ONE of the largest and most attractive affairs of the week will be the five hundred party for which Judge and Mrs. William Galloway and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Minto will be hosts tonight at the home of the former. Guests have been asked to make up fourteen tables of the game.

Yesterday afternoon about twelve ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Mason Bishop and formed an embroidery club.

An enjoyable programme was given during the evening, a feature of which was a drill by the M. W. A.

Later games and dancing rounded out the festivities.

Mrs. Henry Fawc returned Wednesday from a fortnight's visit in Corvallis.

Mrs. R. J. Richardson was the motif of a pleasant surprise Monday when the members of the Tano club gathered for the afternoon. The affair was planned to honor the hostess on the occasion of her birthday. A sewing was followed by refreshments.

Rural Credits Will Be Submitted Alone

of the voters. Under the system of rural credits as favored by Mr. Shumway it was proposed to allow the farmer to borrow money to the extent of 50 per cent of the actual value of his land holdings but he insisted that the value should be based upon the actual value and not the future value. This was opposed by the irrigation members because the sage brush land that is subject to irrigation is worth on an average of about $10 per acre and a loan of $5 per acre would not be of material benefit to the development of their sections.

The drainage men said that a rural credits measure would satisfy them as the drainage outlets were all that needed appropriations. The present value of the land in the western part of the state could be drained easily with the money that could be borrowed under the rural credits system and this tended to line the drainage men on the side of the grangers and labor men. The discussion was still raging when the adjournment was announced but it appeared to be mostly an echo of pent up political thunder as the real business of the session was over when Shumway's resolution carried. The conference adjourned subject to the call of the majority of the committee.

The Night Session.

At the night session of the conference it was finally decided to submit the rural credits amendment to the constitution of the state as a separate amendment and the irrigation and drainage amendment as another measure. The resolutions committee brought in a majority report last night recommending a constitutional amendment providing that the state might use its credit to bond for rural irrigation, drainage and rural credits and giving the people the power to initiate a bill for any one of these purposes. The minority recommended a measure providing that the state might use its credit to bond for rural credits upon the passage of an initiated bill.

Upon motion of Senator Sam Garland of Lebanon, these reports were referred to the resolutions committee with instructions to report separately on each question and upon coming to a vote the motion passed 30 to 24. The committee agreed to report after midnight and this time also the minority report accompanied the majority report. The majority report was appended as an amendment and provided that drainage and irrigation be combined in one measure and that rural credits be submitted as another measure, and that the amount of any bond issue should not exceed two per cent of the land valuation of the state.

The resolutions committee which was appointed yesterday afternoon consisted of Asa B. Thompson, of Echo; Oswald West, of Portland; C. E. Spencer, of Oregon City; A. R. Shumway, of Milton; E. J. Stank, of Portland; W. H. Gore, of Medford; and W. Lair Thompson, of Lakeview.

Late Afternoon Session.

The trend of the oratory which gained fairly good headway yesterday afternoon indicated that the main point of issue would be whether one constitutional amendment embodying both the rural credits and drainage and irrigation provisions would be submitted to the people at the next election or whether the propositions would be submitted as separate amendments. All appeared to favor rural credits or cheaper money for the farmer and only the means of attaining these ends were different.

Natural—the Willamette valley delegations were not strongly in favor of irrigation since the rain attends to the irrigation system unflinchingly on this side of the Cascades. The irrigationists, however, appeared to hold for the presentation of both questions under one heading in order that their irrigation plans might be given a substantial boost on the popularity of the rural credit movement.

W. Lair Thompson, of Lakeview, was the champion of the dry farmers while State Treasurer Kay took up the gauntlet for the separation of the issues on the ballot. In his speech on the floor Mr. Thompson set forth that rural credits would aid the dry land farmers to pay for their land and also to place water upon it and he urged that the state as a whole bond its credit to secure the funds which might be used for irrigation purposes and to provide homes for the settlers upon the irrigated lands.

