NEW WATER SUPPLY FOR MCKINLEY SCHOOL

Board Facing Building of More School Houses, Arranges for Outside Pupils

The children of the McKinley school will have the pleasure of drinking water that has been boiled, at least during school hours, as the school board decided the present water supply contained too many microbes for the general health of the pupils.

It was also the sense of the directors that a general inventory be made of school properties in the city in order to establish a basis on which to figure the cost of education per capita, and from these figures estimate correctly the amount to be charged pupils from the rural districts attending school in the junior high and senior high school.

From figures supplied by the directors, it was found that the 130 pupils attending school in the city from outside districts were so distributed: that even if these were refused admission, it would mean the saving of only three teachers. As it is estimated that this rural attendance is likely to increase, the proposition before the school board is to provide accommodations. As there is a feeling on the board that this is a very inopportune time to talk of building another school house, it is probable that temporary structures will be built on trays of the school grounds to take care of the pupils for the fall of 1916.

The increasing attendance at the three junior high schools and the senior high is a serious proposition. Superintendent Elliott estimated an attendance of 770 for the three junior high schools next fall and of 771 for the high school. He believed that within a few years, the three junior high schools would number at least 1,000 pupils and the same number would be found in the senior high school.

This is a bill now before congress, providing that 40 per cent of the money derived from the sale of the California land grant be placed in the school fund of the state. At the same time there is an effort being made to reduce this amount to 10 per cent. The board was instructed to wire Scott Ferris, chairman of the general land commission, and Congressman Hawley, protesting against the proposed change.

"The Pheasant's Tale" Told by Fruit Juice Company

"The Pheasant's Tale" is the name of the latest Salem publication and its title page is a drawing in red of a pheasant's tail, besides a bottle of something that looks very much like a bottle of loganberry juice.

For he it is known, that "The Pheasant's Tale" is a publication issued by the Pheasant Fruit Juice company and its columns are devoted to relating what is being done to make "Phez" a national drink.

In volume No. 1, issue No. 2, H. S. Gile, president of the company, tells of the various names suggested for their manufacture of loganberry juice and how, after everything had been considered, it was finally decided to coin the word "Phez" and register it as a trade mark and name for the product of the Pheasant Fruit Juice company.

The bulletin of mis-directed letters, posted in the lobby of the postoffice under glass cover, tells of several letters that never arrived. It is just a little puzzling, even for the "mixer" man, to be asked to forward a letter addressed with no name whatever, and only the numbers, "4225 Forty Sixth Street, S. E." Another letter that will finally find its way to the dead letter office at Washington, is addressed, "J. H. McConathy, 924 East Eighth, Washington." Although the active recruiting campaign for Company M ended with the annual inspection, March 8, four young soldiers have been recruited to members of the company, since that date. The first youngster to register was in the family of Private Marvin Breen. Private Sam Davis came next. Sergeant R. C. Wyzant was the third to become a father and Captain Max Gohlar last week bought cigars for the company to celebrate his advent as a man of a family.

Judging from the inquiries that come to the commercial club from extensive importers and exporters of fruits in the east, there appears to be no doubt whatever, that if the Willamette valley products were raised in sufficient quantities, and could be shipped in car lots, markets would easily be found in the east. A letter was received today from the Caribbean Syndicate, asking for prices on evaporated fruits, canned vegetables, dried peas, beans and lentils. These large commission houses do not use small shipments. Their business is almost entirely in car lot shipments.

Dr. Carl Gregg Doney, president of Willamette university, has found that out in the west, being president of an institution of learning is rather a strenuous job, especially when the president

He was immediately taken to the hospital where the physicians stated that the injuries would not likely prove serious unless the internal injuries were of a more serious nature than it was thought at present. No bones were broken.

Indicted for Contributing to the Delinquency of a Sixteen Year Old Girl

Portland, Ore., April 6.—While trying a case before Circuit Judge Gatens this morning, R. L. Merrick, attorney, and formerly private secretary to ex-Representative A. W. Lafferty, was arrested on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old girl. A secret indictment had been returned against him a week ago. Merrick's home is in Astoria.

The indictment resulted from District Attorney Evans' recent probe into vice conditions in Portland. Confessions were secured from several girls, some of whom had barely reached their teens.

Merrick and Lafferty were appearing in court as attorneys for a Jitney driver in a personal injury suit brought by a passenger. They were selecting a jury when Deputy Sheriff Beelman entered the court room and served the warrant on Merrick. Fleeing Chinese Wife Wanted To Go Back To the Farm From City

The "back to the farm movement" was demonstrated with a vengeance today when Deputy District Attorney Ralph Moores returned from Oakland, Cal., with Mrs. Yee Lai Sun, the young wife of a local Chinese who left this city for parts unknown last Thursday night, taking her two children with her. She says she only wants to go back to the farm and that residence in Salem's Oriental quarter, certainly is not "the life."

The woman took about $700 worth of jewelry with her and $300 in cash belonging to herself and left with her two children. She was arrested when she stepped from the train in Oakland and held pending developments in this city. She promised to return to her husband on condition that he would leave the gay life in the capital city for the cows and chickens on the farm of George Sun, the young man's father, which is located about five miles north of this city.
