Here is what a really prominent citizen said about women registering: "A year ago, voting was something new and many women were interested in prohibition. This year will be a test as to whether women really want to exercise their rights of being a citizen and on an equality with men. Registering is now an easy matter as no personal questions are asked, and if a woman does not register, it is a pretty sure sign she is not interested in civic and local affairs."

Bituminous concrete was the pavement selected at the meeting held last evening by the property owners living on Church for the proposed paving of Church street from State to Mission. The paving is to have a four and a half inch base with an inch and one half wearing surface and is on the general plan of the paving on South Twelfth street. The next step is the allotting of a resolution by the council next Monday evening favoring the kind of a pavement, and then the advertising by the city of the proposed improvement. The paving can then only be prevented by the reconstructions of the property owners of more than two-thirds of the lineal feet in the proposed district.
To whom it may concern. This is to notify you that on and after May 1, 1916 the members of all local affiliations with the Salem Building Trades Council of Salem, Oregon, and vicinity, will discontinue to work with non-union men of any organized craft. The monthly meeting of the commercial club next Tuesday evening will be addressed by Wallace R. Struble, secretary of the Columbia naval base committee. Mr. Struble had charge of the publicity campaign for the cable route and is now working to awaken an interest in the establishment of a naval base at the mouth of the Columbia. There is a general feeling in Oregon that the state should make every effort to secure a naval base at the mouth of the Columbia, not because it would be established in this state, but simply from the fact that there is but one strategic point for the naval base.
Senator Theodore B. Burton, of Ohio, who is one of the presidential possibilities from a republican standpoint, will arrive in Salem next Wednesday evening and will be the guest of honor at

A. Slaughter, Manager of Creamery, Arrives

A. Slaughter, the new manager of the Capital City Co-operative Creamery, arrived in the city yesterday and is now in charge of the business. He is regarded as one of the expert and scientific butter makers of the state. After graduating from the Minnesota university in the dairy division, he engaged in butter making in several co-operative creameries in Pennsylvania and at one time had charge of the dairy department of the Dunn county school of agriculture. Later he was in charge of a co-operative creamery at Pothum, California, where his special work was in testing and pasteurizing cream. For the past two years he has been in charge of the Independence creamery. While living in the east, Mr. Slaughter was connected with the American Society of Equity, a farm marketing organization. For the past two years he has been on the executive board of the Oregon state butter and cheese makers association. He is the author of the Wisconsin co-operative law from which the Oregon co-operative law was taken.
