EXPERT REVIEWS FLAX SITUATION

New Industry Fully Discussed

Nineteen-fifteen apparently marks the beginning of a new interest in western Oregon in the flax crop. This ame as food left in the open air, says needs quite well suited to our conditions. The Oregon Agricultural college began an extensive variety trial of flax for both seed and fiber, in order to discover the best varieties for Oregon and to begin improvement work with these varieties. Already very encouraging results have been seed with both seed and fiber, finand namerous, very promising selections have been made. In this same year, the state of Oregon set aside fifty thousand dollars to be used in part in fiber film produced and in the manufacture of fiber from the finax straw. Arrangements were made that the expensive and operations in the field and in the manufacturing of the field and in the manufacturing of the films should be cared for by the inmates of the penitentiary. Over two bundred acres were produced last year with varying results as to yield and quality of straw for fiber. Consider bundred acres were produced last year with varying results as to yield and quality of straw for fiber. Considering all things, however, such as soil, time of planting, rate of seeding, etc., the crop, in general, was a success.

The next step to be worked out is the successful manufacturer of the fiber, and while this is still in the experimental state, the outlook is promising where cheap labor can i produced.