He said that the bonds should be issued under the Bancroft bonding act and would stand as a lien upon the lands which were being sold to the state and to private owners to be paid off by the actual settler in easy payments. Further he said that the issue should be incorporated in one constitutional amendment since they properly came as an amendment to the law which passed at a previous election providing for the issuance of road bonds.

In opposition to the arguments of Mr. Thompson, Mr. Kay stated that there were already thousands of acres of land in this state that could not be sold today at the present prices and then he asked the question "why throw more land on the market?" Mr. Kay stated that in some of the proposed state irrigation projects that the estimates of the federal engineers showed that it would cost $55 per acre to put sufficient water on the land to produce crops and he concluded that since land which was now being offered at $40 per acre was being offered at $55 land would be still harder to sell.

Kay Gives Statistics.

Mr. Kay gave statistics which showed that the sparse settlement of this state would not provide settlers for these lands since they did not settle the lands which were already under irrigation and that the need of the state was not more land but more settlers and that these settlers could only be attracted to the land by a system of rural credits that gave them cheap money which they could purchase and improve their holdings.

The two factions of the conference were temporarily crystallized by a motion of Mr. Kay to instruct the resolutions committee that it was the sense of the conference that the constitutional amendments should be put on the ballots under separate heads, one providing for irrigation and drainage and the other providing for rural credits. The motion was declared out of order by Chairman Mills who ruled that the motion must be presented as a resolution and that it should be presented in writing to the committee without discussion.

cession. Kay then made the motion that the resolutions committee be ordered to report forthwith to receive the instructions of the conference as to lay Kay's last motion on the table and when it came to a vote the motion to table carried by a vote of 29 to 38.

Upon a motion from Sam Garland, it was voted to allow every delegate who wished to present a resolution five minutes to discuss his resolution.

"In my estimation murder today of American citizens upon United States soil, following continued assassination of Americans in Mexico demonstrates the absolute necessity of vigorous and unyielding action to bring the offenders to justice. Every Mexican murderer concerned with today's massacre should be executed, no matter what the cost nor where he may be apprehended. The policy of non-inter-

Making Plans For Religious Exhibit

To prepare for '50 tons of religion and social service' as it was described by Mr. G. B. St. John social service expert from New York City, Mr. St. John and Dr. Allen Moore fellow of the Royal Geographic society and distinguished reproducer of Holy Land scenes arrived in Salem today.

The social service exposition transported in all its vividness from the San Francisco exposition where it was declared to be the greatest gathering together of religious exhibits ever assembled will be shown at the Ryan hall for six days beginning March 20. The entire exposition and Palestine pageant will be under the auspices of the Salem Ministers' association. The churches of the city will give up all local activities for that week in order that the people of Salem might have an opportunity to study as much as possible this great and wonderful exposition.

Dr. Moore is including plans for a gorgeous Palestine pageant with robes, furnishings and other accoutrements direct from the Holy Land. Between 90 and 100 persons will participate. The pageant will be just as presented at the Grand Central Palace in New York City in December when it was officially opened by President Woodrow Wilson.

In addition to the exhibits there will be Mary Agnes Best the world famous story-teller, Miss Edith M. Wills scientific temperance lecturer and what has been called some of the very best motion pictures of social service work in this country.

Try This Recipe

ORANGE CAKE
1 cupful sugar 1 1/4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
2 eggs yolks Few grains of salt
Juice of 1 orange 2 egg-whites
1 cupful bread-flour

Beat the egg-yolks till creamy, add the sugar, and blend thoroughly. Measure the orange juice and add water, if necessary, to make a half-cupful of liquid. Mix the baking powder with the flour, and add alternately to first mixture with the orange juice. Fold in the egg-whites beaten stiff. Bake in layers about five minutes in a hot oven; reduce to heat and cook more slowly till the cake is done—about fifteen minutes. Put together and ice with orange frosting, or use a jelly or whipped-cream filling, and sprinkle powdered sugar over the top. This will keep moist for several days.
