Black Rock Logger Horribly Mutilated

One of the most horribly gruesome injuries that has been treated at the Dallas hospital was that suffered by Joseph Harlan, a logger, who was brought down from Black Rock on the logging train on Friday evening with his entire forehead gone. Harlan was felling a tree in the camp on Friday, shortly after the noon hour, and it is thought that a branch of this tree hit the logger on the head as it was falling. Harlan's partner, Joe Modjeska, only witness of the accident, thinks that Harlan jumped to avoid being hit and fell headfirst against a log, but the resulting injury denies this theory. The great force of the blow tore the man's forehead off and broke the socket bones of his eyes in addition to shattering the bones in the upper part of the nasal cavity. Local surgeons consider it wonderful that Harlan lived an instant after being hit. Harlan was carried from the timber on a stretcher and later in the day was brought to the Dallas hospital, where he was operated upon immediately by Dr. A. B. Starbuck. In spite of the fact that the blow he received knocked more than an ounce of the man's brains from his head he was so nearly fully conscious on Saturday morning that he could converse intelligently with his physicians. If Harlan lives he will be badly disfigured, for, it is said, there is nothing in surgical science that can repair the injury done. Harlan is a husband and the father of three children who live at Black Rock. He has been employed at the lumber camps there for the past eight years and is very well known to Falls City, Black Rock and Dallas people. He was formerly head brakeman on the Teal Creek railroad. ***** SUGAR TAKES JUMP ***** Portland, Ore., April 12.—The price of sugar jumped 15 cents on the local market today. ***** GRAINETS SUGAR NOW FETCHES $7.50 PER 100 POUNDS. ***** NEWMAN FINDS GAS ON FARM Second Important Natural Gas Well Reported Found in Northern Polk. The second important natural gas well has been tapped in Polk county. The newest discovery was made on the Samuel Newman place three miles west of Amity last week. Workmen have been making a well for some time. At a depth of a little more than 200 feet they tapped the flow of gas that will probably be utilized later for lighting, heating and other purposes. The well is now at a depth of about 250 feet and will be drilled considerably deeper. The flow at present is not large, but those who should know say that it comes from one of a series of gas pockets and when the well is deeper will furnish an unlimited flow. The gas that is escaping from the pipes in the well can be ignited with a match and the owner has great hopes of a heavy supply. If the present well proves insufficient Mr. Newman will drill at other places, because he has reason to be confident that there is a large store of natural gas on his place and he will spare no effort to find it.—Polk County Observer.

***** TREE CHOKED TO DEATH ***** Oakland, Cal., April 13.—The famous old oak tree in the Oakland city hall plaza has choked to death, according to the report today of Professor A. W. Greene, head of the forestry department of the University of California. The cause of the sudden death of the famous old tree has been a matter for conjecture for some time. "The earth has been so piled about its roots that it could not properly secure oxygen," the report says. "Now while an oak may breathe through the bottom of its leaves, it also needed the assistance of the roots."

***** ONE WHIG LEFT ***** Pendleton, Ore., April 13.—Although his party has been practically extinct for 50 years, O. D. Teel, of Echo, insisted on registering as a Whig. Unless he nominates himself for some office and runs on a Whig platform Teel cannot vote at the May primaries. *****

Carranza Asks United States to Recall Army

(Continued from Page One.) Situation Serious Washington, April 13.—Provisional President Venustiano Carranza considers that "it is already time to treat with the United States government for withdrawal of their forces from our territory." This announcement is a note from the de facto government's secretary of state, an official text of which has arrived here, brought the administration face to face today with what may prove the most serious situation that has grown out of the pursuit of Francisco Villa. Declaring that the de facto regime never formally agreed to let American troops cross the border, the note reported on route here said that Carranza's Mexican government judges it convenient to suspend for the present all discussion of negotiations in this particular. "Disoccupation" of Mexico by American troops was asked on the ground that Francisco Villa's band is dispersed and on the further ground that Carranza troops believe themselves able to complete the task of exterminating the bandit leader and his band. Officials today frankly admitted there was a possibility of a misunderstanding having existed in negotiations with Carranza, as far as they have gone. The United States troops entered Mexico while the protocol under which Carranza proposed the chase should be conducted was being completed and before it had been fully agreed to. Now Carranza declines to complete this agreement or protocol and suggests that it is time to arrange for a withdrawal of American forces, leaving further pursuit to Carranzistas. In proposing the protocol, Carranza's note says, Mexico did not consider the raid on Columbus itself should result in invasion. He emphasizes that it must have been clear that Mexico gave the United States troops permission to cross only in case the Mexicans were repelled. The note indicates a belief that the sovereignty of Mexico has been violated. It says that a Mexican agent called on Counselor Polk of the state department, and that Polk said the United States thought Mexico had given permission for the expedition to enter. Faced with the nation's demand that Villa be captured without regard to technicalities, yet feeling that one mistake may undo four years' diplomacy attempted to establish good feeling between the nations, and confirm peace in Mexico, the White House felt that the situation required the most careful handling. It was confident that the issue would be handled successfully.

Are Playing Crooked.

San Antonio, Texas, April 13.—General Fred Funston made it plain today that he would never consider the American expedition into Mexico a success until Francisco Villa had been captured or killed. His attitude, however, will be governed by Washington. Funston declared the expedition would continue hunting Villa until the war department ordered it to halt or until Villa was taken. He denied the expedition would be in danger if its supply lines were cut and intimated that the full confidence in the ability of the Americans to take care of themselves. Funston harshly denounced the Carranzistas for their failure to cooperate with the American forces. He pointed out that constitutionalists had twice permitted Villa to slip through their lines.

May Mean Revolution.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 13.—Indications of trouble in Mexican official circles were hinted at today when S. Gonzalez prepared to displace Adolfo Carrillo as de facto consul here. Carrillo, who was strongly backed by General Carranza, was ordered to abdicate the local consulate in favor of Gonzalez. General Obregon, it was understood, ordered the change. Carrillo has retained two afternoons. He stated he would refuse to turn over the consulate until bills amounting to $5,000 had been paid.

Villa Still Lost.

El Paso, Texas, April 13.—Francisco Villa's whereabouts were unknown to officials today. The progress of the American pursuit was also clouded by uncertainty. Latest authentic reports said the United States forces were chasing the bandit in Durango.

INDEPENDENCE VETERAN DEAD

The end of suffering that has afflicted him for more than a year called to the final reward Rudolph Miller of Independence, last week. Mr. Miller passed away at the Salem hospital and was buried at Independence on Thursday. Mr. Miller was a native of Switzerland, where he was born in 1862, was married twice and is survived by a widow and eight children, seven of whom live in Independence. At the age of 21 years Mr. Miller enlisted in the United States army and under the flag of his adopted country served with credit for many years. At the battle of San Juan, and at the battle of Santiago de Cuba, during the Spanish-American war he was rewarded for his service with special honors. Mr. Miller had conducted a tailoring business at Independence until his illness forced him to the hospital bed, where he died.—Polk County Observer.

"Henry," said the sheriff to the negro on the gallows. "Have you anything to say?" "Yas, uh," said the condemned man. "I've got a few words to say. I merely wishes to state dat dis attilly is going to be a lesson to me." —New Orleans Picayune.
