have set aside a certain sum from the subscription price that sum goes to the clubbing arrangement.

We believe that the readers of the Daily Capital Journal are interested in farm matters, also that if they pick up a farm paper they want to learn something. The staff upon the Western Farmer are considered experts in their line. These are the kind of men from whom we care to learn.

If you want to get out of the old rut and learn other experienced men's views on fruit, dairying, farming, gardening, poultry and berry raising besides other items of general interest in agriculture, then you want a paper like the Western Farmer in your home.

In the Daily Capital Journal the subscriber will receive a daily newspaper that is without a peer. The Capital Journal covers all the news of Marion and Polk counties, having the largest number and best collection of country correspondents of any newspaper in this section. The correspondents send in the items from your own neighborhood. The news of the city and of the county court house is gathered and carefully and accurately compiled, so that the subscriber receives each day, in addition to the telegraphic country news, a complete resume of the county seat happenings.

Editor E. E. Faville of the Western Farmer is secretary of the Washington Pure Bred Livestock Association, and also secretary of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana Swine Breeders' Association.

With a complete daily paper and a farm periodical in your home the home is complete. Consider the matter. Send in your subscription.

England's Most Lincoln-esque Figure Is Named Will Crooks

By Wilbur S. Forrest.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

London, Jan. 22.—(By mail.)—England's most Abraham Lincoln-esque figure is in the limelight. From the poor house to membership in the Kings Most Honorable Privy Council is but part of the record of Will Crooks, labor member of parliament and champion of the common people.

On the front doorstep of a modest little cottage in Poplar, a London suburb, on New Year's day, a figure in a white shirt, colored shirt sleeves at that, stood greeting proud townstolk come to congratulate him. Messenger boys brought telegrams in batches and handed them direct to the only Britisher of the "masses" admitted to the King's Inner Council and privileged to bear the title of Right Honorable.

Inside the cottage, while Crooks did two honors on the doorstep, was Mrs. Crooks, a plump, wholesome English housewife, preparing the New Year's dinner. There are no frills or "swank" in the home of the King's latest Privy Councillor. That is why Mrs. Crooks was in the kitchen while Will, as he is known both in Poplar and Parliament, was assuring his friends on the doorstep that being a Right Honorable made him feel no different.

"There's one thing I want to say," he told them all. "Because the king has deemed fit to call me his right trusty and well beloved or whatever the phrase is, I'm not going to become a party man. I'll be right with the workers. Tell them that the position gives me more power to work for them and with them. I live with them and how to do it with them."

When the voters elected Crooks the mayor of Poplar in 1901 as made a record that pleased the folk who had elected him over a more aristocratic opponent. He was the traditional robes of office because Mrs. Crooks told him to and not because he wanted to. That is also why he's going to wear the elaborate court dress that is incumbent upon a privy councillor.

"If the any Will's got to wear court togs, he's got to, that's all there is to it," said Mrs. Crooks. "Leave it to me. I'll see that he gets them. It was the same when he became mayor of Poplar. He wasn't going to wear the robes, but I made him."

When the workers of Poplar revolted Crooks' record as mayor in 1901, they immediately began to boost him for parliament in the Woodwich district of which Poplar is a part. He went to common with an overwhelming majority and he's still there.

Fighting the battles of the common folk, the appearance of this medium sized labor M. P. with his flashing blue eyes and iron grey beard on the floor of the House of Commons, has been since 1903, ceased to be a joke. Much credit for the strength of labor in England today goes to the "vulgarian pauper boy" who dared to call a spade while surrounded by his upper class colleagues.

The story of Garfield's boyhood days on the towpath; Lincoln's rail splitting and grocery clerk life or Ben Franklin's last penny for a bun in Philadelphia, do not outdo the boyhood vicissitudes of King George's new Privy Councillor.

When he was only six an accident to his father threw the support of him and his six brothers and sisters upon his mother.

"I remember how she used to cry because she didn't know where the next meal was coming from," said Crooks today. When Will was nine, a neighbor who kept a shop in Poplar offered him twelve cents a week to deliver milk and he took the job. Then his mother's health failed and because the sixpence a week wouldn't keep the family, they all went to the poorhouse for a time.

Will's next job was in a grocery store at fifty cents a week. At eleven he graduated to the job of blowing the bellows of a forge at a dollar and a half a week which augmented by earnings of his older brothers, barely held the family together. At 14 he was apprenticed to a firm of coopers where he earned about sixty cents a week while he was learning the trade.

Crooks grew up a cooper. It was in his trade that he became intensely interested in labor problems, experiencing all the hardships of strikes and lockouts and at times being forced to tramp about London in search of other work until the disputes were settled. Despite it all he married and reared a family of two sons and four daughters. He held office as a member of the London Council in 1892. He has held office ever since.

Today Crooks is looking forward with no very pleasant anticipation to the time, soon, when he'll be forced to appear in court dress of silk, knee breeches with lace ruffles. But he'll do it because Mother Crooks has said: "If Will must, he's got to, and that's all there is to it. Leave it to me. I'll see that he gets them."

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 5. — "The Corner of Sighs" they call it here, a little spot on the street near the big gray jail where tragedy daily stalks in silence. It is a spot secluded, from whence relatives, friends and sweethearts of prisoners may signal those within the jail and still be guarded from the eyes of the sheriff and his force.

MODERN CONFECTIONERY CO
Portland, Oregon

ON THE RIO GRANDE.

A noble man was neighbor Jim. Lived just across the alleyway. Had an orchard, shady, cool, Where his chickens ought to stay.

Now Jim, he had wild chickens And a little lettuce patch And his tamed little things Would ever scratch and scratch.

My early peas were pale and thin. My chicken coop beside the wood. Where lived my lonely little hens, Daily learning to be good.

Jim's rooster, he was game. My rooster, somewhat fat, And that alleyway between Was a place of daily spat.

Jim seemed honest, straight and true And said we best had fight it out. He climbed astride the alley fence And that's how it came about.

Jim's little chickens went home to roost. I calmly sat upon the fence. Then roosters bravely fought and bled While we watched in self defense.

Jim said, sit still and see them run. If loser, I will pay the debt. Them roosters quit and both went home And we sat there a mediatin' yet.
